SITE IS NOT DESIRABLE.

Monument Would Be Mere Appendage to Railway Station; President Names Council of Building Censors.

BY RAYMOND

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Abraham Lincoln was a patient and long suffering patriot. He learned to bear the sting of insult without resentment and he turned away many a bitter partisan attack with a clever story.

It may be doubted, however, whether he ever was called upon to bear during the trying days of the civil war without protest such responsibility as congress now is proposing to impose upon him. With the ostensible purpose of creating a monument to the great liberator of the slaves it is proposed to spend millions of money for the purchase of a large tract of land in an undesirable location and then to put a single million of dollars upon it in the way of a monument to the martyred president.

Everything has been arranged to slide the bill through both houses of congress with the idea that it shall be signed by President Roosevelt Feb. 12, the Lincoln centenary day. By making use of the sacred name of Abraham Lincoln, the originators of the scheme hope to carry through congress a proposition to buy a number of city blocks for the joint purpose of enlarging the capitol grounds and of supplying a site for the monument to the emancipator.

Proposed Site Inartistic Place.

The project to enlarge the capitol grounds may be all well enough in its way, but it is generally dawning upon some people that the memory of the dead president should not be made the vehicle for a great real estate transaction, the result of which would be to more than double the extent of the grounds around the United States capitol and at the same time would fix the monument to Lincoln in a most undesirable and inartistic place at the gateway of the Union depot, where it would be entirely out of harmony with the artistic development of Washington and where no amount of money could well prevent its being an artistic monstrosity so far as its surroundings are concerned.

Nearly a year ago the committee on library of the house submitted a report in favor of the adoption of a bill for the enlargement of the capitol grounds and for the erection of a monument or memorial to Abraham Lincoln. The purpose of this measure, which is generally known as the McCall bill, is to take land from the senate office building westward as far as New Jersey avenue and north from the capitol grounds to Massachusetts avenue and the plaza of the new union station.

Altogether, including the streets which would have to be condemned, the tract comprises an area of about thirty-six acres, or more than is included in the present capitol grounds.

Propose to Spend $3,250,000.

The bill proposes to appropriate the sum of $2,250,000 to acquire, grade, and lay out the land. Then there is an appropriation of $1,000,000 more for the memorial to Lincoln. The bill provides that this memorial shall be located on the newly acquired tract of land and north of the capitol. Recently the movement has been started in congress, which has the approval of the leaders of both houses, to rush the bill through and get it into the hands of the president for his signature on Lincoln's birthday.

There is no doubt that the purchase of this tract of land would add a great deal to the beauty and impressiveness of the capitol. It would throw into open a section/of land between the new union depot and the capitol building which now is covered with unsightly buildings and which would make a beautiful park.

There is no particular objection to this scheme, except the fact that the treasury is not in condition to pay out the money for such a purpose at this time. Members of congress have been preaching economy to the executive departments and have cut down battleships and other navy vessels on the plea that there was not money enough in the treasury.

Mere Appendage Station.

Now it is proposed to spend two and a quarter millions for a tract of land to beautify the capitol, whereas the state department, the Supreme court, department of commerce and labor, and other departments of the government are in sore need of new buildings, which congress has refused to grant or has hedged about with such restrictions that appropriation is nearly valueless.

What is worrying those who have at heart the artistic development of the capital of the nation is the linking of the memorial to Abraham Lincoln with the development of a real estate scheme for the enlargement of the capitol grounds. In the first place, the two things have no possible relation with each other. In the second place, it is the opinion of many competent experts that the location of a great monument to Abraham Lincoln on the new tract would not add to his glory.

It would have to be erected at a point somewhere between the railroad station and the capitol. The effect would be to make it, in all probability, a mere appendage to the railroad station. It would be dwarfed by that magnificent building and by the capitol itself, and could never hope in such a place to have any individual flavor at all, no matter how beautiful it might be in itself.

Artists of Country Protest.

Congress has made a great many blunders in the artistic development of Washington. It should not make another by coupling the Lincoln memorial with a manifest real estate scheme, which is possibly well enough in its way. Congress has rushed into the idea of celebrating the Lincoln centenary in this way, and yet the artists and architects of the country already have begun to protest vigorously against the scheme so far as it concerns the Lincoln memorial.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the American Institute of Architects a resolution was passed declaring that the Lincoln memorial, testifying as it does to the heroic character and services of the great

AIR THEM OUT.

Schoolrooms, churches, theaters—in fact, all places of assemblage, should be thoroughly aired after each occupancy. Too often classrooms, places of worship and amusement are left closed between the hours of occupancy, thus allowing the foul, dead air to remain for the use of the next set of occupants. This is bad and in itself is a menace to public health.

WOE TO HOPKINS IN FIVE BALLOTS.

LORIMER POWER PROVEN.

Deneen and Shurtleff, Both Advanced as Rivals, Say They Do Not Want to Take the Place.

BY C. S. R.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—In a great many external respects Senator A. J. Hopkins presents the appearance of a "gone goose."

This may be a prematurely brutal view of the senator's situation, but it is warranted by the fact that five ballots in the first joint session of the assembly this afternoon left him farther away from the prize than ever.

He started with eighty-nine votes on the first roll call and dropped to eighty-four on the fifth. The disintegration of his own ranks has started. Tomorrow will find his strength scattering to "favorite son" candidates, who are springing up beautifully in the fallow soil of Mr. Hopkins' discomfiture.

Two Movements Hem Him In.

Two distinct movements are aimed at the junior senator. One has for its ambition the election of Gov. Charles S. Deneen, the other the election of Speaker Edward D. Shurtleff. Both meet on common ground in antagonism to Hopkins, and are made twin movements by the manipulation of that archplotter against the peace and security of the present senator, the bland and childlike William Lorimer, in whose innocent appearance lurks no indication of the ferocity with which he is pursuing the auburn top piece.

Gov. Deneen probably could be elected senator tomorrow if he would say the word. He has been importuned, and has refused to take it. He says it would be "imbecilic, idiotic, and insane" for him to consider the proposition for a minute.

Folks whose trusting and confiding natures have not been warped by contact with a cruel world are taking Mr. Deneen at his word, and believe he means precisely what he says, but every time William Lorimer, the bland and childlike, has a new conference with the governor, or with some of the governor's closest personal friends, such as Roy O. West, unkind suspicions arise.

Deneen Wants to Stay Down.

A distinguished Republican statesman who within the last few days joined the ranks of ex-officials described Mr. Deneen's state of mind by saying:

"The governor has a natural objection to being kicked upstairs by his enemies."

If Mr. Deneen will not take the place and if Mr. Hopkins cannot get it, Speaker Shurtleff is the logical candidate. He might be elected now if Roger C. Sullivan would take the lid off the Democrats and if he were willing to take the place as a gift from the minority party. He is not willing to do so, and Mr. Sullivan will not allow any Democrats over whom his gentle influence extends to play outside the party fences. If he gets the place it must be by the steady drift of Republican votes to him or by caucus action which will make him the party nominee. He started in the joint balloting with eleven votes and when the sixth ballot is taken at noon will still possess them.

Deadlock Is Made Tight.

The deadlock which the opponents of Senator Hopkins sought as the first steps necessary to accomplish his defeat has been firmly established. The prospects indicate that the legislature when it takes its week end recess still will be tied up in it.

How lightly Mr. Lorimer and his colaborers have succeeded in sewing the assembly up may be illustrated by the following totals of the five joint ballots taken this afternoon:

Name.	First.	Second.	Third.	Fourth.	Fifth.
Hopkins	89	87	85	84	84
Foss	16	16	13	14	16
Mason	6	6	5	5	5
Shurtleff	12	12	12	12	12
McKinley		1	1	1	1
Lowden		..	5	5	3
Stringer	76	76	76	74	74
Browne		..	..	1	..

Hopkins Realizes Foes' Power.

It increases Mr. Hopkins' uncomfortable sensations to know that at any time his enemies may want to take more votes from him they can do so. Congressman William Rodenberg of East St. Louis may be brought in as a candidate for the next ballot, then half a dozen or more Hopkins votes from southern Illinois districts will go galloping away after the standard of this "favorite son."

Other local celebrities are in cold storage ready at any time to be taken out that an excuse may be offered legislators who wish to glide away from the senator and who want a good, reasonable explanation to offer the home folks. Congressman Frank O. Lowden served such a purpose today, and one lone legislator lit safely on Congressman William B. McKinley of Champaign.

Busse's Efforts in Vain.

Mayor Busse, coming to Springfield this morning, has done his best to pull Hopkins out of the hole into which the shrewd Mr. Lorimer, the shrewd Mr. Shurtleff, the shrewd Mr. Shanahan, and other geniuses in the science of retributive politics have pushed him. He has done everything possible to pull the weight off Mr. Hopkins' chest and put him on his feet again, but has not made enough progress to give the Aurora senator much encouragement.

The first attempt made by the Hopkins men to pull themselves together came this evening when efforts were made in a round up of the faithful to sign up enough Republicans to tie the legislature in a knot until the senator's reëlection was assured.

A number of Republicans have signed this agreement—not as originally drawn to bind them for eternity—but as amended to give a majority of the signers the power to vote their own release. Senator C. P. Gardner has the list of signers in his pocket, but it is said that the number is between thirty-one and forty.

It is the expectation of the men who have caused the deadlock that it will last into next

TUG RACES THROUGH ICE FLOES.

Scenes of Horror Rival the Iroquois Spectacles, with Geo. W. Jackson, Inc., Employes Helpless Victims.

A coroner's investigation such as Chicago has not witnessed since the days following the Iroquois theater fire will be instituted today with the object of fixing the responsibility/for the wholesale loss of life—the total may reach sixty—in the burning of the intermediate crib established by the George W. Jackson tunnel building company, one and a half miles from the shore at Seventy-first street, yesterday morning.

With the bodies of forty-seven laborers who died in the inflammable wooden structure, without a chance to escape, lying before him at South Chicago at night, Coroner Peter M. Hoffman announced that the formal impaneling of a jury to embark upon an inquest which probably will last ten days will be accomplished at 10 o'clock this morning.

Until all evidence has been presented the coroner said he would withhold all personal opinions respecting the guilt of individuals or others for a death list which may be much increased by the time all the bodies have been recovered from the grim fortress of smoldering débris or from the waters of the ice coated lake.

Number in Peril a Mystery.

It is not likely that the exact number of dead ever will be known. Mr. Jackson furnished a list of seventy-nine names as the roll of the men employed on the crib. That this list is not completed is obvious. Forty-seven bodies have been recovered, forty-eight men were rescued by the tug Morford, battling for life in the icy water, nearly every one of whom was taken to a hospital, and it is believed at least a dozen were drowned before the tug reached the scene.

It is variously estimated that about 100 men were in the crib. Some of the survivors ventured an estimate of 150. Of these it is thought that about one-third were at work in the tunnel, as the men worked in three shifts. A majority of the remainder were in bunks ranged about the wooden walls of the octagonal structure.

Testimony on Saturday.

Taking of testimony by the coroner's jury will not begin until Saturday. The intervening time will be spent in finding every survivor of the disaster and assuring his attendance at the inquest for the purpose of supplying testimony while the features of the tragedy on the great gray lake are fresh in the memory. With Acting Chief of Police Schuettler, Inspector Hunt, and City Engineer John Ericson, Coroner Hoffman in the evening held a conference at the South Chicago police station with the object of completing arrangements for the identification of victims and the investigation of the causes of the fire. The technical details of the latter feature of the investigation were taken in charge by Engineer Ericson, who was instructed by the coroner to hand in his report at the inquest.

Bodies Shapeless; Identity a Puzzle.

As for the identification of victims, it is doubtful if even one of the bodies carried through the throngs of the broken hearted and the merely morbid which lined the banks of the Calumet river at South Chicago at night can be identified as that of any given individual.

The best that can be done in the opinion of the coroner and the police is to check up lists of survivors and missing, and in this way arrive at a list of the dead. In almost all instances the heads were burned from the bodies. Mutilation from burning was unspeakable in all cases, so much so that canvas sacks were used to contain the shapeless fragments of human bodies which were assorted with all the skill the searchers could muster in their efforts to determine the number of dead.

Suggests One Great Funeral.

How to dispose of the remains in a manner satisfactory to the relatives is another problem at present as important as the inquest itself. The coroner has called a conference of relatives of the dead to meet at the South Chicago police station this afternoon for the purpose of making arrangements for the burial.

The coroner will request that the Jackson company purchase a big burial lot in some cemetery so that a single great funeral may be held tomorrow afternoon with religious services of various creeds. He is of the opinion that in no other way can the dead be disposed of with any degree of satisfaction. Mr. Jackson announced in the evening that he would buy lots in cemeteries for the interment of the dead.

When the entire story of the holocaust has been told it is probable the fire will take rank as one of the most horrible disasters recorded in the history of tunnel construction. In the material of its construction the wooden temporary crib was of a character to invite sudden and inevitable death to its occupants in case of any disaster.

Place Itself Ally of Death.

At its best nothing more than a fire trap, without a lifeboat moored at its walls, the natural risk of the place was intensified a thousandfold by the fact that the shanty was a place of storage for dynamite.

Men who escaped from the jaws of death said three tons of the explosive were within the wooden walls.

This is denied by Mr. Jackson, who declares 300 pounds—a day's supply—was the gross amount. The three tons, he declared, were on shore.

Anyway, and by some queer freak of the dynamite, the freakiest explosive known, or the merciful dispensation of Providence, the 300 pounds, or the three tons, did not explode. It simply burned like so much sawdust soaked with an inflammable fluid. If it had exploded the surface of the lake, unbroken except for floating bodies and débris, would have been the only thing that greeted the eyes of rescuers.

Vermin Remedy Blamed for Fire.

In its isolation in the mists shrouding the winter lake, and buffeted by great cakes of floating ice, the structure looked not unlike a fortress of the civil war, save that an aerial tramway built of steel and pointed to as a triumph of engineering construction communicated with the shore.

The fire, when it came, seemed to be spontaneous. While later in the day officials connected with the investigation were unable to ascribe any satisfactory theory regarding its origin, a story which sounded plausible gained currency. Here it is:

Bedbugs had infested the structure and taken up their habitations in the cracks between the pine boards. A negro workman with the idea of abating the nuisance had secured gasoline and poured it into the cracks. The gasoline in some way, possibly from the red hot stoves that warmed the building, became ignited, with the result that the whole structure burst into flame.

Another Theory of the Cause.

Another theory is that the fire started near the west door, where the dynamite is kept. One man said that a torch fell from the cap of a miner as he got out of the bucket and dropped on a stick of dynamite lying on the floor. The explosive began to burn, frightening the men so that they became panic-stricken.

This theory may be the true one, as not a man escaped by the west door, which was cut off by a sheet of flame.

A strong breeze was blowing from the south, and within a few minutes the structure was a furnace. The night shift was sleeping, many of them without a rag of clothing on their bodies, and these, suddenly awakened, found themselves encircled by fire.

No Chance to Fight; Just a Rout.

It is said by officials of the Jackson company that there was an adequate amount of fire apparatus in the place. But be it so, the men were too frenzied to make use of it even if the fire had not gained such headway as to make it useless. They simply rushed for the open air.

Naked and half clad men fell over each other and fought to get on the outside of the crib. There were only a few windows in the structure and these were jammed with men—many of them negroes—clawing and pulling at each other for a chance to jump into the lake and risk death by drowning rather than meet certain death by burning.

Some are said by their comrades to have jumped down the 180 foot shaft connecting with the tunnel under construction. The cables of the aerial tramway, communicating with the shore, speedily fell because of the fire and this slim chance of escape by means of the apparatus was cut off.

On the north side of the crib structure the earth and sand and stone from the well of the tunnel had been dumped into the thirty feet of water until it had piled eight feet or more above the surface of the water. This offered the first invitation to the frantic, naked men, who crowded the treacherous, slippery cone. But as the fire inside grew the strong south wind blew intolerable flames and heat upon them, driving them into the water.

Dozen Hang to Rope for Half Hour.

Those jumping into the water from the first floor escaped by the south door of the crib. The west door, near which the dynamite was lying, was shut off by a sheet of flame. Out of the door a heavy pulley rope was suspended and nearly a dozen men hung on it. Soon it burned off and the men dropped like logs into the ice floe filled water.

One succeeded in regaining a ladder leading from the door to the water, and tied the end of the rope to it, saving the lives of his companions. They hung there for half an hour with sheets of flame sweeping through the doorway above them and floes of ice bumping against them in the water.

Of the men who jumped from the second story window, some landed on blocks of ice and for a few minutes were safe. Others struck the water and by desperate swimming reached blocks of ice, on which they finally clambered after many unsuccessful attempts.

Eye Torn Out, but Swims Two Blocks.

Others crazy with fear started out to swim to shore a mile and a half away. One man struck out and finally was rescued clinging to the frame work of the aerial tramway two city blocks distant. He had swum the distance with one eye torn from its socket.

Several of the cakes of ice with human passengers floated from the south side of the crib around to the northwest corner, landing against the stone pile and forming a floe. One man coolly took from his pocket a steel tape line and throwing it to swimmers near at hand drew two of them to the cake of ice, and eventual safety.

The men who had jumped to the slippery stone pile were in as precarious a position as those in the water. Tongues of flames swept out over the water and the wind from off the lake carried them over the pile of stone.

The footing was slippery and the marooned stumbled and slid on to the cakes of ice, endangering the lives of those who were balancing themselves upon them.

Races Through Floes to Rescue.

The tug T. T. Morford, in the service of the Jackson company, was lying tied up to the Sixty-eighth street crib, half a mile away, when Capt. E. A. Johnson saw that the temporary crib was on fire. Smoke was pouring out of the sides.

"Cast off," he roared to his men, and rang "full speed ahead" to the engine room.

Holding the wheel in person, Capt. Johnson raced the Morford over the heaving water that intervened between the cribs, crashing through the four inch ice floes that almost lifted the tug out of the water. The crew of the tug uncoiled ropes and heaped on the deck boxes, kegs, and all other objects which promised support to a drowning man for even a few minutes.

Many in the Water.

As the tug neared the crib, the crew saw that the occupants of the structure were jumping into the water. Many of them had been sleeping naked and were in that condition in the water. Others were sliding down the heap of ice coated clay which was reared against the side of the structure. On the roof were negroes hanging to its edge, afraid to let go, and screaming at the top of their voices. One old man with a beard was kneeling naked on a block of ice, shouting for help. A dozen others were floating on ice, while less fortunate victims were struggling with rapidly numbing limbs in the water and about to sink. It is believed that a number of them did sink and that their bodies remained under water.

Scenes of Horror Greet Them.

"You fellows on the ice are all right," shouted the captain of the tugboat, as he passed them. "Hang on and we'll come back and get you."

Then the crew threw overboard the improvised life preservers and ropes and began hauling in the men from the water. One of the first to gain the deck was Supt. Thomas Matchin. Despite an ugly cut on the cheek, caused by a block of ice, he aided in the rescue of others. Timekeeper McDonald, cling-

LOOKING TO CAUSE; PLACING THE BLAME.

BY PETER M. HOFFMAN.

(Coroner of Cook County.)

I shall start an inquest over these bodies beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning at the South Chicago police station. I am not prepared as yet to make any statement placing the blame for this terrible accident. I shall push the inquiry to the limit, however, and endeavor to place the responsibility where it belongs.

In the morning the jury will be impaneled and after that there will be adjournment for purposes of working up the real investigation. In the afternoon I have called a meeting of all the relatives and friends of the victims to arrange for a general funeral.

After the funeral I shall begin the real investigation. Witnesses probably will be heard Saturday. The inquiry will last a week or ten days and will be as thorough and exhausting as I can make it.

At this inquiry I will have all survivors and all witnesses to the disaster that I can lay my hands on. At the present time I can offer no opinion as to the cause or the blame.

BY GEORGE W. JACKSON.

(Tunnel and crib builder.)

It was a most deplorable accident. As nearly as I can learn, the fire started in the dining room. When the blaze was discovered, some one shouted "Fire!" and immediately there was confusion. The men ran to places of exit, climbed out through the windows, and other means of egress.

There were seventy-nine men on the payroll the day before the accident. How many of these were working at the time the fire started I don't know at this time. There were only between 200 and 300 pounds of dynamite at the crib, that being about the quantity brought out on the aerial tramway for each day's work. Most of our dynamite is stored in a magazine built for that purpose on a pier on shore. In the shore magazine are stored from 1,800 to 2,000 pounds of the explosive.

We had taken every precaution as to safety and fire appliances to guard against fire, explosion, and accidents of all sorts. The aerial tramway really was built as a safety measure, for the safe transportation of the workmen, and for transporting dynamite from shore to the crib.

ing to a cake of ice, was so exhausted that he let go his hold on a cake of ice and sank, when safety was less than half a minute away.

Out of the terrible pictures in the minds of the rescuers one will stand out forever—the picture of a big negro who was hanging to the edge of the crib when the Morford approached. He could see the boat coming, but was unable to hang on until it reached the crib. When the rescuers were almost within reach a tongue of flame touched him and he fell to a watery grave.

Tug Captain Hears Explosion.

When the Morford approached the pier of the crib to take off a dozen men who had gathered at its end they shouted that the crib contained dynamite. At this moment Capt. Johnson said he heard an explosion which shook the crib, threw the men on the pier, and caused the Morford to rock like a chip.

The tug ran around the crib, picking up the straggling floaters, while the flames licked through the crevices of the crib and placed it in an envelope of flame.

Forty-seven men in varying degrees of nakedness and terror were on board the tug ten minutes after the crib had been reached. The boat was heavily overloaded and it was a manifest impossibility to take all the men to safety at once without almost certainly adding to the list of dead through exposure.

Rush Injured to the City.

When no more living remained in sight at the crib the tug was headed for the Sixty-ninth street crib, where eighteen of the slightly injured were landed.

At the Sixty-ninth street crib Mrs. Miller, wife of Capt. T. C. Miller, in charge of the city crib, and her niece, Miss Dorothy T. Barker, daughter of a fire department captain, had prepared hot coffee, tea, and food. The only stimulant available was a jug of wine.

When the tug pulled up to the crib the lesser injured were taken in to the furnace fires and the men at the crib and at work on the crib under construction supplied them with all available clothes.

Mrs. Miller emptied the wardrobe of her husband, who was ashore, and gave up every blanket and bit of bed clothing. She and her niece dressed the burns of those less seriously injured.

Lands the Injured; Speeds Back.

The Morford was soon tearing cityward with its cargo of maimed and injured.

Arrangements were made by telephone so that ambulances and blankets might be in waiting at the Wells street bridge. With every ounce of steam pounding the pistons the craft plowed up the river and under the bridges half an hour after leaving the crib.

A big crowd of spectators was kept back by the police while blankets were carried to the tug, and the victims were wrapped up. They were loaded into the ambulances as soon as possible and taken to the hospitals.

The Morford's nose was swung around, and, with the deck quaking over its powerful engines, the tug sped back to the Sixty-ninth street crib, where the other sufferers were waiting.

In the meantime other aid had been dispatched to the crib. Fire alarms had been responded to, and the fireboat Conway from South Chicago and the fireboat Illinois from the Chicago river had been dispatched by Fire Chief Horan. They soon had the flames under control.

Flames Stop Voice of Alarm.

When the fire was discovered a frenzied telephone message half finished was received at the George W. Jackson corporation's office ashore at the terminus of the aerial tramway:

"The crib is on fire. For God's sake send help at once or a dozen or more of us will be burned alive. The tug——"

Here the message had broken off, but it was enough to set the fire alarm in action. So, while the Morford was doing the initial work of rescue, fireboats were racing to the scene. The tugs L. C. Sabin and Rita McDonald followed closely. The tug Fred Drews of the Great Lakes Dredging and Dock company, chartered by THE TRIBUNE, arrived on the scene ahead of the Morford on the latter's afternoon trip.

While the fireboats poured water into the burning crib to extinguish the fire and cool down the ruins, the survivors who had been left temporarily at the Sixty-ninth street crib were carried to Chicago. Before the fire was quenched the firemen and volunteers began the grewsome task of hunting the dead.

Hero Dares Death in Shaft.

Into the heated mouth of the shaft, a crib worker named Rolson—a hero, every bit of him—was lowered with a lantern in the hope that some one might be found alive below. Rolson thought he heard two faint voices calling from the underground cavern for aid.

Plucky Rolson had not gone far when he signaled to be hauled up.

He was black from head to foot and in a fainting condition. When revived, Rolson gasped:

"My God, boys, it's so black down there with gas and soot that I couldn't see the light of my lantern. Nobody can live in that shaft for five minutes."

Manifestly there was no use in trying further attempts at rescue at that time. However, in what seemed a hopeless effort to save any unfortunates who might be imprisoned in the infernolike shaft, the air pumps were started at work without delay.

The pumps on shore were forcing compressed air into the tunnel and the hiss of its escape could be heard distinctly. But none conversant with crib work would hazard a guess that any workmen in the tunnel had survived.

Living Man Found in Tunnel.

But they were joyfully disappointed. By 4 o'clock the tunnel had been cleared so that George Curtis, master mechanic at the Sixty-eighth street crib, and William McIlhenny went down the shaft in a bucket.

In the tunnel near the shaft, close to the compressed air pipe, which had been pumping air to him all day, they found one man alive. He was hoisted to the surface and hurried to a hospital in South Chicago on the Morford. He was unconscious. The man's name is Nathan Fuldt. He is colored, 40 years old, and lives at 163 Twenty-fifth street.

Fifty feet down the shaft they found the second man dead from the effects of the foul air.

The discovery of the last body in the tunnel closed the work for the day, as it was already dark. The crews of the tugs and the city officials went to South Chicago and work was abandoned until this morning. It was said there was no possibility of any one else being alive in the crib or tunnels.

All the interior of the crib was burned and only the outer walls to the height of the first story remained standing. Little damage was done to the shaft or tunnels, according to casual inspection.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon, six hours after the start of the fire, the flames could be seen through apertures in the side of the crib burning brightly as they do in a hot brick kiln. But men were working in the top of the structure while grappling hooks were being dragged in the surrounding water by the firemen on the fireboats.

The Most Grewsome Task of All—Taking Away the Dead.

(Photographs taken by a TRIBUNE photographer.)

Putting the Bodies In Sacks.

Up in the top of that blackened tomb the timbers stood out in gauntness against the sullen sky. Water dripped from their charred sides as it falls from the burned trunks of half fallen trees in a fire swept pine woods. Smoke curled up lazily through the thick pad of soot and ashes in which the sentinel timbers seemed to be rooted, and with every breeze which stirred the ice capped water the searchers were beset with the sickening odor of charred flesh.

Death Visits Some in Sleep.

The firemen found many of the bodies in the ruins lying in attitudes which suggested that the burned workmen had failed to awake at the alarm which sent most of the men rushing madly for safety. Others were twisted and blackened, and in nearly every case the heads were missing.

The bodies were hauled from the pit of death and were "corded" like firewood on the top of the smoking ruin awaiting their removal by tugs to the slabs in undertakers' shops.

Clothing Completely Burned.

Search was made for means of identification, but clothing generally had been burned completely and any little pocket pieces or bit of jewelry that might have aided had either fallen into the ashes and become lost or were scattered so they could not be assigned to any one body. As a whole the condition of the bodies was much worse than in the Iroquois fire.

Coroner Hoffman remained at the Sixty-eighth street crib for almost two hours, planning the disposition of the bodies, before going finally to the burned crib to superintend their removal. Firemen mounted to the top of the pile with tarpaulins and transferred fragments which bore little resemblance to humanity to the tugs.

Horror Attends Every Step.

The most grewsome work of all the rescuing boats engaged in relief work at the fire fell to the city tug Sabin, which removed the dead bodies from the ruined crib.

Task a Ghastly One.

No work that could be assigned to human hands could exceed in horror this ghastly task. Everywhere in the fallen crevices of incinerated timbers these blackened, headless, armless, legless remnants of men lay, charred beyond hope of recognition.

When the workers in the ruins declared the last body possible had been heaped at the edge of the pile, the workers were taken aboard and a fast run made to the pumping station, where the worn, sickened men were landed. With half a dozen fresh workers the Sabin returned and the remaining eight or nine bodies—covered with the remnants of a scorched overcoat—were piled on the forward deck and the tug headed for the harbor of South Chicago.

Watchers Crowd Bridge and Banks.

The bridge at Ninety-second street was black with anxious watchers. The north shore of the river was banked by hundreds of spectators, crowded to the edge of the piers in spite of the efforts of the police to beat them back.

Inspector Hunt and officers of the South Chicago police station had prepared sacks and bundles of wide linen in which to wrap and bag these fragments of humanity. Attempting to tie up on the north bank of the river, the horrors of the work in hand within sight of these increasing crowds prompted Coroner Hoffman to order the boat swung over to the south shore, beyond reach of the curious.

Coroner Hoffman stationed himself in the bow of the tug, with Deputy David R. Jones at his side, holding paper and pencil in hand to check off the number of victims, which at that time the coroner could not have guessed.

Remnants Placed in Sacks.

"Make sure that each bag is filled with the complete trunk of a man," was the instruction of the coroner, and the tarpaulin covering the heap of uncounted dead was removed. The half dozen men working at the task lifted the first blackened portion of a corpse and dropped it into the sack held to receive it.

Deputy Jones made the first vertical line with his pencil upon the pad as victim No. 1.

"Give us a big bag," now and then was called out by the men delving into the pile of horrors. This when the burned torso was that of some large figure beyond the capacity of an ordinary bag. Two men, holding the open sack, would receive the remnant of the human body and as they moved around with it to the stern of the tug the deputy checked off another victim.

In all the bodies that were checked off, one by one, only two were intact sufficiently to prevent dumping into the receptacles. One of these, evidently that of a boy of 16 to 18 years, headless, but with an arm and leg still showing lines of a human form, was laid forward on the deck. Beside it was placed the other body—that of a powerful man whose stumps of arms and legs remained, a bar to entrance to a single bag.

These two bodies, with the fragments of others that had been picked up, were wound round and round with linen sheeting and tied to hide the horrors which they represented.

It was 5 o'clock before the last scrap of humanity was taken from the tarpaulins and the order given for the Sabin to swing over to the dock where patrol wagons had backed down to receive the ghastly freight.

"Get those boys back there!" was a command from Inspector Hunt as the Sabin swung into the dock. A dozen policemen moved upon the crowding hundreds, forcing them back from the wagons.

Hurriedly a wagon was filled with these nameless dead, and under whip of the driver rattled away to the receiving quarters prepared by Undertaker Murphy, who had been notified by Coroner Hoffman to make ready for them.

Hundreds Follow to Undertaker's.

Within thirty minutes after the tug touched the dock the last body had been carted away and the crowding hundreds had followed to the front of the undertaker's place in the Strand. Preparations had been made to care for fifty bodies by means of improvised tables and racks in the rear.

One of the sacks at the undertaking rooms contained seven charred skulls, while others contained nothing but limbs. All the bodies were packed into thirty-two sacks and tossed on the improvised tables in the undertaking room like bundles of clothing.

After the crowd had been dispersed, the fireboat Conway returned to the harbor with the body of a colored workman. His body is the only whole body which was recovered, and this will probably be the only one which will be identified, excepting the bodies of those who may have been drowned.

Under orders from Inspector Hunt, the police held back the crowd from the doors while the bodies were being carried in. It was difficult to keep the people from breaking into the place to satisfy their curiosity concerning the sacks which were carried in and tossed on the tables like bundles of clothing. There was a small proportion of women in the crowd around the undertaker's.

"What are we going to do about the people who will want to see the bodies for purposes of identification?" asked Inspector Hunt. "None of them can be identified and it is useless for anybody to look at them."

"Show one body to persistent inquirers and explain that all of them are in the same condition," responded the coroner. "We want the people to understand that we want the fullest publicity, but desire to avoid shocking people by such sights as this."

One Wife's Desperate Hope.

This impossibility of identification simplified the work of the police in keeping back the inquirers after missing friends and relatives.

"There is no hope of your knowing father, son, or brother," was the set reply of the police stationed at the doors.

One of these inquirers, turned away at last with some hope in her heart, was Mrs. John Connell, 486 Twenty-seventh street. She was almost hysterical as she appeared at the entrance.

"My husband had been at work there several weeks," she said between sobs. "On Monday he was not feeling well and staid at home. He was quite sick on Tuesday, but this morning he got up early, saying that he must go to work. I tried to persuade him to stay at home, but he left at 6 o'clock for the tunnel. I feel that he is at the bottom of it at this moment!"

She was persuaded at last by an officer to seek for her husband at one of the hospitals, the hope being held out that he might have been late in reaching the crib and thus escaped.

Wives, relatives, and friends of men believed to have lost their lives visited the undertaking rooms late at night and pleaded to be allowed to view the bodies, hoping to identify some of the remains. In accordance with the police instructions, however, their requests were refused by Murphy and they left the undertaking rooms.

Mrs. James Coles, 4636 Dearborn street, colored, whose husband is missing, said she believed her husband was dead, but that she was positive she could identify him. Friends of R. D. McDonald, 595 Kedzie avenue, believed to have been drowned, also asked to be allowed to try to identify him.

Mrs. James Mulholland, 8818 Superior avenue, wife of a missing worker, appeared and asked Murphy if he knew whether her husband survived. When he replied he did not know she left.

A brother of Charles Meyers, Forty-seventh street and Center avenue, when he appeared gave a list of the men he knew worked there. They were Edward Jennings, 768 Twenty-first street; John Mullaney, 180 West Eighteenth street; Edward Skinner, and a man of the name of Kelly.

Brother Moans in Perplexity.

Thomas Jennings of 768 Twenty-first street, a brother of Edward Jennings of the same address, who was a victim of the disaster, looked at the canvas bags, each with its mute but ghastly evidence of the catastrophe.

"O, poor brother! if I only knew which of those bodies was his I would have a bit of solace in my grief. O, this is terrible, terrible. But, thank God, I was not there on the crib today myself, for I had been working there and quit but a few days ago."

Relatives of John Schiefs, a laborer, Seventy-first street and South Chicago avenue, also appeared, and their request to try to identify the body was refused.

Worse than Iroquois Scenes.

The coroner was grave in his demeanor—very grave, indeed. Old associates said they had not seen him as much affected for many years.

"It is the ghastliest spectacle of my experience in the office of coroner," said Coroner Hoffman. "Nothing in the Iroquois theater fire compared with this. I hope I shall never be called upon to view another sight like it. There is no possible hope of identifying one of these bodies, while there was not one of the dead in the Iroquois fire that was not identified.

"These bodies must be disposed of without hope of friend or relative determining which of the dead is his. The work of interment must be done at once."

Tales of Survivors in Hospitals.

Stirring stories of fights with flames, blind leaps to the icy waters of the lake, of heroic rescues, and of desperate efforts to keep their positions on drifting ice floes, were told by survivors of the fire. Twenty-seven of the rescued were taken to the Illinois Medical hospital.

The majority of these men saved their lives by leaping to a large gravel pile, rising in the lake about ten feet from the crib, at the first warning of fire.

So great was the scramble for places on the one safe spot that many were pushed into the lake. A few of these men sunk before they could be helped back by companions, and in the excitement of the moment the survivors thought nothing of the drownings.

Of the dozens who jumped out of windows of their sleeping apartments into the lake only a few are known to have been rescued. Several of the half naked men succeeded in reaching ice floes, but owing to their unprotected condition the majority succumbed to cold and exposure before help could reach them. Others were unable to maintain their position on the ice, and with despairing cries slipped into the cold water and soon were lost to sight.

Survivors Bitter.

All of the survivors were bitter in their denunciation of the utter lack of protection. Many of them said they stood shivering on the gravel pile for what seemed half an hour before the tug Morford rescued them. Had the tug been within hearing distance of the crib, instead of a mile away, where the survivors said it was, a score of others would have been saved.

When the tug finally arrived at the fiery furnace the officers and crew did valiant service in picking up the chilled and scorched survivors. Plowing through the water within a safe distance from the spreading tongue of flame, the crew picked up perhaps half a dozen men battling for their lives in the heavy swell.

The men rescued by the tug were first taken to the Sixty-eighth street crib, where the more unfortunate were cared for and provided with clothing and blankets.

The tug then returned to the scene of the fire and affected other rescues. Three or four trips were made in this manner, and then the tug, loaded down with human freight, started for the dock at Wells street and the river. There patrol wagons and ambulances from the downtown and nearby police stations conveyed the injured men to the Illinois hospital.

At the Hospital.

At the hospital a large corps of physicians and nurses cared for the exhausted and burned men, and soon every one was attended to. The majority of the rescued men, suffering only from slight exposure to the cold water, were furnished with entire new outfits, both inner and outer wear, after which they left for their homes, many of them in the company of wives and sisters, who had hurried to the hospital at the first alarm.

Six of the more seriously injured remained at the hospital, where they were safe from all questioning by orders of the physicians.

Many survivors were found, however, who were willing to tell of their escapes. But when pressed for information as to the cause of the fire, whether there had been explosions, and other pointed questions affecting the company, they compressed their lips and said:

"We have been told not to talk to newspaper men and lawyers."

When the men had recovered from the first shock of the fire and had been fitted out in dry attire, they sat about the hospital swapping stories of their miraculous rescues.

Stories of Rescued.

"I was sleeping in my bunk when I was awakened by the cry of 'Fire!'" said Jack Wambold, 1010 West Fiftieth street.

"I smelled burning wood and I leaped from my bed and threw on some clothes. I rushed down the stairs, only to be blocked by flames, so, turning back, I leaped bodily through a window into the lake. I was benumbed almost as soon as I touched the water.

"I kept on, however, and I had just struck out for the gravel pile, when I heard some one behind me call my name. I turned just in time to see a friend of mine, named McDonald, sink."

Richard Charles Goggin, 25 years old, who is at the hospital suffering from two broken feet, exhaustion, and exposure also had a thrilling experience.

"It was about 8 o'clock when I saw a mass of flames envelop the crib," said Goggin. "I realized at once that there was but one chance of escape, and I took it. I leaped into the water and after swimming around for awhile I managed to crawl upon an ice floe. My fingers were so numbed I could hardly hold on to the ice, and to add to my horror I felt an awful pain in my two feet. I realized then that I had injured them in the jump.

"But I forgot my pain in my attempts to retain my hold on the ice as it rose and fell in the water. Half the time I was under the water, and in the short time I was awaiting rescue I saw at least nine men go down. The tugboat rescued me none too soon, for I believe I could not have held on another five minutes."

Here One Week.

Charles McDermott, another of the rescued employés, told a similar story of flight from the burning crib, an icy bath, and rescue.

"I came from New York City only a week ago," said McDermott, "and went to work at the crib. I was working nights, and had just gone to my room to sleep when I heard the alarm of fire. I had on my undershirt and trousers. I looked out of the room, and all I saw was a flash and then a big sheet of flame.

"I knew my only chance was the lake, and without hesitation I leaped through a window into the water. I was chilled to the bone, but somehow managed to climb on to an ice floe, from which after what seemed a century of terror and waiting I was rescued by the tug people."

Frank Pryor, a nipper, or pipe fitter, and a member of the day force who was saved by leaping to the gravel pile, in recounting his experience after he had left the hospital said he believed he was about the only white member of the day force that had been saved. Pryor, who had been employed at the crib four months, knew the majority of white men working at the tunnel. He gave the name of man after man of his gang who he said had perished.

Crib a Furnace.

"I was just preparing to go down the shaft to begin the day's work," said Pryor, "when I heard some one shout 'Fire!' As I looked around the entire crib seemed a blazing furnace. Thinking of the gravel pile, I ran outside the door and leaped.

"The pile was already crowded with men struggling desperately to retain their places on the life preserver. I reached it in safety and looked around to see if any others were following me. But in the entire time I waited for the tug I did not see another man leave the crib."

Robert Jeffries, colored, one of the survivors, told of having had a vision two weeks ago in which the crib and all its men had been destroyed by a huge wave. He quit his position, but returned after several days.

ONE BIG FUNERAL FOR ALL VICTIMS.

Coroner Plans to Have All the Bodies in Crib Disaster Buried at Once.

CONTRACTOR WILL PAY.

Jackson Volunteers All Expenses and Care for Injured; Inquest at Once.

Coroner Peter M. Hoffman, after viewing the scene of the crib disaster yesterday afternoon, made arrangements for one great funeral of the forty-seven victims.

Fourteen undertakers gathered about the dead, but George W. Jackson, president of the contracting company, said he would arrange for all funeral expenses besides caring for the injured workmen.

The coroner immediately called a conference in the office of Capt. John J. Halpin in the South Chicago police station to make preliminary arrangements for the care for the dead, burial of the bodies, and to investigate the cause of the calamity.

It was decided to bury all the forty-seven dead bodies on the same day in a plot of ground to be purchased by Mr. Jackson. This funeral procession, with its forty-seven hearses, each conveying a body, attended by hundreds of relatives and thousands of sympathetic spectators, will be the largest public burial in the history of South Chicago and will be held Saturday afternoon.

Will Provide Burial.

Mr. Jackson, although ill, remained throughout the meeting and declared he would shoulder all the funeral expenses and the cost of caring for the injured workmen.

At the conclusion of the conference Coroner Hoffman gave out the following statement:

"We have met here first of all to prepare for the decent burial of the unfortunate workingmen who lost their lives. Preparations for notifying all the known relatives and friends of the dead also were discussed. Through the offer of Mr. Jackson all the bodies recovered will be given a decent burial, he having opened negotiations for a burial plot where the interment of the bodies will take place.

"We will consult with the relatives of the dead so as to make proper arrangements for the various religious ceremonies to be held over the victims of the disaster according to their various beliefs.

Confer with Relatives.

"A conference with the relatives of the deceased will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the South Chicago police courtrooms, where definite arrangements can be made and preparations for a sufficient number of priests and ministers to preach funeral services over the dead."

"After the funeral, which I anticipate will take place Friday, I shall begin the real investigation. Witnesses probably will be heard Saturday. The inquiry will last a week or ten days and will be as thorough and exhausting as I can make it.

"At this inquiry I will have all survivors and all witnesses to the disaster that I can lay my hands on. At the present time I can offer no opinion as to the cause or the blame. I have worked in bringing relief to those who were injured today and have given little thought to the investigation. The men who came out alive were too badly frightened to give any statements of value."

City Engineer's Idea.

City Engineer Ericson gave it as his opinion that the blame for the fire must rest upon some employé, probably one of the victims, who in some way carelessly ignited the powder in the powder room.

"From all the evidence at hand, and from the suddenness with which the blaze spread," said Mr. Ericson, "I think some one must have set fire to the powder room. No one had time to take any ordinary safeguard for life.

"The chief inspector, Richard Goggin, had a life preserver in his bunk, but he said that he did not have time to use it. All he could do was to fall out of a window into the lake.

"From my brief investigation it looked as though all possible precautions against fire had been taken. There were fire pumps and hose leads in all parts of the crib. The crib was one of the largest and best that ever has been constructed.

"The fire came so suddenly that the men could think of nothing. I had my two divers on the spot as soon as possible. One diver went into the shaft to rescue the men still there. He found that the air pipe connecting the shaft with the shore had been broken, cutting off the supply of fresh air in the shaft. He was taken up nearly unconscious, but said that he was sure he heard the moaning of men down there. I immediately ordered the air pipe connected up and ordered two divers to remain in the shaft until the men down there were rescued."

Funeral Plans.

Coroner Hoffman has called a meeting of undertakers to make preparations for the burial of the dead. At the suggestion of the coroner Assistant Chief Schuettler appointed James Markham, secretary of the police department, to have charge of the undertakers and the funeral arrangements.

Markham then adjourned the conference until 10 o'clock this morning.

According to present arrangements the great funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon.

The coroner states he will begin an inquest at 10 o'clock this morning at the South Chicago police station. He said:

"The jury will be impaneled and afterward there will be an adjournment from day to day, possibly for ten days, until all the evidence is gathered.

"I am not prepared as yet to make any statement fixing the blame, but I shall push the inquiry to the limit.

Two Explosions.

Edward Skinner was one of the survivors whom the coroner saw. He escaped with burns on his hands and face, said he was hurled to the floor when the explosion occured, and that he saw over a dozen other men lying about him.

"It all occurred so suddenly that I did not realize what had happened until I found myself struggling to keep from going under the cakes of ice in the lake," said Skinner.

"I was walking near the powder storeroom when all of a sudden there was an awful roar and I felt the building shake from top to bottom. I started to run for the water but I had not gone far when there was a second roar and I was hurled against the floor.

"I managed to get up, but I saw a dozen or so others scrambling on the floor. I managed to get out before the flames reached me. The smoke was so thick I could scarcely see. The heat was something awful. I knew it meant certain death to remain, so I plunged into the lake.

"I landed between the ice cakes and had a hard struggle to keep from going under them. I was in the water only a few seconds when I saw others jumping into the water from the burning crib.

"There was a fog over the lake at the time and it was dark and gloomy. I must have been in the water for a long time when the tug came to the rescue. Some one threw out a rope and I caught it and pulled myself in. Others got into the tug after me in the same way."

Saves Himself, Turns Rescuer.

Thomas Matson, superintedent of the sixty-eighth street crib, a giant Scandinavian, was asleep when the alarm of fire awoke him, with not even a nightshirt on his back. He slipped into his trousers and with his suspenders trailing leaped for the deck of the Morford. Instantly, bare as he was to the wind and spray of the icy lake, he turned rescuer of his fellows. With his feet locked around a stanchion and leaning far over the icy rail of the tug, he extended hands, right and left, to five men struggling in the water.

Three of these men, swimming, seized his right hand and arm and two grasped at the left, struggling frantically. Only Matson's giant strength and preparation for the strain prevented him from going overboard. Two deck hands ran to his assistance and the five men were pulled safely on board.

SAVED FROM LAKE AND FIRE BY TUGBOAT MORFORD.

Many Workmen Rescued by Capt. Johnson and His Crew—Struggle in Icy Water to Reach Boat.

Gallant and hazardous rescues were accomplished by the crew of the tug Morford, which was lying off Seventy-third street when the catastrophe occurred. The members of the crew are: Edward A. Johnson, captain; Herbert Anderson, first mate; John Williams, second mate; John Langdon, engineer, and William McDonald, pilot.

As the tug was returning to the city with its load of workmen, who had been rescued either from the edges of the burning crib or from the icy water, Capt. Johnson gave the story of the rescue.

"The tug was going towards the crib at Sixty-eight street, about 8 o'clock," he said, "when I noticed smoke coming from it. We were about four minutes away. I thought it strange that smoke should be coming from the crib in such large quantities and I signaled the engineer to send the tug along at full speed.

"When I neared the crib I saw a number of the men, their clothing ablaze, run towards the end and jump into the lake. Others rapidly twisted ropes about anything they could find and jumped into the water to prevent being burned alive. Others picked up boxes or whatever they could find and jumped into the lake. Many others huddled about a corner of the crib out of the way of the flames.

"Those four minutes were the longest I have ever experienced. The tug never seemed to move so slowly before, and it is credited with being one of the speediest little tugs in these waters.

Throws Out the Rope.

"When we got within fifty feet of the crib I slowed down the engines and we began throwing out ropes and life belts to the men in the water. The cold, icy water caused them much suffering and some of them would have drowned sure if we had not reached over and dragged them in.

"One of my crew—I don't just recall who it was—fell in while reaching out for one of the men."

At this point Capt. Johnson stopped to signal for the Wells street bridge to open. He is little more than 35 years old and has been captain on the lakes for ten years. He was somewhat backward in talking of himself, and when he said he "didn't do anything much" Carl Hillstrom, one of the firemen, broke in and said that Capt. Johnson saved five men at the peril of his own life.

Rescued Men Almost Frozen.

"I reached over and helped one or two of the poor fellows into the boat," Johnson began again. "They were almost froze through, and we rushed them down into the little boiler room.

"We were picking up these men as fast as we could, all the time drifting towards the crib. About a dozen or more were on the crib yelling for us to hurry and take them off. They seemed to have gone crazy with fear. Some one shouted something about there being a lot of dynamite and fearing that it would explode. We ran around the crib once and picked up those who were hanging on the end of ropes.

Paralyzed with Fear.

"When the boat touched the crib some of the men jumped on the tug, but others seemed to be too afraid to do anything. I had to jump out and almost throw them in the tug. Others were lying around suffering from burns. Still others were crawling out from different parts of the crib, their clothes ablaze.

"It seemed hard on one poor old fellow to throw him into the lake to put out the fire on his clothes. But it wasn't a time to figure on anybody's feelings—it was a question of helping as many as we could. This old fellow yelled like he was dying when he was tossed in the water. But we soon dragged him out and shoved him into the boiler room. We did what we could for the injured.

"While I was poking around on the pier there was an explosion—I suppose it was dynamite. This shook the crib and tossed the tug around like a chip. I ran and jumped on the tug and we backed off a way. When another explosion came and we could see no more injured we turned and came into the river at full speed.

"We took off something like twenty-six men. I don't know whether any were drowned or not. We made a pretty careful search, but found no bodies."

USES OF THE FATAL "CRIB."

Built to Accommodate Ninety Men and to Protect a Shaft Being Driven.

The "intermediate crib" is a temporary structure, intended only for use in the construction of the tunnel, and was to have been taken out when the tunnel was completed.

The permanent crib, which was to serve as the intake of the tunnel, was farther out in the lake. It was completed last August and has been awaiting the completion of the tunnel before being put in commission. It is a stone and steel structure.

This temporary crib was made of wood, made strong enough to withstand the waves and ice, but in no sense fireproof. It contained sleeping and eating accommodations for ninety men, room for the storage of material, and that was about all. As a rule there were eighty men employed there, divided into three shifts, and work went on night and day.

Protected a Shaft.

The crib protected a shaft which went down through the water and sand into the bed rock through which the tunnel was being blasted. At the bottom of this shaft the tunnel was being bored in two directions, one toward the shore, the other toward the permanent crib, which was to be the lake end of the tunnel.

This tunnel had been completed 400 feet toward the shore and 200 feet lakeward. Another bore had been started at Seventy-third street and Bond avenue, which is the shore end of the tunnel, and it had been extended 2,500 feet. The total length of the tunnel under the lake when completed will be 12,180 feet.

The crib destroyed was a six sided structure, eighty-eight feet between parallel sides. The water where it was placed is only thirty-five feet deep, and the crib was constructed on shore, towed out to its site, and weighted and sunk until it rested on the bottom. Then the shaft was sunk 100 feet until it reached the proper depth in the bed rock.

Aerial Tramway.

Engineer George W. Jackson devised an aerial tramway as a means of communication between the crib and the shore. It was necessary on account of the impossibility of landing on the shore in bad weather.

It was a series of steel supports, a fixed distant apart, carrying a cable, over which ran a traveler supporting a basket. This basket would carry four men or a proportionate amount of material.

Just a year ago the ice destroyed this tramway by carrying away some of the supports, and it cost the contractors $40,000 to renew it. The total cost of the tunnel was estimated at $1,500,000.

Strictly speaking, the proper number of the drift where the tragedy occurred was "23." But among the workmen employed in this work "23" is considered as much of a "hoodoo" as "13," and nobody could have been found to work on such a numbered job. So, in deference to this superstition, the tunnel leading toward the shore was called "Drift 22" and the other "Drift 24." The number "23" was carefully avoided.

FAIL TO FIND MEN ON ICE FLOE.

Tug Firemen Make Futile Search Following Report Made by Street Car Conductor.

A report that five men were seen clinging to a cake of ice in the lake off Thirty-first street caused the fire tug Illinois to make a fruitless search in that vicinity last evening.

The Deering street police were notified by a street car conductor that he saw five men struggling on the ice a mile off shore. The police in turn notified the fire alarm office.

The fire fighting craft made a hurried trip and searched for more than an hour, but was unable to find any traces of the supposed survivors. The firemen on the boat believe the street car man was mistaken.

WOE TO HOPKINS IN FIVE BALLOTS.

His Strength Slumps from Eighty-nine to Eighty-four Votes in Session.

LORIMER POWER SHOWN.

Deneen and Shurtleff, Both Possibilities, Deny They Want the Place.

week, and it is one plan, not yet fully considered, to take an adjournment tomorrow until Monday or Tuesday.

There has been some fear that the Democrats would get away and join the Hopkins forces, but it is proposed, the moment a Democrat votes for Mr. Hopkins, to break up the joint session under the gavel of Speaker Shurtleff and Lieut. Gov. Oglesby, and then find out just why the minority party men wish to desert their own candidate, Lawrence Stringer. With this protection Mr. Hopkins' enemies are not afraid to permit the legislators to go to their separate homes.

The senator has not abandoned hope by any means, being still the high man and the only avowed candidate who has much chance of election, Mr. Shurtleff not being regarded yet as an "avowed" candidate.

The roundup of Hopkins followers called to sign the agreement to vote for the senator to the last ditch was held at Hotel Silas. The meeting which started in with an attendance of 53, but dwindled down to 31, was characterized by determination, if not by enthusiasm.

Hopkins Tells Solons Duty.

Senator Hopkins himself was on the job and working hard to start some excitement. He made the principal speech—in fact, several speechs, all of them setting forth with more or less wealth of the detail the duty of Republican members of legislature as to himself. He took up the primary law and discussed it at length and it was found that the senator was strongly in favor of the selection of candidates by a direct vote of the people.

He always had been for the primary law, the senator said, and he recalled that he had pledged himself previous to the primary that he would abide by the result and recognize the winner of the plurality vote as the candidate for senator. Some of the legislators in attendance could not recall this fact, as did Mr. Hopkins, but the senator's word was not disputed.

Mr. Hopkins then went on to prove by circumstantial evidence that he was the really truly candidate of the Republican party for senator. If he had not been considered the candidate, he reminded the assemblymen, he would not have been assessed by the Republican state central committee to the tune of the amount usually demanded of senatorial candidates as a contribution to campaign assessments. Had Mr. Foss been assessed? No. Had Mr. Mason been assessed? No. Therefore they were not candidates and therefore he was.

Senator's Relatives Are Scouts.

Senator Gardner presided at the conference, while United States Marshal C. P. Hitch acted as floor manager. The senator's son, Albert J. Hopkins Jr., and John Peffers, the senator's son-in-law, were constituted scouts.

After the senator had made two speeches one or two legislators were emboldened to speak out. One of them made an affecting appeal, calling upon their fellow statesmen to disregard their personal likes and dislikes and support Hopkins as the candidate of the party.

After what was considered a fair amount of enthusiasm had been aroused, Senator Gardner produced a sheet of paper and invited the members to step forward and sign the "last ditch" agreement. The senator set the example by affixing his own signature, and then held the pen temptingly forward to the front row of the audience.

Senators Dunlap, Curtis, Ettelson, Humphrey, McKenzie, and several other members of the upper house went forward and signed with the flourish. They were followed by members of the house and some more senators.

Tendency to Bolt Grows.

At this juncture a tendency to bolt the last ditch conference became noticeable. The members were slipping out of the door without signing the agreement. Marshal Hitch attempted to steam the retiring tide, but in vain. Fully one-third of the original gathering refused to enter into the agreement and hurried from the room.

Senator Gardner, after the breaking up of the conference, refused to give out the list of names on the agreement or even divulge the exact number. It was reported that only thirty-one actually had appended their signatures and this Mr. Gardner refused to affirm or deny. It was admitted that a resolution had been passed providing that a majority of the signers could release the Hopkins men from their instructions at any time, thus leaving the senator's fate in the hands of sixteen men.

As compared with the senator's original claim of a strength of 116 men, this showing was regarded by his opponents as pitifully weak. His friends, however, triumphantly declared the conference and the signing up of a binding agreement constituted the strongest move he had made since the fight started.

Patronage Row Loses Four.

A little row over patronage resulted in a deflection from the Hopkins ranks of four statesmen from the Forty-fourth and Fiftieth senatorial districts. Representative Kirkpatrick signed, but Senators Potter and McElvain and Representatives Crawford and Stevenson refused.

It appears that Dan Hogan of Mound City, who is clerk of the United States District court at Danville, was a stumbling block in this situation. The statesmen from this territory are not content with Mr. Hogan. They would prefer to have Senator Potter in Mr. Hogan's official position, and they so informed Senator Hopkins. The senator received them frostily, it is said, when it was proposed to oust Mr. Hogan, and the upshot was that the statesmen refused to go along any farther with the Hopkins candidacy. They will rally around the Rodenberg of freedom.

After the breaking up of the conference Senator Gardner fared forthwith his little list and a fountain pen in search of more signers. At midnight, however, it appeared that he had met with little success. At that hour it was difficult to discover many members and those on the scene proved elusive.

Roger C. Calmly Watches.

There was none of the pleasing pomp of war about the joint balloting, no oratory, no tributes to the virtues of those who were about to go to the mat, nothing but a simple announcement from Speaker Shurtleff that the hour of the joint session had arrived and that the secretary of the senate would call the roll of the senate.

At the east side of the hall, tucked away in a group of Democratic statesmen, sat Roger C. Sullivan, state chairman Boeschenstein, and George Brennan, whose duty it is to sit on the lid and keep Democratic votes from getting out from under.

Mr. Sullivan wore a becoming air of heavy gravity and Mr. Brennan one of peaceful solemnity. On the other side of the hall was Congressman William Lorimer, childlike and bland, with a white tie tucked away under his amiable chin and with the odor of sanctity and good works about him.

Mr. Lorimer's whole aspect was that of a man whose mind was occupied by thoughts of the higher life. He was so completely innocent and kindly in appearance that he suggested nothing more inimical to the peace of all men than would be suggested by a sweet faced, plump man picking violets in the pleasant groves in the early morning.

Mr. Lorimer fairly exuded pleasantness. Mr. Shurtleff wore his celebrated "poker face," in the adamantine surface of which emotions seldom leave a scratch. Behind Mr. Shurtleff sat ex-Gov. Richard Yates, composing himself to bear up under the blow of any misfortune which might come to Mr. Hopkins.

Bravely Meet Solemn Duty.

These pleasant men with their innocent appearance were assembled for a solemn duty. Mr. Lorimer and Mr. Yates had made Mr. Hopkins United States senator six years before when Mr. Yates was governor, and when Mr. Lorimer was a greater authority in Cook county than he is now. Two years later Mr. Lorimer helped unmake Mr. Yates as governor. The company which first had been Lorimer-Yates-Hopkins was reorganized, and Mr. Yates' name came off the office window. It then was Lorimer and Hopkins.

Mr. Yates found himself vastly displeased with Mr. Lorimer, but dangerously near hating Mr. Hopkins. Two years later the firm of Lorimer and Hopkins helped to unmake Mr. Yates as a candidate for the United States senate and Mr. Yates knew he disliked Mr. Lorimer and was still more fearful that he hated Mr. Hopkins.

Last year there was an opportunity for the reëstablishment of the old firm of Lorimer, Yates, and Hopkins. Mr. Lorimer and Mr. Yates having found a common cause in the attempt to defeat Gov. Deneen and there being a place for Mr. Hopkins in the affections of the former governor. Mr. Hopkins may have been tempted, but the aid which the new firm of Lorimer and Yates expected did not come from him. If it had been forthcoming it is likely the governor recently inaugurated would have been named Richard Yates.

Lorimer a Good Tactician.

The brief restatement of well known facts may serve to show the state of mind in which the bland and childlike Mr. Lorimer and the composed Mr. Yates, with Mr. Shurtleff and Sullivan, their allies, sat down to observe the progress of the balloting in which the fate of Albert J. Hopkins was held.

In the matter of pure generalship the palm may be given to Congressman William Lorimer. To produce the situation which faced the assembly as it sat down in joint session to elect Mr. Hopkins or his successor, Mr. Lorimer had to use the fag ends of material left from the primary contest.

He was against the federal organization of the state. Ostensibly, at least, he was against the governor and the state organization. He had as allies the remnants of the Yates organization, his own personal following in Cook county, a small section of the band of hope which was instructed for other candidates than Hopkins, and he had the assurance of the Democratic leaders that Democratic votes would not be allowed to interfere with his program.

He had as one of his principal allies, and as the most useful, the newly elected speaker of the house backed by the old house organization. With such support he set out to produce a deadlock as the first necessary step toward the defeat of Albert J. Hopkins, and what happened as the secretary of the senate and the clerk of the house proceeded to call the roll in the five futile ballots taken this afternoon proved how well he had succeeded.

Deeds Done by Blond One.

He had met every stratagem which the Hopkins men had devised to swell their vote to the required majority. He had solidified his forces, although without a candidate, into a compact body, capable of dividing its vote among numerous candidates without destroying its interest greatly as an opposition to one.

In positive action the Lorimer votes were scattered, in negative action they were as one. They were for many candidates. They were against one. With the assurance that Roger Sullivan and the Democratic leaders had the lid on the Democrats and with the assurance that Senator Hopkins, in spite of his strongest efforts, had not been able to master the vote, Mr. Lorimer remained childlike and bland as the secretary of the senate and the clerk of the house called the roll.

He had watched complacently the efforts of Mayor Busse to get votes into line for the senator, the mayor having come down from Chicago in the morning and having used his influence in behalf of Mr. Hopkins. He and his allies knew that the deadlock had been established before the result of the first ballot was announced.

Secretary Paddock called the roll of the senate, which gave Hopkins 31, Foss 4, Mason 1, Shurtleff 1, and Stringer 13. Clerk McCann called the roll of the house, which gave Hopkins 58, Foss 12, Mason 5, Shurtleff 11, and Stringer 63.

Shurtleff Dodges Mooted Point.

Mr. Shurtleff, in announcing the result, avoided one of the mooted questions involved in the attempt at an election. He declared none of the candidates had received "either a constitutional majority or a majority of those present and voting."

Some time it may be necessary for Shurtleff to make a ruling to decide whether it requires a majority of those present and voting or a majority of all elected members for the election of a United States senator. It is probable he will hold that a constitutional majority is required, but he avoided the issue by the form in which he announced the result.

Another ballot was taken, with no change in the senate. In the house on this vote Hopkins lost two, Representative Brownback voting for Congressman William B. McKinley and Representative Campbell being absent from the hall. The latter had asked to have his vote recorded for Mr. Hopkins at the beginning of the first ballot, being obliged to depart, and was not present for the subsequent roll call.

Lantz Turned Down Hard.

As Mr. Paddock began the third call of the senate Representative Lantz on the minority side endeavored to secure recognition for the presentation of a resolution. Mr. Shurtleff endeavored to ascertain its character, but Lantz was ambiguous in his explanations, saying it referred to business which properly might come before a joint session and adding that his motion was for a suspension of the order of business temporarily for the consideration of his proposition.

Mr. Shurtleff sized Mr. Lantz up for a half minute and evidently concluded that it would not do. Mr. Sullivan momentarily dropped a bit of his becoming gravity and observed Mr. Lantz wonderingly. The speaker ruled Mr. Lantz' resolution, whatever it might be, would not be proper matter to consider. Mr. Lantz endeavored to show Mr. Shurtleff that he was wrong. Mr. Shurtleff became peremptory.

"The resolution is out of order and the gentleman is out of order," he said.

Mr. Lantz grinned and started to make an appeal from the ruling, but reconsidered and sat down. Representative Hruby galloped to the rescue of his colleague, but Mr. Shurtleff used the gavel, and Paddock proceeded to call the roll.

Lantz Gives Sullivan Secret.

While the third ballot was in progress Mr. Sullivan had conversation with Mr. Lantz, and an expression of relief went over his face. Mr. Lantz explained that his resolution was the Democratic resolution for a recount of the governorship ballots, a little document which makes the alarmed senate feel unsafe in the hall of the alarming house.

Whether Mr. Shurtleff knew it was this, or thought it was something else, he was convinced it was nothing with which the legislature cared to daily at that moment, and the alarmed senate is beginning to believe it may have done the speaker some injustice in its suspicions.

While Mr. Paddock was calling the senate end of the third roll Representative Chiperfield was given a tip that messages from Senator Hopkins were being delivered to members in the hall, and he arose to comment on the fact that means were being taken to influence legislators and to demand that the floor be cleared of persons not members of the assembly.

This was an embarrassing proposition for the speaker, who could see the innocent and bland countenance of Mr. Lorimer, the grave countenance of Mr. Sullivan, the solemn countenance of Mr. Brennan, the jovial countenance of Mr. Boeschenstein, and countenances of various dignitaries, both Republican and Democratic, among those present.

Shurtleff Rebukes Note Passers.

"There are persons in the hall," said the embarrassed Mr. Shurtleff, "whom the chair does not like to have asked to leave. If there are no objections the chair will restrict its order to demanding that all attempts to interfere with the business of the session cease."

This was satisfactory to Mr. Chiperfield and the third roll call was completed in peace. It was on this ballot that Congressman Lowden broke into the running. Representative Gillespie, a Hopkins man, started it, being followed by Lawrence, Reynolds, Rigney, and Ton. The votes of Lawrence and Rigney were taken away from Hopkins. Ton's came from Mason, and Reynolds' from Foss.

On the remaining two ballots, as on the first three, the senate remained unbroken. Senator Curtis was prepared at any propitious moment to throw the name of Gov. Deneen into the pot, but the plan being to establish a "real" deadlock before such an attempt is made, he restrained himself.

The house vote showed small and unimportant changes on the fourth and fifth ballots. Representative Hilton, Democrat, added Lee O'Neil Browne's name to the list on the fourth, but went back to Stringer on the fifth, this being the only departure from the straight forward path so far as the Democracy was concerned. Speaker Shurtleff's vote stuck at 12, one in the senate and eleven in the house, throughout the balloting.

Before the fifth ballot was taken Mr. Shurtleff said that it had been suggested that the joint session "arise" after it had taken five ballots and at the conclusion of the fifth call a recess was taken until tomorrow noon.

As the legislators filed out of the hall Mr. Shurtleff allowed his "poker face" to melt just for one brief moment while a smile curled up around his ears and a few of the most vigorous anti-Hopkins men gave an indecorous whoop of joy.

Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Brennan allowed their good humor to shine in their faces and Mr. Yates looked as if he thought it would not be proper to laugh.

Senator Corbus P. Gardner, a member of the Hopkins campaign committee, for an instant wore an expression as if he had thought of something bitter and swallowed it but then shook himself and permitted his natural good nature and optimism to shine forth again.

The United States officials and the friends of Mr. Hopkins, who had hoped against hope that they had enough votes, wended their way with chastened look and subdued bearing to the senator's headquarters in the St. Nicholas hotel.

A perfectly workable deadlock had been established, but Congressman William Lorimer, with the white tie tucked away under his amiable chin, remained child like and bland, innocent and undesigning, unfamiliar with the stratagems and strifes of men—again the picture of a nice, plump man who would have been picking violets in the shady groves if there had not been two inches of snow on the ground.

BOARD OF CONTROL FOR STATE WARDS

Bill Proposes Three Men, Selected by Governor, Take Charge of Institutions.

REFORM BORN IN SENATE.

Present Charities Body to Be Retained in Advisory Capacity, Measure Provides.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Reforms of the management of the twenty state penal, corrective, and charitable institutions are aimed at in two bills introduced today in the senate and another that is due tomorrow. All of them are the outcome of the various investigations undertaken by the legislature during the last year.

The result of an inquiry made by a committee of the senate is a bill prepared by its chairman, former Senator Berry, which provides for a dual management of all the institutions, including the penitentiaries and reform school, by a board of financial managers to look after the physical administration and a commission of charities to carry out the methods of cure and correction.

Board of Complete Control.

Another bill drafted by the state board of charities which will be introduced tomorrow provides for a board of complete control of all functions of the institutions. The board of charities, increased to seven members, is retained in an advisory capacity.

The board of charities measure, which will be known as the administration bill, and the Berry bill are alike in almost all their provisions. The administration bill puts the institutions under the authority of a single board and the Berry bill provides two boards of independent powers. The choice between these plans or the combination of the two is up to the legislature.

Provisions of the Berry Bill.

The principal provisions of the Berry bill are:

The governor shall appoint a board of three members, to be known as the board of financial managers of the state charitable, penal, and corrective institutions, which shall have full financial and administrative control of such institutions. The members shall be appointed for a term of five years at a salary of $5,000 a year each and traveling expenses not exceeding $2,000.

One of the members shall be selected from the minority political party, and none of the members shall hold any other public office.

The board shall succeed and replace all the boards of trustees and managers now controlling such institutions.

Each institution shall be visited at least once each quarter by a member of the board, who will have power to examine all records and methods of management. The board shall confer annually with the superintendents of the institutions on methods of management.

The state treasurer shall receive and disburse all moneys appropriated to the institutions or accruing therefrom.

Included in Administration Bill.

The administration bill includes the following provisions:

The state charitable, penal, and corrective institutions shall be governed by a board of three members appointed by the governor and compensated by a salary of $7,500 a year.

The present boards of trustees are abolished and the entire administration of the institutions lodged in the board of control, the financial administration being delegated to a fiscal supervisor employed by the board at a salary of $10,000 a year.

For the purpose of visitation, inspection, and recommendation the present board of charities is retained with its advisory but not administrative duties.

All supplies for the institutions shall be purchased under direction of a board of estimate composed of the superintendents, the fiscal supervisor, and a committee of the board of control.

Asks a Constitutional Convention.

Just before the adjournment of the senate Mr. Curtis introduced a resolution framed by the Legislative Voters' league urging the calling of a constitutional convention for the revision of the state's present constitution.

The resolution recited the pressing need of numerous amendments to the scheme of government, only one of which may be submitted to the people each year.

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, obtained by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially, and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy, and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

FIST DUEL FOUGHT BY ARNOLD DALY.

HEED PRIZE RING RULES.

Knockout Blow Is Delivered in Third Round of Bout Held at Sherman House.

Those persons who frequent the College Inn and other places of cheer after the stages and foyers alike have been emptied were regaled last night with something really unique in the way of "a little discussion" between an actor and his stage manager.

The only sad feature about the affair to them was the fact that only a select coterie was awarded the opportunity of actually feasting its optics on the delectable spectacle of the parties to the discussion while they were trying to arrive at a conclusion by means of a fistic contest conducted according to thoroughly approved ethics of the prize ring.

The principals in the little "affair of honor" were none other than Arnold Daly and his stage manager, Hamilton Mott. That is to say, Mr. Mott was Mr. Daly's stage manager until yesterday morning, when he was "fired."

Challenge Issued and Accepted.

Mr. Mott, so the story runs, took umbrage at the manner in which his emotional employer got rid of him and said some things. Mr. Daly also said some things with the result that Mr. Mott, according to the chroniclers of the affair, was invited to combat Mr. Daly "any time, any place, and in any way, here or in the alley." Or perhaps this feature was the other way around.

Anyway Mr. Mott gallantly told Mr. Daly that inasmuch as the latter had a matinee for the afternoon and another performance to give at night, it would be a pity to have his face marred without a whole day ahead of him for repairs. He said he would meet Mr. Daly after the evening performance.

The room of Emmett Corrigan, 524 Sherman house, was chosen as the place in which to settle the discussion. Mr. Corrigan acted as second to Mr. Mott and Ambrose ("Musty") Miller, seconded Mr. Daly.

The door was locked and Mr. Daly and Mr. Mott stripped for action. The men "mixed" in fine shape, 'tis said, and twice retired to their corners to have their faces sponged. Then came the third round.

Mr. Daly "Gets His."

Whether it came by way of the chin or above the heart is not stated, but Mr. Daly "got his" in some way. A rumor that it was in the face cannot be verified or discredited until he appears today.

House Physician John A. Kavanaugh of the Sherman house was summoned to room 524 and told to bring his Red Cross outfit with him. He answered the call and staid a long time distributing sutures, stitches, and other professional ornaments over Mr. Daly's cuticle.

Friends of Mr. Daly explained to visitors that a "card party" was going on, but kept the door half closed. Mr. Mott, having finished what he had come to do, just went away.

However, Mr. Daly may find solace in the thought that though he is not the seventh son of a seventh son, he yet is gifted as a prophet. When Monday night he responded to the applause following the third act of his play he declared that, for the sake of his manager, Mr. Tyler, he hoped sincerely Mr. McLellan's drama would prove successful. "As for myself," he added, "it does not matter what becomes of me. Some night a stage hand will attend to that, and probably the next day you will read pleasant accounts of the incident in the morning newspapers."

Mr. Mott is not a stage hand, but, not to put too fine a point on it, he is next thing to one, and he has done what he could to make the actor's prediction come true.

$100,000 DORMITORY FOR WILSON AVENUE Y. M. C. A.

Annual Meeting of Association Officials Decides Upon Many Changes and Improvements—Additions to Fund.

Important changes in policy were decided on at the annual meeting of trustees, managers, committees, and executive officers of the Young Men's Christian association last night at the Midday club. Additional receipts of $2,750 were also announced, making the total of the fiftieth anniversary fund $448,654.

One action authorized was the construction, with money from this fund, of a $100,000 dormitory to be operated in conjunction with the Wilson avenue branch of the association. It was also decided to start aggressive work among the immigrants of the South Chicago region, opening free classes in English, with instruction in political and social institutions. Two secretaries will be sent to Hongkong by the Chicago association at an expense of $4,000 a year.

ORDERS "COIN" OFF SCENERY.

Government Official Commands Repainting of Part of "Soul Kiss" Scenic Effects.

There will be some repainting today at the Colonial theater as the result of a censoring of the scenery used in the "money scene" of "The Soul Kiss." The inspection of the play followed the receipt of an anonymous telephone message by Capt. Thomas I. Porter of the secret service calling attention to striking representations of United States coin and bills as a clear violation of the federal law. Capt. Porter at once detailed Operative Peter G. Drautzburg to see the objectionable canvases, and while begilded chorus men and women stood about curiously on the stage between acts, the inspector pointed out portions of the scenery which must be obliterated.

HINSDALE TOO SLOW FOR HER

Adopted Waif Robs Suburban House and Flees.

DONS CLOTHES OF MISTRESS.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Dorn, the Mission Workers, the Victims.

Hinsdale, a suburban town on the "Q," was too tame for Bessie Germane, 17 years old, who three weeks ago was rescued from a police station by Mrs. E. B. Van Dorn and given a home.

Mrs. Van Dorn's husband is superintendent of the Lifeboat mission, 461 State street. Yesterday morning Mrs. Van Dorn came to the city, leaving the maid in charge of the house. It is her custom to take her husband's place at the mission Wednesday and Sunday evenings.

Neighbors who saw Mrs. Van Dorn leave home, say that the maid followed within an hour. She was arrayed in a hat, coat, and other articles which the observant neighbors had seen Mrs. Van Dorn wear. She also carried a handbag that belonged to Miss Lurena Van Dorn, and on her wrist was a bracelet that was a Christmas present to the daughter.

Daughter Discovers Theft.

The maid's absence became known when Miss Lurena returned home from school. An inventory of the missing articles also included two gold hatpins, a purse with $5, and a valuable stickpin.

Mr. Van Dorn found the house topsy turvy when he returned in the evening.

"It is almost enough to shake one's faith in human nature," he admitted. "The girl had a good home here, as we treated her like one of the family. The value of the articles taken does not amount to much. Really, if we had known she coveted them we would have given them to her. The girl was recommended to Mrs. Van Dorn by the matron at the Harrison street annex. It seems that she had no home and had been an inmate of the annex for some time. She had a good face, and we thought she would like it out here in Hinsdale."

Beggar Tries to Rob.

The ingratitude of a beggar was shown last night, when, after he had been given dinner and supper at the home of H. J. Harvey, 1733 Belmont avenue, he tried to rob the place. The attempt was frustrated.

GAMBLING IN CHINATOWN INVOLVED IN COURT TRIAL.

Former Mayor Dunne Alleges Police Are Persecuting Two Chinese and Lawyer Replies Calling Mongolians Mashers.

"These men are being persecuted in order to aid Chinese gamblers in Clark street," asserted former Mayor Edward F. Dunne in Judge Heap's court yesterday, alluding to Fong Poy and Lee Hing, two Chinese, who have sued Policeman Isaac Rosenthal for false arrest.

"They are mashers and have been annoying young women along Clark street," retorted Patrick H. O'Donnell, who represents the Harrison street policeman in the case.

A number of witnesses appeared for each side. Mr. Dunne's witnesses testified that there was an organization which collected $8 a week for gambling protection from among the Chinese. These witnesses gave Poy and Hing a good reputation.

Witnesses for O'Donnell testified that Chinese "dandies," with flashy clothes and patent leather shoes, stood nearly all day at Harrison and Clark streets and annoyed women, and that Poy and Hing were arrested for that and not because they opposed gambling.

Judge Heap will instruct the jury this morning.

PATIENT LEAPS; HELD BY FOOT.

Sister Bernarda Saves Delirious Man from Four Story Fall Off Window Ledge.

In a delirous frenzy Mike Sannya, a patient at St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, Ind., tried to leap through an open window on the fourth floor of the building.

Just as he reached the ledge Sister Bernarda, his nurse, caught him by one foot. The man, who weighs 150 pounds, fell outwards, but the sister braced herself against the wall and successfully withstood the shock. Then, for a full minute, the frail nurse clung to the patient's foot until rescuers arrived, when the man was lifted to safety.

Sister Bernarda is a member of the Order of St. Francis, which has charge of the hospital.

STANLEY FIELD IS CHOSEN.

ELECTION IS UNANIMOUS.

New Administration Committee Is Formed to Aid in the Work.

Harlow N. Higinbotham has retired from the presidency of the board of trustees of the Field museum and has been succeeded by Stanley Field.

The change took place at the annual meeting of the board held Jan. 11. Mr. Higinbotham was not a candidate for reëlection, owing to age, the pressure of other duties, and the necessity of frequent absences from Chicago.

Stanley Field, as the favorite nephew of Marshall Field, was considered the logical candidate and was elected unanimously.

The change involves no change in policy, as the new president is, if anything, more deeply interested than any one else in carrying out the wishes of his uncle with regard to the museum.

Another change introduced at the same time was the creation of an administration committee of five members headed by Edward E. Ayer. Every other institution in the city similar to the Field museum has such a committee and the board has been considerably embarrassed by the excessive amount of work at the monthly meetings that its absence entails.

Its duties will be to meet at the museum with the director before the monthly meeting and go over the recommendations to be presented to the board. It will have no executive authority.

FATHER ACTS AS BEST MAN AT WEDDING OF HIS SON.

Unusual Feature at Ceremony Uniting Miss Kathryn Charlton of Oak Park to Lloyd Randal Steers.

A father acting as best man at the wedding of his son was the unusual feature at the marriage yesterday noon of Miss Kathryn Charlton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Charlton of Oak Park, and Lloyd R. Steers of Chicago. George S. Steers served his son as best man.

For years the father and son have been almost inseparable chums, living together at the Union League club and being the joint owners of the yacht Vanadis, which, it is said, figured in the romance of the young couple, whose engagement followed a cruise on Lake Michigan.

The wedding ceremony took place at the Second Congregational church in Oak Park. The bride wore a coat suit of white broadcloth, trimmed with Irish lace. A large white hat, covered with tulle and roses, completed the bridal costume. The wedding flowers were lilies of the valley.

Miss Dorothy Charlton attended her sister as maid of honor. The ushers were William Ott and William Elliott of Chicago, Robert Garnett of Colorado, and Joseph Shirk of Peru, Ind.

The Rev. E. W. Bishop, pastor of the church, read the service. A wedding breakfast and reception to the immediate family and most intimate friends was held at the family residence, 163 North Scoville avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Steers will be at home in Winnetka after April 15.

LOVES A SINGER; SHOOTS HERSELF.

Young Wife Becomes Desperate After Husband Trailed Her with Detectives.

TELLS OF HER ROMANCE.

Signs Papers in a Lawyer's Office and Attempts Suicide Upon Return to Her Home.

Mrs. Forest R. Harrison, 4707 Evans avenue, is lying at the Lakeside hospital in a critical condition as the result of an attempt she made last night to kill herself with a revolver. The bullet penetrated her stomach.

Frank Miller, 4636 Evans avenue, a singer at the Bijou Dream, 178 State street, is busy dodging Mrs. Harrison's husband.

This situation is the outcome of an acquaintance formed last August between the singer and the 18 year old wife of a conductor on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad.

Harrison is out of the city much of the time and during the last few months Mrs. Harrison and young Miller have been meeting during the absence of the husband. Miller resides with his wife and parents just across the street from the Harrisons.

Suspicions Are Aroused.

After the young couple had taken many excursions into the byways of the city both Mrs. Miller and Harrison became suspicious. Mrs. Miller went to Harrison and told him of her doubts.

Monday afternoon Harrison kissed his wife good-by, saying that he was going on his regular trip to Denver and not breathing a word of his doubts to her. He did not go to Denver. He went instead to the law office of Charles E. Erbstein in the First National bank building and arranged to have a detective go with him on his wife's trail.

Soon after Harrison had left the house Miller appeared and he and Mrs. Harrison started out. With the husband and the detective behind them they went to the South Park café, at Sixty-third street and Cottage Grove avenue, and later downtown. They did not return home until 2 o'clock in the morning.

With his suspicions confirmed in this way Harrison confronted his wife that night. She confessed to him the whole story, saying that she was in love with Miller and had been ever since she met him last August at a Forty-seventh street 5 cent theater.

Yesterday afternoon Harrison took his wife down to Attorney Erbstein's office. Miller was brought in also. There the two signed certain papers.

Husband Enraged.

Miller had been to the flat several times during her husband's absence, Mrs. Harrison said. The story so enraged Harrison that he jumped to his feet and tried to draw a revolver out of his pocket to shoot the singer, but Erbstein was too quick and disarmed him.

"I'll kill you both," shouted the struggling husband.

Miller tried to get out of the office, but Mrs. Harrison held him back. After the papers were signed and Miller had gone Erbstein tried to bring about a reconciliation between the husband and wife, but Harrison was obdurate.

Mrs. Harrison went home weeping while Harrison remained to talk over the divorce bill. The erring wife went to her little flat and sat alone until 7 o'clock, when a woman friend came in for a few minutes.

After the woman had gone Mrs. Harrison went into the parlor and there she took the revolver and put it against her side and pulled the trigger. The bullet hit a piece of corset steel, carrying it into the body. She then ran screaming to the door and opened it.

Neighbors came in and Dr. H. C. Dale, who resides in the flat below, cared for her until the ambulance came. At the hospital it was said that her life might be saved.

Tells Her Father.

To her father, who was called to the hospital, she said:

"I did it because my husband left me."

Harrison knew nothing of it until late in the evening. Miller also was ignorant of the tragic sequel to the afternoon's exposure. He was found at the Bijou Dream and informed of Mrs. Harrison's condition. It appeared to daze him. He sat quietly for many minutes in the dark, narrow theater, gazing with unseeing eyes at the brisk antics on the moving picture screen. Then he shivered and said:

"Harrison will kill me sure if she dies. He may be here tonight." And the young man started and looked at the door nervously.

"Yes," he said, "we both signed confessions this afternoon. She did it first. What could I do?

"We both said it was our fault equally. She has been following me to every theater I've been working in since I met her. I didn't know she was married until several weeks after I met her.

"I guess the best thing for me to do is to blow out of town for a few weeks."

The lights went up in the theater. The audience drifted out and a new crowd began to come in. Miller signaled for an usher.

"Tell the manager," he said, "that I won't sing any more tonight."

AGE NO MORE TO BE SECRET

Method of Determining Years by Roentgen Rays Discovered.

TO BE CURB ON CHILD LABOR.

Annual Conference of National Committee Will Begin Tomorrow.

Your age, madam? You prefer not to tell? Well, just place your wrist in this light for a moment. Ah, thirty-two! Thank you.

Rather a shabby trick, isn't it? Well, be prepared for it. Dr. Thomas Morgan Rotch of Harvard university has discovered an absolute method of determining age by using Roentgen rays on the bones of the human wrist, and legislation is to be demanded in every state providing for its use where such statistics are needed to obtain compliance with the law.

For the present, however, this unpleasant inquisitiveness will not be applied to persons who are sensitive about their years. It is the national child labor committee that is urging the innovation, and Dr. Rotch's explanation of his method is to be made to that body tomorrow afternoon at its annual conference at the Auditorium hotel.

Deception as to Age.

"We find that the great difficulty in enforcing the child labor laws is deception by children and their parents in regard to age," said Miss Josephine J. Eschenbrenner, membership secretary of the committee. Miss Eschenbrenner is an energetic young woman who arrived in Chicago in the morning to act as a sort of advance agent for the conference.

"Dr. Rotch is coming from Boston to tell us of the method," she continued, "and agitation is to be begun at once to make it the legal means of determining the children's ages."

Another enterprise which the committee is undertaking is the establishment of a federal children's bureau to investigate and make use of the statistics gathered by the various governmental departments. The measure has been introduced in the house and senate respectively by Representative Herbert Parsons and Senator Winthrop Murray Crane, and now is in committee.

Imposing Program Prepared.

A long and imposing program has been prepared for the conference, which will open this afternoon and continue through Saturday. A. C. Bartlett, chairman of the local committee, will preside at several of the meetings, and other presiding officers will be Isaac N. Seligman of New York, Dr. Frank Billings, Homer Folks, and Dr. Samuel McCune Lindsay.

Various phases of the subject will be discussed by Gov. Deneen, Prof. Charles R. Henderson, Miss Jane Addams, and Dr. H. B. Favill of Chicago, Andrew S. Draper, commissioner of education for New York; John Mitchell, Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver, Dr. Woods Hutchinson of New York, Mrs. Sarah S. Platt Decker, former president of the General Federation of Woman's Clubs, and a score of other men and women of national reputation.

A reception for the delegates will be given this afternoon at the Chicago Woman's club and it is expected that Sunday will be observed in the churches as "child labor day."

Woman Asks an Accounting.

An accounting from Lillys Ringland Geer, widow of the late Attorney David S. Geer, is sought in a suit filed by Marie L. Sobra in the Circuit court yesterday. She says she was defrauded of property worth $2,000.

PUPILS CARRYING RUGS TO SCHOOL.

Residents of Edgewater Complain Bitterly [illegible] Facilities Given Their Children.

FEAR OF FIRE AND COLD.

Officials of Board Admit Conditions; Art Institute Gives Up the Cooley Fight.

Residents of Edgewater and the neighborhood of the north shore suburb describe the W. P. Goudy elementary school at Foster and Winthrop avenues as being 100 years behind the times, censure its lack of fire escapes and other primitive arrangements.

Supt. Cooley and his subordinates admitted yesterday that the Edgewater people are about right. That any of the school exits is kept locked, or that the fire protection is inadequate, they denied, but that the school is so overcrowded with its 1,100 pupils as to make the work of teaching almost impossible they admitted freely.

Pupils Carry Rugs.

H. D. Eddy, 2300 Lakewood avenue, made himself the unofficial spokesman of the parents of the neighborhood in describing the school to a representative of THE TRIBUNE.

"I have a boy and a girl in the school," he said, "and another daughter who was graduated recently. Both my children are in the tin cottages. These are built so as to be moved about the city as they are needed, and there is practically no protection from cold about the lower part of the walls.

"Both my children do what most of the pupils are doing—they take rugs to school with them every day to protect their feet from the drafts that sweep across the floors.

"There are two open exits in the buildings and a third that is kept locked. There are no fire escapes."

Overcrowding General.

Mr. Cooley smiled a bit wearily when Mr. Eddy's complaint was reported to him.

"Yes, they're perfectly right," he said. "I think they'll find they are mistaken about the locked exit and the fire protection, but otherwise things are about as bad as they could be up there. It's a question of money. That region is growing at a startling pace, and we simply can't keep up with it.

"We opened a new school—the Stewart—just south of the Goudy a year ago and thought it would relieve things. Every seat was taken the day school opened by new pupils. Hardly one could be transferred from the Goudy.

"But what are you going to do with people opposing the expenditure of money for anything but salaries at every turn? As for the cold portables, I understand the architect now is devising some means of sheathing them around the base."

Art Institute Drops Fight.

Opposition to the dropping of the Art institute from the schools' accredited list has been abandoned definitely by the Art institute trustees.

Discovery that Mr. Cooley's charges against the institute were substantially correct and unwillingness to be made the aids of the anti-Cooley patriots in using the controversy as political capital are said to have been the reasons for the sudden and extremely quiet dropping of the disagreement.

Do you wonder that the public likes to buy goods that are trade-marked and advertised?

A Guarantee

The trade-mark is not merely a device of the manufacturer to help the purchaser buy his goods; it is also the manufacturer's guarantee of the quality of his goods. When you buy trade-marked merchandise you know who you are doing business with. You have recourse. You can be reasonably sure of what you are getting.

The trade-mark movement is growing. Nothing can stop it, for it is an economic development.

Twins

Advertising is the twin of the trade-mark. It exploits its virtues and puts a knowledge of the trade-mark where the goods themselves have never been seen.

JAP BILLS MENACE UNION AS A WHOLE

BIG STICK AID GOES ON.

President to Continue Efforts to Keep Westerners from Passing Arbitrary Laws.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—There is to be no cessation of the efforts of President Roosevelt to impress upon the legislature and people of California the seriousness of any action on their part in stirring up a situation whereby the people of Japan will feel that the United States as a nation is unnecessarily depriving their subjects in this country of their rights.

There was general comment today concerning the president's letter and telegram to Gov. Gillett protesting against the passage of anti-Japanese bills in the California legislature, and little if any of this comment was feeling to his action. There is unanimous feling in administration circles in Washington that the state of California should, if possible, be stopped from committing any deed whatsoever which will tend to upset what is now regarded as a most satisfactory condition of affairs between Japan and the United States.

Immigration Question About Settled.

As the result of a patiently contrived agreement between Japan and this country it is contended that the Japanese immigration question, which was a thorn in the side of California two years ago, practically has been settled.

The figures, which show that only 2,074 Japanese entered this country during the six months ending Oct. 31 last, as against 3,181 Japanese who left this country for their home, demonstrate that the agreement which Japan magnanimously entered into has been doing its work.

It is pointed out that it was unnecessary to negotiate a treaty or even make compromises in order to bring this condition of affairs about, and it is considered unfortunate, to say the least, that the state of California should find it necessary at this time to introduce and push to passage bills in the state legislature which will deeply wound the feelings of a sensitive nation and which are considered by the people of Japan in general as a direct thrust by the national government.

Japanese Diplomats Show Fear.

It was admitted by a high government official today that the representatives of Japan in this country have shown apprehension concerning the situation in California, and that while they have not made any direct representations to the United States, they are watching the proceedings closely.

That same official expressed the hope that the president might be successful in bringing the state of California to a realization of what the passage of bills depriving the Japanese from the right to act as directors of corporations in that state and from holding property there means to this nation as a whole. In effect there will be, it is predicted, the upsetting of a kettle of fish which it will take many more months of patient labor to again set straight, if there are not serious consequences meanwhile.

In view of the determined action of the authors of the anti-Japanese bills in California, it is considered in Washington a most fortunate circumstance that the Atlantic fleet has continued its voyage around the world instead of remaining in the Pacific.

Fears Distinct Affront Is Threatened.

With the sixteen battleships which left Hampton Roads last February cruising in the vicinity of San Francisco and San Diego at this time, to the Japanese it plainly would appear that this government had deliberately placed its fortifications and given California the permission to proceed against its Japanese citizens in any manner they thought best, and it undoubtedly would take a world of argument to convince them that the whole scheme was not deliberately contrived at Washington.

President Roosevelt expressed himself to many visitors today in an earnest manner concerning the Japanese situation, and while not intimating that there might be serious consequences to this country if the Californians persisted in passing their bills, he disclosed his view to the effect that a distinct affront to Japan was threatened, especially in view of the fact that the ruler of that nation had assented so amicably to an agreement wherein Japanese immigration has been reduced visibly and the apparent solution of the difficult problem offered on the Pacific coast has been arrived at.

Instance of Shoe on Other Foot.

There were many interesting observations today concerning the strength of the recently effected American-Japanese "gentlemen's" agreement and it generally was conceded that it would not be worth the paper on which it was written if the Japanese saw fit to take exceptions to the treatment of their people in California.

As an insance of the weakness of that agreement in such a crisis to this country, there was put forward the idea of the government of Japan affronting our citizens there by ordering them out of the country or confining them in certain quarters of each Japanese city where they lived.

It was asserted that the United States would find cause to make short work of the late agreement if such a thing happened. Therefore, the administration's course in asking the governor of California to prevent if possible the passage of obnoxious bills received commendation.

It is not considered here that the measures introduced in the California legislature against the Japanese are of most vital interest to that state, but it is surmised, on the other hand, that they are more the product of "ash barrel" votes than the result of unanimous opinion throughout the state.

Gillett's Messages Please President.

President Roosevelt today expressed his gratification concerning the reassuring messages of Gov. Gillett. It was learned that the letter and telegram which he sent to the governor of California were not the results of hastily conceived determination upon the part of the administration to use its influence toward preventing anti-Japanese legislation.

The matter has given the president many hours of anxious consideration, and his conferences and deliberations with Secretary Root on the subject have extended over many days.

The recent personal attacks on President Roosevelt by congress, which went on at the same time, were considered by him as mere side issues in his business day. The imminence of the danger to the peaceful status of the Japanese question has been receiving his primary consideration.

Hold Up Legislation a Week.

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 20.—By a vote of 43 to 34 the assembly decided today to hold up all anti-Japanese legislation until next Wednesday morning.

JAPAN FRIENDLY WITH ALL.

TOKIO, Jan. 21.—Marquis Katsura, the premier, opened the house of lords today and in his speech dwelt upon the cordial foreign relations existing at present between Japan and other powers, which, he declared, were especially favorable at this time. He said it behooved Japan to use its best efforts toward the development of the nations in regard to the resources, that the alliance with Great Britain had resulted in the strengthening bonds of friendship and good will with that country, and that a satisfactory exchange of notes with America had removed all misunderstandings between Japan and the United States.

Credit Men Meet.

More than 100 persons attended the monthly dinner of the Chicago Credit Men's association last evening at the Midday club. H. H. Cushman, sales manager for the L. A. Decker company, spoke on "What the Credit Department Can Do to Aid the Sales Department."

president, should be independent of other structures, and that a location in front of a railroad station would not provide a proper site at all.

These experts declare that the Lincoln memorial should not be placed at or near the station, and that the design should be intrusted to the highest expert authority only and not left to the haphazard caprice of members of congress, who appear to be much more interested in extending the capitol grounds than they are in providing a suitable memorial to Abraham Lincoln.

Council of Fine Arts Created.

President Roosevelt took matters into his own hands today and issued an executive order creating a council of fine arts composed of thirty architects, painters, sculptors, and landscape artists. The order declares that hereafter before any plans are formulated for any buildings or grounds, or for the location or erection of any statues the matter must be submitted to this council and its advice followed.

Among those named on the council are Cass Gilbert, D. H. Burnham, John La Farge, Daniel C. French, and Frederick Law Olmsted Jr.

President Roosevelt's motives in creating this council were excellent, but unfortunately there is no authority of law for the existence of any such body. Of course if the executive officers choose to follow its advice they may do so, but congress has the unquestioned right and will surely exercise it, to locate public buildings and statues where it sees fit and give their construction over to any specified commission.

For instance, the bill providing for the Lincoln memorial creates a commission composed of the vice president, the speaker of the house and the superintendent of the capitol building, who are to have entire charge of securing the land and selecting and fitting up the monument, being assisted in the monumental part of the work by the chairmen of the library committees of the two houses of congress. The only way in which the president could prevent the creation of this commission would be to veto the bill in its entirety.

Veto Wouldn't Do Much Harm.

It would not do much harm if he took such action. It would call attention to the disposition of congress to spend money in the vicinity of Capitol hill while denying it to the executive departments, and more particularly to the navy, and it also would bring to the notice of the people the absurdity of locating a magnificent memorial to Abraham Lincoln on the plaza outside the railroad station, which already has been dedicated to a monument to Christopher Columbus, another gentleman who had considerable hand in the development of American civilization.

WORLD SOLVES ONE PUZZLE IN PANAMA LIBEL AFFAIR.

Counsel for Newspaper Thinks It Has Found One Statute Under Which Proceedings Are Possible.

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—By a process of elimination and after consulting many books on ancient and modern law the lawyers representing the World believe they have solved the puzzle of finding out what federal statute Attorney General Bonaparte and his assistants have raked up as a means of punishing the World for publishing its Panama canal article.

The statute which they have now concluded is the one selected is section 5391 of the United States Revised Statutes. It reads as follows:

"If any offense be committed in any place which has been, or may hereafter be, ceded to and under the jurisdiction of the United States, which offense is not prohibited or the punishment thereof not specially provided for by any law of the United States, such offense shall be liable to and receive the same punishment as the law of the state in which such place is situated provides for a like offense."

A new move by the government was made today in the libel proceedings. Two employés of the World were served with subpoenas in which they are summoned to appear and testify in the case of "the United States against the Press Publishing company and others." Who the other defendants are was not specified.

TILLMAN AIRS HIS RACE VIEWS.

Wants Fifteenth Amendment Repealed; but Says He Favors Right Kind of Education.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—Senator Tillman today gave out a statement prompted by the suggestion that President Elect Taft had him in mind at Augusta, Ga., mentioning lack of sympathy for education of the negro.

"In the first place," said Tillman, "I am not opposed to negro education provided it is of the right kind.

"We have disfranchised every negro we could under the fifteenth amendment, and the only instrumentality available was to require an educational qualification.

"Compulsory education would mean a heavy burden to provide more schools, which the white taxpayers would have to bear. We would prefer the spectacle of educating the negro at a heavy expense to hurry forward the contest for supremacy between the two races.

"The Republican party is now seeking to debauch the south through Mr. Taft. If the Republicans will abandon their efforts to compel the south to recognize the equality of the Caucasian and the African by repealing the fifteenth amendment we can then aid in that 'uplift' which Mr. Taft is so anxious to see."

THINKS BRYAN WILL RUN AGAIN.

Lincoln Banker, Though Opposed to the Nebraskan, Says the Latter Is Not Dead.

This was the statement today of Silas H. Burnham, president of the First National bank of Lincoln, Neb., who is in Atlanta.

SEES RACE ISSUE IN BROWNSVILLE.

HOUSE LETS LILLEY GO.

Recognizes Vacancy Caused by Member's Taking the Connecticut Governorship.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—Senator Frazier of Tennessee gave "the Brownsville affair" another airing before the United States senate today, incidentally commenting on negro characteristics and raising the race issue. The Tennesseean spoke in opposition to the passage of any measure for the reënlistment of the discharged colored soldiers of the Twenty-fifth regiment. He insisted that the guilt of some of the men had been established, although the individuals who had shot up the Texas town had not been determined.

Departing from his prepared speech, Mr. Frazier said that in arriving at his conclusion that the soldiers did the shooting he had given no credence to the alleged confession of Boyd Conyers, one of the discharged soldiers. The senator was greeted with general applause by visitors in the galleries when he concluded his remarks.

Senator Foraker said that unless an agreement was reached before next Monday to vote on his bill to reinstate the discharged soldiers, he would then move its consideration.

Senator Frazier opposed the passage of any one of the pending bills for the reënlistment of the negro soldiers. His remarks were of additional interest by reason of the fact that he was a member of the committee on military affairs which investigated the Brownsville trouble.

Analyzing the testimony taken in various investigations, Mr. Frazier said there was no question as to the guilt of the soldiers of the Twenty-fifth regiment. He justified the president in his discharge of the entire body of troops because of the impossibility of fixing the guilt upon particular soldiers.

Frazier Assigns Negroes' Motive.

Speaking of the incentive of the soldiers for the commitment of the crime, he said: "No one not familiar with the real character of the negro race knows or can fully appreciate the intensity of feeling with which he resents any apparent discrimination against him on account of his color."

The negro soldiers' restrictions in the saloons of Brownsville, Mr. Frazier said, gave ample incentive for the resentment that was shown.

"I have been influenced by no prejudice against the negro," he said. "I have never favored any policy that did not recognize his right as a man, and did not assure him equal and exact justice before the law.

"I know the negro, his faults, and his virtues—and he has many virtues.

"I would not be entirely frank if I did not say that upon certain phases of the race question I, in common with the rest of the south, have stood, and I believe will ever stand, firm and unalterable. First, never again will the negro race be allowed to politically dominate and control a sovereign state of this union. Second, the social barrier which separates the races will never be allowed to be lowered.

"For forty years, in patience and kindness, the people of the south have wrestled with this problem. It is still unsolved. What the end will be only God in his infinite wisdom can see.

Says South Must Solve Race Issue.

"But one thing I do know, that the solution of this problem rests primarily in the hands of the southern white man and the southern black man, and calls for the wisest counsel and broadest conservatism of both. I know that it can never be solved by men far removed from its fatal touch, and whose minds are not filled with an appalling sense of the deep racial difficulties with which it is hedged about."

After adopting without opposition a resolution by which Gov. George F. Lilley of Connecticut ceases to be a member of congress, the house of representatives today proceeded with the naval appropriation bill, which probably will have the attention of the house until Friday.

AUGUSTA CALLS TAFT NATIVE

TOWN REVELS IN GALA DAY.

John D. Rockefeller Attends Banquet Given at Night.

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Beside President Elect Taft, more than 200 distinguished guests helped the Augusta chamber of commerce at a banquet tonight to conclude the Taft Augusta day festivities.

Among these other guests were John D. Rockefeller and Gov. Ansel of South Carolina, who was inaugurated today. Preceding the evening festivities had been a day of crowds and enthusiasm.

Augusta proclaimed Taft as her own—that he was a resident of Augusta when the presidential electors in the various states declared him to be the president elect and that as such he was a Georgian by birth and had lived where he was born all of his presidential life.

Thousands of Augustans clinched this claim with a mighty shout of approval, which was echoed again and again as Maj. J. C. C. Black said many other complimentary things about Mr. Taft in presenting him to the mighty massmeeting which had assembled around the same stand from which President McKinley spoke more than ten years ago.

The streets, the windows, and the adjacent roofs were full of people and when the distinguished visitor told how he liked Augusta and pledged himself to come again, all hearts were as cheery and faces as radiant as the warm afternoon sun and mellow southern air.

Taft Tells of His Feeling.

What the president elect thought of it all is best told in his words to the people whom he addressed as "my fellow citizens of Augusta." It was his delight that the combination of fate, good sense, and judgment had brought him to live for six weeks in Augusta.

The weather had been such that he had not, he said, missed a single secular day from the golf links, but he had come here also to make his cabinet, the difficulties of which only those of his hearers knew, who had ever had cabinets to make.

"But," he added, as the sum total of information in this direction, "we will get along some way with reference to that cabinet."

Turning his attention to the political phase of his visit south, Mr. Taft was not, he said, excited as some seemed to be about the effect.

"If I can convince the southern people that this administration is as much concerned with the welfare of the people of the south," he said with emphasis, "as it is with the welfare of the people of every other section, I have accomplished all that I can hope to. The votes and the political matters can take care of themselves."

A tribute was paid to the memory of McKinley, encouraging words were spoken of the oriental trade of this country and the great interest of the south in that matter because of the cotton commerce. He hoped that one of the results of his administration would be greatly to improve trade in that direction.

Taft and Rockefeller Meet.

Although Mr. Taft and John D. Rockefeller have been guests of the Bon Air hotel since Monday, it was not until tonight at the banquet that they met. Mr. Rockefeller had for some time been holding an informal reception when Mr. Taft arrived. At once the crowd began to desert the oil magnate, and then Mr. Rockefeller was taken in hand by the manager of the hotel, and formally presented to Mr. Taft.

"How are you, Mr. Rockefeller," was the jovial salutation of Mr. Taft. "I got around the golf links in 88 today."

"I wanted to hear you speak this afternoon," was the reply of Rockefeller, who added, with a touch of regret in his voice, "but I could not get near enough."

Cleveland Man Cabinet Prospect.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—P. J. Brady, a Cleveland attorney, is being boomed in a country wide movement for a place in President Taft's cabinet, as secretary of the treasury. He is national treasurer of the Knights of Columbus. His church and fraternal work have brought him into touch with leading Catholics of America.

MADISON TIE-UP HOLDS SENATORS.

PART OF INQUIRY PLAN.

SENATORS ELECTED YESTERDAY.

Crawford, So. Dakota.
Cummins, Iowa.
*Gore, Oklahoma.
*Overman, N. Carolina.
Root, New York.
Shively, Indiana.
*Stone, Missouri.

*Re-elected.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Realizing that it is virtually impossible to prevent the reëlection of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson next Wednesday, but determined to put every senator on record on the legislative investigation into the use of money in the senatorial primary, anti-Stephenson senators today tied up proceedings by a call of the house.

The tieup began this forenoon when Senator Husting, Democratic leader, author of the investigation resolution, moved a call of the house. A roll call disclosed fourteen of the thirty-three senators absent, only two with leave. The absentees were scattered from Kansas City, Mo., to Ashland, Wis., and all were telegraphed by the sergeant at arms to come to Madison immediately.

Finally one Stephenson man moved to raise the call. While the vote was 11 to 9 in favor, the motion did not carry because it required seventeen or a majority.

During the day and night five absentees arrived, leaving nine still missing. It is expected that all but one, Senator Hazelwood, who is seriously ill, will arrive tomorrow, when final action is probable.

Senator Bird, leader of the Stephenson forces, became ill during the afternoon and is now in bed at a hotel. Senator Stout, also a Stephenson supporter, was allowed to go to his hotel on account of illness. Senator Whitehead was permitted to leave the chamber tonight to make an address before a local church gathering. Whitehead claims that inasmuch as the senate has not yet adopted rules, a call of the house cannot be enforced, but a majority of the senators differ.

Cummins Elected Iowa Senator.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Albert B. Cummins was today elected United States senator from Iowa for the six year term beginning the 4th of next March. At noon the senate and house met in joint convention. The roll call resulted: Cummins, 115; Porter, 40. Every Republican voted for Cummins.

GLIDE CARS

Though a full line of GLIDE cars will be on display, stylish, roomy and well finished, the extraordinary feature of the exhibit will be GLIDE chassis, showing so plainly that any one can appreciate all the wonderfully advantageous mechanical parts of the GLIDE car.

If you will study this chassis, you will see why the GLIDE is better than any other car, irrespective of price.

You will appreciate these features:

Correctly proportioned and situated parts—

Silent, more efficient bevel gear driving system—

Improved selective type transmission placed just forward of the rear axle, which reduces the angularity of the propeller shaft and gives best distribution of weight—

Only one Universal Joint (housed dust proof and oil tight) and all Universal Joint trouble and repairs absolutely eliminated—

Superior design of the GLIDE cars puts the Universal Joint between the Motor and the Transmission instead of between the Transmission and the Rear Axle, thus calling upon the Universal Joint to transmit only the initial power of the engine, instead of the initial power and the enhanced power of the Motor on second or low gear—

Double set of Brakes—internal expanding and external contracting—will hold a car on a mountain side and gives absolute surety in emergency slow downs or stops.

GLIDE Model "G" SPECIAL Touring Car—Seats five passengers with ample room in tonneau for two individual seats; wheel base, 120", Tires, 34x4"—Price, $2,500.00.

GLIDE Model "R" ROADSTER—wheel base, 106", Tires—36x4", close coupled body seating four, or runabout seating two—Price, $2,000.00

CLAIMS FOR WIFE FOUGHT BY PLATT

Aged New York Senator Declares He Paid All in $25,000 Lump Sum.

TRAILS SPOUSE; DIVORCE.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE,
New York, Jan. 20.

Platt Resists Claims for Wife's Debts.

Through his counsel before the appellate division of the Supreme court Senator Thomas C. Platt today disclaimed all responsibility for personal debts contracted by Mrs. Lillian Janeway Platt, from whom he separated in 1906, and sought to have reversed a judgment of the lower courts which ordered him to pay to an assignee $2,471.60 as part of such debts. In arguing for the reversal of this judgment and the granting of a new trial counsel for Senator Platt declared that in consideration of the withdrawal by Mrs. Platt of an action for absolute divorce instituted by her the senator had agreed to turn over to her attorneys the sum of $25,000, out of which all claims against him were to be satisfied.

The contention by the other side, however, is that personal bills of Mrs. Platt amounting to $3,597 were not included in the $25,000.

In his motion before the court today Senator Platt averred that he had never agreed to settle any bills for Mrs. Platt and that the $25,000 paid over by him to her attorney represented the total extent of his obligation.

Decision was reserved.

The vestry of the Trinity church corporation today decided to stop parochial work in St. John's chapel, at Varick and Laight streets, and convert the historic structure into a place for evangelistic work among those employed in that section.

Surprise on Husband Wins Wife Divorce.

Roberta G. Menges, the divorced wife of Halsey Corwin, the "Coney Island Angel," who almost got a title by marrying Capt. Arthur Hill of the Royal Irish rifles, son of Lord Arthur William Hill, late privy councilor of the Queen and controller of her majesty's household, and grandson of the fifth marquis of Downshire, obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce from Captain Hill in Supreme court today. Captain Hill did not defend the action against him.

Miss Mary Driscoll, who was the chief witness, said when she and Mrs. Hill were together on October 15 last, they got a telephone message to go to the Hotel Royal at once. The message came from Harry Shepperd, a detective who had been engaged to follow Captain Hill. They went to Mr. Hill's room.

"When Captain Hill opened the door," said Miss Driscoll, "we all rushed into the room. We saw that he was in his undershirt, and saw a woman run into the closet. She was wearing nothing much."

Sues Brother-in-Law for Libel; Asks $25,000.

William M. Hollins, who for fifteen years was connected with the banking house of H. B. Hollins & Co. and who now is doing a foreign banking business on his own account in the Importers and Traders' building at 26 Stone street, has been sued by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Sarah O. G. Pickman, for libel. Mrs. Pickman bases her suit on a printed statement which Mr. Hollins sent out to a score or more of his friends regarding the reasons for the separation two years ago of himself and his wife and asks $25,000 damages.

Hollins married Adeline Grundy of Elizabeth, N. J., about twenty-four years ago. She is his second wife and about ten years younger than he. He is between 60 and 70 years old.

Mr. Hollins for many years kept a family record. In this record after the separation he wrote his side of the story, and having tired of answering the questions of his friends on the subject, he caused a section of the journal relating to the trouble between himself and Mrs. Hollins to be printed and copies were sent to his friends.

Hammerstein Withdraws Opera to Appease Star.

Oscar Hammerstein tonight withdrew Massenet's opera of "Thais," in which he had previously announced Miss Lina Cavalieri would make her first appearance at the Manhattan Opera house a week from Saturday night. Mr. Hammerstein took this action after Miss Mary Garden wrote him resigning from the Manhattan Opera company because Cavalieri was to sing one of her rôles. Mr. Hammerstein said he thought all further trouble would be averted and that Miss Garden would consent to sing in "Thais" and also in "Salome" at its first performance a week from tonight. He said if she continued in her refusal to sing Miss Cavalieri would take her place Friday night.

Funds Pour in for Tennessee Lincoln Shaft.

At a meeting today of the Lincoln centennial endowment committee, which is raising a $500,000 endowment for the Lincoln memorial monument at Cumberland Gap, Tenn., the treasurer, Gen. O. O. Howard, reported that generous subscriptions to the fund daily were being received. A letter from Secretary of State Root accepting membership on the committee and donating $1,000 was read. In the letter Mr. Root authorized the committee to put down the name of Assistant Secretary of State Bacon for a like amount. Gen. Howard also reported that plans for securing assistance in Chicago had been made.

Old Employe Charged with $15,000 Theft.

Andrew W. Smith, 40 years old, a confidential bookkeeper for the Warner Chemical company, was arrested charged with a defalcation of $15,000. Lucien C. Warner, president of the concern, made the specific charge that the bookkeeper on Dec. 31 last deposited to his own account in a bank a check for $15,000 drawn on the order of his employer. Smith was locked up pending a hearing.

SCHOLAR LETS OUT HIS BLOOD AFTER TAKING POISON DOSE.

Galesburg Professor's Desperate Purpose Successful Despite Heroic Work of Physicians Called by Wife.

Galesburg, Ill., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Prof. John W. Grubb, for years professor of mathematics in Lombard college, died this afternoon as the result of poison and loss of blood. Investigation is said to have disclosed that this morning he took a dose of strychnine and cut his wrists, severing an artery. He returned to his residence and his wife summoned help. Four doctors worked for several hours, but in vain.

Of late Prof. Grubb had retained, on account of poor health, only a nominal connection with the college. He carried on an extensive dairy.

His wife had just returned from the funeral of a sister in Kansas.

Prof. Grubb was at one time a member of Galesburg city council. He was a prominent member of the Universalist church, and his suicide is a shock to the community.

MAID ACCUSES MRS. ATHERTON

She Gives Details to Aid Divorce Suit of Mrs. Stirling.

WIFE AGAIN ON THE STAND.

Lord Northland Declared to Have No Part in Urging Case.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

EDINBURGH, Jan. 20.—On the resumption today of the hearing of Mrs. Stirling's divorce suit against Capt. Alexander Stirling the courtroom again was crowded with persons high in the social life.

On reëxamination Mrs. Stirling declared she was forced into the society of Lord Northland owing to the attentions her husband was paying to Mrs. Atherton. Nevertheless, up to the time of her trip to America she treated Mrs. Atherton as a warm, faithful friend and trusted her husband implicitly. It was in July that her husband spoke to her about Lord Northland, voicing his objection to the continuance of Northland's visits to the house.

Northland Did Not Aid Suit.

Lord Northland had nothing to do with the institution of the present proceedings beyond telegraphing her instructions to her solicitors.

Mrs. Morris, who was the nurse to Mrs. Stirling's baby, was the next witness. She told how, when her mistress went to America, Stirling wanted the child taken to the cottage where he and Mrs. Atherton were living. The witness refused, declaring she loved the boy and valued her own character too much to stay in the same house with them.

She afterward wrote to Mrs. Stirling in America, advising her of what was going on. This caused Mrs. Stirling to return hurriedly.

Nurse Gives Alleged Details.

Mrs. Morris said she more than once found the door of the bathroom, which communicated with Mrs. Atherton's bedroom, locked. There was no sound of splashing water, but after a long time Capt. Stirling would come out.

A chambermaid from a hotel at Sandown, in the Isle of Wight, where Capt. Stirling and Mrs. Atherton staid during Mrs. Stirling's absence in America, testified that one night she saw Stirling dressed only in his pajamas, enter Mrs. Atherton's bedroom. The next morning she found that Stirling's bed had not been occupied.

MAN BARELY ALIVE DUG UP FROM MESSINA QUAKE RUINS.

Doctors Astonished at Remarkable Case of Resistance to Complete Exhaustion—Shocks Continue in Section.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, Jan. 20.—In the course of the removal of the dead at Messina yesterday the soldiers discovered a survivor whose faint breathing was the only sign of life he displayed. He was taken to a hospital, where the doctors said such a case of complete exhaustion resistance was unparalleled.

Earth shocks continue in Messina. Some of them are slight, but the others, stronger in character, are usually accompanied by an underground roaring which causes considerable alarm. Fires have appeared in the débris in different quarters.

Philippine Volcano Becomes Active.

MANILA, Jan. 20.—The Volcano Lagnas in the Tayabas province, which forms the southwestern part of the island of Luzon, became suddenly active last night, and the eruption seriously damaged the surrounding country. No reports of loss of life have been received.

Mexican Volcano More Active.

Guadalajara, Mex., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Mount Colima, a volcano 130 miles south of here, has shown a great increase of activity in the last few days. Tremblings of the earth near the volcano began five days ago. These were followed by a series of detonations from within its crater. Smoke was emitted and an outburst of ashes and rocks occurred yesterday. Flakes of fire from the crater light the heavens for many miles.

It is reported that lava is flowing from the crater.

Northwestern University Authorities Admit Miss Edna Ferguson Tried to End Life.

It was admitted by the authorities of Northwestern university yesterday that Miss Edna M. Ferguson, a music student residing at the "Collegian," a girls' dormitory at 1942 Sherman avenue, Evanston, had attempted to commit suicide. Miss Ferguson is a freshman in the university school of music and lives at Muskogee, Okla.

Several young women at the dormitory recently have missed articles from their rooms, and it seems that Miss Ferguson thought they were holding her responsible. Resulting despondency caused her to attempt to end her life with chloroform. She wrote a note stating that she could not prove she had not taken the articles and that she wished to die.

Miss Ferguson will leave for Muskogee today in company with her mother.

Charcoal Removes Stomach Poisons

Pure Charcoal Will Absorb One Hundred Times Its Volume In Poisonous Gases.

Charcoal was made famous by the old monks of Spain, who cured all manner of stomach, liver, blood and bowel troubles by this simple remedy.

One little nervous Frenchman held forth its virtues before a famous convention of European physicians and surgeons. Secheyron was his name. He was odd, quaint and very determined. His brothers in medicine laughed at his claims. Thereupon he swallowed two grains of strychnine, enough to kill three men, and ate some charcoal. The doctors thought him mad, but he did not even have to go to bed. The charcoal killed the effects of the strychnine and Secheyron was famous. Ever since that day physicians have used it. Run impure water through charcoal and you have a pure, delicious drink.

Bad breath, gastritis, bowel gases, torpid liver, impure blood, etc., give way before the action of charcoal.

It is really a wonderful adjunct to nature and is a most inexhaustible storehouse of health to the man or woman who suffers from gases or impurities of any kind.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made of pure willow charcoal, sweetened to a palatable state with honey.

Two or three of them cure an ordinary case of bad breath. They should be used after every meal, especially if one's breath is prone to be impure.

These little lozenges have nothing to do with medicine. They are just sweet, fresh willow, burned to a nicety for charcoal making and fragrant honey, the product of the bee. Thus every ingredient comes to man from the lap of nature.

The only secret lies in the Stuart process of compressing these simple substances into a hard tablet or lozenge, so that age, evaporation or decay may not assail their curative qualities.

You may take as many of them as you wish and the more you take the quicker will you remove the effects of bad breath and impurities arising from a decayed or decaying meal. They assist digestion, purify the blood and help the intestines and bowels throw off all waste matter.

Go to your druggist at once and buy a package of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges, price 25 cents. You will soon be told by your friends that your breath is not so bad as it was. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

LAWS OF WORLDLY SEIZE A 'MESSIAH'

CLAIM MEMBERS CAN'T SIN

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

WELLS, Somersetshire, England, Jan. 20.—The Consistory court here has found T. H. Smyth-Piggott, the self-styled Messiah, guilty of immorality. Smyth-Piggott succeeded "Brother Prince" as leader of the Agapemonites, whose headquarters are at Spaxton, Somersetshire, the place called by them "The Abode of Love."

Smyth-Piggott, who had been an Episcopal clergyman, a Salvation army member, soldier, sailor, and miner, has lived in luxury for several years at the expense of his followers, who mostly are well to do people of the lower middle class.

Claim Members Cannot Sin.

The ethics of his cult say "having the spirit of God, we are lifted above the ordinary code of morals and cannot sin," so the members have discarded marriage and hold to other peculiar views that have made them unpopular with their neighbors.

The proceedings that resulted in the judgment against the leader were instituted by the bishop of Bath and Wells, who was anxious "to cleanse his diocese." It rests with the bishop to take further steps.

One Child Held "Divine."

Smyth-Piggott has twenty-five women residents at his Agapemone. One of them, named Ruth Creece, had a child of which he was the father. He was named Glory Piggott and the community regards him as divine.

About this time a church they had in the suburb of London was mobbed and since then they have conducted themselves more quietly and have endeavored to attract as little attention as possible.

ABRUZZI NOT AGAIN SUITOR FOR HAND OF MISS ELKINS.

Official Denials Made of the Story That He Resigned Position to Further His Courtship.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Denials were made today of the story regarding the reopening of the romance between Miss Katherine Elkins and the duke of the Abruzzi. The duke has been here since Sunday. He registered as Sig. Nigrotto of Milan. Today he left for Paris, whence he will proceed to Turin.

One denial of the romance renewal was given by the Italian embassy. It was in reply to a story published by the Evening News, which professes to have learned that the duke, while in London, met and talked with a representative of the Elkins family. The paper added that it had reason to believe the reports the duke intends to resign from the navy and renounce his title in order to marry Miss Katherine Elkins are true.

The duke's visit to London, it was again asserted at the embassy, was solely for the purpose of buying an outfit for his Himalayan expedition and perfecting his plans for the trip in consultation with English experts. The duke's outfit was secured at the army and navy stores.

BOXING SHOW A TAME AFFAIR

"Debrutalized" Sparring a Poor Magnet to Attract Crowd.

NO WORK FOR THE POLICE.

Seventh Regiment Benefit Produces Little in Way of Profits.

"Debrutalized" sparring, as laid down by Mayor Busse, proved a poor magnet in attracting people to the Seventh regiment benefit last night, and Capt. Frank P. St. Clair will be busy for a day or two figuring out whether he broke even or whether there is a deficit.

Everything from a prima donna down to a pie eating contest was offered, and the exhibition was excellent in all respects, but the audience wanted the real thing in the fighting line. There were several good bouts, and the boxers at times were inclined to heed the shouts to "mix it up," but all feared to put any ginger into their work until about the time for the gong in the last round. There wasn't the sight of blood, and the numerous policemen had nothing to do. None of the commanding officers of the force was present, they having been assured that the law would not be violated.

Boys Are Clever Boxers.

The nearest approach to slugging was exhibited by Ralph and Harold Muehlhauser, aged 8 and 10 years, respectively, exceedingly clever youngsters with boxing gloves. The younger boy outpointed his brother and landed some hard wallops on his antagonist's jaw. Both boys had to do considerable blinking, but the size of the gloves prevented damage. Joe Choynski simply played with George Schrosbee, but "Cyclone" Johnny Thompson let himself out considerably in boxing Johnny Conners and George Coulon in succession. Benny Yanger landed a couple of stiff blows on Tommy Cody, and "Buck" Johnson and Jimmy Brady came near forgetting their orders. Johnny Coulon and "Kid" Graves of Brooklyn had to be cautioned by the referee. There were no decisions in the boxing contests.

Some real work was done by several of the wrestlers. In the fifteen minute draw between Charlie Cutler and Charlie Posti each man took occasion to bump the other's head on the mat with great force, and Tim O'Neil lost his temper and punched William Gelder a vicious blow in the eye during a bout which the latter won in two minutes and thirty seconds. George Anderson and Sol Rubens wrestled a fifteen minute draw, and Bruno Minkley disposed of Joe Burkett in six minutes and a half. Harry Jones was thrown in a little less than ten minutes in his bout with Dick Sorenson.

Negroes Furnish Amusement.

Much amusement was furnished by a couple of Dearborn street negroes who boxed while standing inside of barrels. Every time a fair blow was struck the recipient would fall over. A pie eating contest between eight negroes also was good, there were exhibitions of strength, and the affair closed with a zouave drill by twelve men under Capt. John J. Bolger of company F.

"I Want to Be a Military Man" apparently was the most popular march hit of the nonmilitary guests who danced at the fifth annual ball of the First cavalry, I. N. G., hospital corps at the Masonic temple drill hall last night. But the sprinkling of guests in civilian's attire was small as compared with the number in uniforms. Col. Milton J. Foreman was called to New York on business, but his place as leader of the ball was ably taken by Maj. William A. Evans, Chicago's health commissioner. The affair was attended by nearly 200 couples.

CLAIM PAYMENTS WERE ILLEGAL.

Question Raised Regarding Money Expended for Work of Street Repairs.

NO BUBBLY CREEK WATER

Ordinance Recommended After Being Considered for Two Years; Boulevard Plan.

Whether the money paid Contractor McGovern for street repair work on his remarkable contract was legally expended is a question raised in the city hall yesterday. The law department said it did not care to pass on it offhand, but would look it up, and that is as far as the matter has gone at present.

The contention is that it was illegal to pay any money out of the wheel tax fund except on direct appropriation by the council. The wheel tax ordinance provides that all money derived from it shall be set apart into a special fund to be used only for street repairing.

It is not contended that the money was not spent for street repairs, but the claim is that before it could be spent legally the council would have to pass an ordinance appropriating the money to that purpose. In the McGovern case the only appropriation for repair work was $50,000, and that came out of the general fund.

Bar Bubbly Creek Watr.

The "Bubbly creek ordinance" was recommended for passage yesterday by the council health committee. It has been under consideration for two years. The decision of the committee is a defeat for the stockyards interest. The ordinance forbids any water from Bubbly creek being used for domestic, culinary, or mechanical purposes.

Bubbly creek is a bayou of the south fork of the south branch of the river, and for years all the filth which the adjacent stockyards accumulated has been emptied into it. It was the dirtiest part of the dirtiest section of the river.

Move for New Boulevard.

The committee on streets and alleys south finally recommended the ordinance turning over La Salle street, from Jackson boulevard to the river, and Washington street, from La Salle to the river, to the south park commissioners as part of the link for the proposed boulevard connecting the three sides of the city. It is contingent, however, on the devising of a plan for removing the street car tracks from La Salle and Washington streets.

POLICEMAN PLEADS IN VAIN.

Fined on Charge of Intoxication Despite Statement That Physician Prescribed Wine for Him.

The plea that his doctor had prescribed port wine for him did not deter the police trial board yesterday from imposing a fine of three days' pay on Patrick Fitzgerald, a patrolman of the West Chicago avenue station. The policeman was charged with intoxication. John J. Kelly, an engineer at the Thirty-fifth street station, did not appear for trial, and was discharged. Lieut. Morrissey said Kelly had been intoxicated since Jan. 1.

MILITANT FAITH VS. LOVE

Attorney M. D. Roderick, Who Loves a Christian, Beaten.

HE ACCUSES HEBREW KIN.

Jewish Lawyer, Rescued by Police, Says He Will Marry the Widow.

Because he became engaged to Mrs. Blanche Hahney, a pretty young Christian widow of McKinley Park, against the wishes of his family, who are orthodox Jews, Michael D. Roderick, an attorney with offices in the Hartford building, 140 Dearborn street, says he was beaten into insensibility by two relatives Tuesday evening and that his life has been threatened.

Roderick, who is a brother of Ike Roderick, bondsman at the Harrison street station and a First ward Democratic leader, yesterday swore out warrants in the Thirty-fifth street court for his brother, Solomon Roderick, and his brother-in-law, Harry Linden, on the charge of assault. The former is a Republican politician in the Fifth ward.

Tells of Sudden Attack.

Attorney Roderick in his complaint said he was seated alone in his office Tuesday evening, when his brother and brother-in-law entered, and without a word his brother pressed a revolver to his temple and said, "If you marry that Christian woman I will kill you." When he remonstrated with them he said both his brother and the other relative attacked him, first with their fists and then with the butt end of the revolver. They did not cease their attack, he said, until he was unconscious and the threats of neighboring tenants drove them from the building.

When the police arrived at the office Attorney Roderick refused to divulge the names of his assailants. After his wounds had been dressed by a physician, the lawyer went to his residence, 1632 West Thirty-fifth street, going to the court the following morning.

Becomes Engaged; Leaves Residence.

The acquaintance of Roderick and Mrs. Hahney began about a year ago. Both are devoted to music and shortly after meeting at a musical their engagement was announced. Soon afterward Roderick was compelled to leave the residence of his mother because of family objections to his friendship for Mrs. Hahney. Since then, according to the young attorney, he has been threatened with violence by his brother, Solomon, Tuesday evening's attack in his office being the culmination.

The unusual religious battle has aroused the inhabitants of the southwestern suburb in which Mrs. Hahney, who is a brunette, has resided for several years. She has been a widow for two years, since which time she has been teaching music.

The young attorney says, regardless of the outcome, he will be married to Mrs. Hahney, probably next June.

Publicity Does It

Twenty years ago, any man who was long on ambition and short on industry could take the half shells of three English walnuts, a couple of little balls of putty, and go into almost any town in the United States and deprive its inhabitants of their money. It was called the Shell Game.

Today, there is no village in the country where the man with the shell game is not greeted with a smile of humorous contempt. Publicity did it.

We have a story in this number of "Everybody's" on Margin Gambling. It won't stop your gambling on margin, but it will put a severe crimp in you if you read it. You never will put up your margin again with a mind thoroughly at ease. And it will make you wonder sometimes, in the future, after your money is gone, just which man has got it. This will be followed up by other articles to the same end, and we cheerfully predict that twenty years from now the man who asks you to put up your money on a margin will be greeted with the same humorous contempt as the man who to-day asks you to speculate as to which of the three shells conceals the missing pea. Publicity will do it.

This article in the February "Everybody's" is called "THE POISON OF THE STREET." It is not written by an anarchist, nor even by an indigent person worrying about wealth.

The writer is a man of position.

He is a man of comfortable means.

He was at one time manager of the Cleveland branch of the defunct stock-exchange firm of A. O. Brown & Co.

He it was, as trustee for the creditors, who steered the great Everett-Moore Syndicate, of Cleveland, through the sloughs of a seventeen-million-dollar bankruptcy, back to prosperity.

He is president of the Associated Western Yale Clubs, SUCCEEDING PRESIDENT-ELECT TAFT.

Wiser men than you have listened to him!

If there were only time, we should like to tell you what Charles Edward Russell has done this month—how he has taken a subject as common as dirt and given you a result that is pure gold; how Ellis Parker Butler, who wrote that "Pigs Is Pigs" story, has perpetrated another that is a perfect ache of laughter; or of that strange, pitiless narrative, "The Journal of a Neglected Wife"; or of Lindsay Denison's "Irish King," which again is a perfect stream for fun; or the story on "Aristocratic Cats"; or that one of Ralph Paine's of the deckhand who grew up to dominate politics in Florida—but whether you read these others or not, read Dickson's article, "THE POISON OF THE STREET." It is the kind of story that made "Everybody's" famous.

KEEP an eye on that Ohio man whose name is Harmon, Mr. Bryan.

CONGRESSMAN WILLETT soared aloft like an aeroplane and came down like a smashed clay pigeon.

AFTER carefully counting noses Senator Hopkins still finds that the noses he needs are held too high in the air to be enumerated.

PLEASE be attentive. The Hon. Billiam Lorimer has a few whispered suggestions to make.

NEW YORK Republicans have made arrangements to send a live man to the United States senate this time.

AT this distance it looks as if Springfield were in for a long, cold winter.

THE University of Chicago sees no reason to doubt that the prosperity will continue.

GOV. GILLETT may be pardoned for thinking that a salary of $6,000 a year is not enough for an executive who has to act as a buffer between Uncle Sam and the California legislature.

ANSON AND BASEBALL.

Anson always stood for the best in baseball. He was a square fighter. His influence as player and manager was a powerful factor in the upbuilding of the national game. During the years in which he was connected with the National league he was more widely known than any other person in active service on the baseball field. He got results. Often, with inferior material to work with, he developed teams that won victories. Standing always well up toward the top of the batting list among the players of the league, he did his full part in bringing championships and baseball glory to Chicago.

The proposition to bring him once more into active connection with the association of clubs to which he gave the best years of his life makes strong appeal from the sentimental standpoint. If a supervisory position, such as that suggested by the authorities of the Chicago National league club, is to be established, no better man than Anson could be selected to fill it. An honorable record of more than a score of years with the Chicago club gave him a place among the "fans" which will never be lost. If his services can be utilized once again in behalf of the welfare of the game throughout the land it will be counted a good thing for baseball.

WHERE TO ECONOMIZE.

Gov. Deneen recommends the segregation of state and local taxation. If that were done and the state no longer depended on the general property tax for a part of its revenues, whatever sum it now collects under that tax in Cook county would be available for purely local purposes. There would be less complaint all along the line of a lack of money for those purposes.

That is not the only way in which better provision can be made to meet urgent local need of revenue. It is undeniable that the cost of government in this county is much greater than it should be because of the multiplicity of governments which do business on a more or less extensive scale in an area of 890 square miles. Where the functions of any one of these governments can be as well discharged by another government, manifestly the two should be consolidated. There would be a riddance of a certain number of superfluous officials. The salaries paid them would be available for other purposes.

The men who feel a deep interest in the question of taxation and expenditure in Cook county could not take in hand a more useful work than the ascertainment of the cost to the taxpayers of the maintenance of unnecessary governments. When the facts shall have been laid before the taxpayers they will unite in support of any consolidation measure that may be presented to them. They will see in it their escape from the higher taxes which otherwise will have to be imposed to furnish revenue for local purposes.

Gov. Hughes said the other day: "Economy is the essential condition of progress." Cook county is a promising field for the economist because of the large administrative expenditure. But before anything can be accomplished full and accurate information must be collected. There ought to be a commission of some kind—whether it was official or unofficial would make no difference as long as it was competent—to undertake the much needed work.

PEACE WITH VENEZUELA.

The state department officials must rejoice that they are at last to get off their hands the American claims against Venezuela which they have worried over for so many years. There will be no need of further additions to the mountain heap of dispatches relating to them. They have cost in paper, ink, and bother as much as the claimants are honestly entitled to. For, while some of the claims may be meritorious, the damages asked for in all the cases are beyond reason. An impartial arbitration tribunal will scale down the damages unmercifully.

The arrangement with the United States is only a part of the pacific work of President Gomez. He is reëstablishing friendly relations with France, and to aid in the process has remitted a fine of $5,000,000 which the Venezuelan courts, acting under Castro's orders, imposed on the French cable company. Gomez is saying to the nations whom his predecessor insulted and estranged, "Let us have peace." They are ready to make peace in the hope that Venezuela will pay its debts and give proper protection to all foreigners who may invest capital there or go into business there.

Unfortunately there is no assurance of the stability of a just and intelligent Venezuelan government. It is as yet impossible to tell whether President Gomez is the kind of man qualified to hold the presidential office long in a revolutionary country. Until that shall have been settled in the affirmative it would be advisable for foreigners, whether Americans or Europeans, to keep out of Venezuelan enterprises. The fate of many of the speculators who have in the past obtained from a Venezuelan government for next to nothing concessions which they believed would be of great value should be a warning to others.

Friendly relations between Venezuela and this country have been restored. It is to be hoped that there will not be a revolution in Venezuela before the American claims shall have been adjudicated and whatever amount may be found due shall have been paid. The state department will not be free from fear until that last chapter of the history of the vexatious claims shall have been written.

SENATOR ROOT.

New York has honored itself by electing Elihu Root to the United States senate. It has likewise rendered a distinct service to the country at large. Exceptional talents, recognized by the people of his own land and then by those of the wider world, have made Mr. Root one of the conspicuous leaders of a decade. It is a matter for general congratulation that the nation is to have the further benefit of these talents, for six years at least, and perhaps for the rest of a lifetime of accomplishment.

Senator Root follows a line of notable men. He is in the succession to Rufus King, William L. Marcy, Silas Wright, William H. Seward, and William M. Evarts. The history of the United States has many pages which tell of the achievements of these statesmen. With them he is worthy to stand. A lawyer of remarkable ability, he has had a perfect understanding of fundamentals of government to aid him through energetic methods which have brought results.

As secretary of war under President McKinley he established his position as a statesman. He found his department in a chaotic condition. He reorganized it with a zealous interest which has led to a study of every other administrative department with a view to the securing of greater efficiency. He had to cope with the perplexing problems of the Philippines, Porto Rico, and Cuba. The surprising results of the war with Spain were his to handle. He showed his power to deal with large questions in a broad-minded spirit. He saw clearly. The plan of conduct being formed, he persisted in his purposes until he was honored throughout the United States for his organizing and constructive ability.

Advanced to the state department, he became a world character by reason of diplomatic effectiveness. As the United States took its rightful place as a world power, he showed his strength in connection with problems in the orient, with affairs in Cuba, with relationships with Canada. A member of the commission to adjust the boundary between Alaska and the British domain, he closes his work as secretary with the satisfactory determination of long standing international difficulties with Canada. To him must attach much of the credit for a situation which enables his chief to state, "Our national government has reached an agreement with Japan by which there can be a satisfactory solution of every question at issue."

The eventual outcome of the trip among the Latin-American states is likely to make that one of the epoch marking features of a great administration. If it contributed nothing else, it gave occasion for a sentiment which stamped the man with distinction. "We wish for no victories but those of peace; for no territory except our own; for no sovereignty but the sovereignty over ourselves."

With such a record of achievement and with such an ideal, Senator Root's career in the highest legislative body in the land will open with nothing but promise before it. The Empire state should come into its own again under such leadership.

A GIFT AND A RESPONSIBILITY.

Mr. Rockefeller adds another million to his gifts to the University of Chicago. His total contributions to the institution aggregate $24,374,365.79. Up to June 30, 1908, other friends had given $7,128,484.30. The two amounts added show that the university, since its establishment less than a score of years ago, has received from generous supporters $31,500,000. As a considerable portion of the gifts from its principal contributor has been used for current expenses the total assets of the institution fall below the amount mentioned, being, in fact, $26,781,483.90.

The latest gift is a renewed assurance of the friendly interest of the founder, and for that reason, if for no other, is gratifying to the university authorities, to the several thousand students who come from every part of Chicago and represent almost every race, strain, creed, and social condition found in this cosmopolitan city; and to a swelling company of alumni who are giving their strength to Chicago's life. What the university means to the city is not easily estimated. That it should be an increasing source of pride is natural.

The donation of millions to American educational institutions lays a heavy burden of responsibility upon them. Generosity is unstinted. The great schools of the east, the state universities of many commonwealths, the many smaller institutions on denominational basis are finding many friends. Their development is one of the astonishing features of American civilization. Those who marvel at the outpouring of wealth in their behalf have a right to expect powerful contributions to better citizenship, higher culture, more effective administration. The carping critics may question the value of the output. The observant student of American life sees results on every side.

Millions of these dollars are being used for research. Inquiry is being made in every field. Disease is being studied, attacked, conquered. In the domain of geology, physics, chemistry, biology, and many another division of science research is being rewarded.

There are many forces working toward the betterment of human society. It is not easy to discriminate as to origin or power. That education is one of the most important of these factors few have any doubts. That educational opportunities from the kindergarten up are being steadily widened every one knows. That far more in the direction of advance is to be expected and confidently awaited from the eager, restless inquirers in colleges and universities many believe.

It is a source of great satisfaction that the city of Chicago, with its well endowed and equipped schools of many kinds, has become one of the principal centers for the training of American youth for better service in behalf of their day and generation.

IN A MINOR KEY.

Sudden Reaction.

Choleric Old Gentleman—"Miss, if that fool boy of mine marries you——"

Young Woman (raising her lovely eyes to his)—"Well, Mr. Scadley?"

Not Her Affair, but——

The grocer's boy was lumbering up the kitchen stairway with his arms full of packages.

"Boy," said the mistress of the house, somewhat sharply, "are your feet clean?"

"Yes'm," he answered, still climbing the stairs. "It's only me shoes that's dirty."

Effect on the Rising Generation.

Distracted Mother (opening the door of the playroom)—"What are you boys making all this terrible racket about?"

Her Youngest—"We're playin' congress, maw. We've just had a message from the pres'dunt!"

Correcting History.

Alexander the Great wept.

"Why these tears, your majesty?" asked the sycophants. "Isn't it glory enough to have conquered one world?"

"I'm not weeping because there are no more worlds to conquer," blubbered Alexander. "It's because I have a presentiment that some day Sig. Ferrero will find out I'm nothing but a shine!"

The sycophants, suppressing the real facts in the case, gave out the false version of the incident that has come down through the ages.

Might Help Some.

The blacksmith had just inherited a fortune.

"Still," he said, "I'm not going to fold my hands and do nothing. What do you suggest?"

"Take your hands to a good manicure, for the first thing," advised his lawyer.

LORD WARWICK'S boast on the subject of his lineage in the interview which he granted to Mrs. George Augustus Sala, and which, printed in a number of American papers, commences, "Yes, I am descended from the Kingmaker earl of Warwick," will be news to most students of history and genealogy. For there are no ties of blood between the house of Greville, of which the present Lord Warwick is the chief, and the Kingmaker, portrayed by Bulwer-Lytton as "the last of the barons" in the novel of that name, and the only association between them is that of title and of the ownership of Warwick castle.

The Kingmaker had no son, but two daughters, one of whom, Lady Anne Neville, after marrying Edward, prince of Wales, the murdered son of Henry VI., became the consort of Richard III. of England. The other daughter, Lady Isabel, married the duke of Clarence, who was drowned in a butt of Malmsey wine. By this marriage there were two children, a son and a daughter. The son inherited through his mother his grandfather's earldom of Warwick, and died without issue, a parliamentary attainder of his earldom of Warwick following his death and being therefore of a posthumous character.

The daughter, Margaret, countess of Salisbury, who was beheaded in the Tower, had a daughter and four sons, one of whom was Cardinal Pole, archbishop of Canterbury. As the eldest brother of Cardinal Pole left a number of daughters, it might have been possible that through some matrimonial alliance of their descendants with the house of Greville the present earl of Warwick could have boasted of descent, ever so indirect, of the Kingmaker. But had the present earl of Warwick, or any of the other four earls of Warwick of the house of Greville, been able to discover a descent of this kind, we should undoubtedly have heard of it long ere this, and they would have taken the customary steps to secure a repeal of the attainder; all the more as the Kingmaker's earldom of Warwick was a peerage descendable through the female as well as the male side of the house.

Unfortunately for Lord Warwick his own wife has in her book entitled "Warwick Castle and Its Earls" demonstrated the fallacy of his pretensions to be a descendant of the "Kingmaker." For the volume in question shows, among other things, how it is that her husband has no connection whatsoever, directly or indirectly, with the peer known as "the last of the barons." The book is well worthy of study, for, leaving aside the many legends which are connected with Warwick castle, it proves the historic pile, which is the bourne of so many American pilgrimages, to have been built by the daughter of Alfred the Great, and to have belonged in turn to the houses of Newburgh, of Beauchamp, of Neville, of Dudley, and of Greville, the house of Rich, which for 140 years enjoyed the possession of the earldom of Warwick, having never owned Warwick castle.

Warwick castle belonged to the Dudleys when it was visited by Queen Elizabeth, and among its most frequent guests was Amy Robsart, wife of Robert Dudley, earl of Leicester, and the heroine of Sir Walter Scott's novel "Kenilworth." The Dudley earl of Warwick played a considerable rôle in the opening up of this country. It was he who furnished Sir Martin Frobisher with the means of making all those discoveries in the northern part of this hemisphere which are commemorated, among other things, by what is now Frobisher's bay and by the so-called Countess of Warwick island, north of Hudson straits. This Lord and Lady Warwick may be said to have ruined themselves in efforts to explore, develop, and colonize this country, and among their fellow sufferers were Robert Dudley, earl of Leicester, and Queen Elizabeth herself.

It was another of Queen Elizabeth's favorites—namely, Fulke Greville—who obtained from her successor, King James I., a grant of the then half ruined Warwick castle and dependencies, being raised to the peerage as Lord Brooke. Stabbed and killed when already on his deathbed by a servant who was angered at finding that he had not been remembered in his master's will, the barony of Brooke and Warwick castle, with all the other estates, passed, according to a special remainder of the peerage, to his cousin, Robert Greville, as second Lord Brooke; the eighth Lord Brooke, and eighth of the Greville owners of Warwick castle, being raised first to the earldom of Brooke and fifteen years later to the earldom of Warwick on the death without issue of the last of the earls of Warwick of the house of Rich. This was in 1758, and the present Lord Warwick is only the fifth earl of this creation.

The house of Rich may be said to have been founded by that rascally lord chancellor who gave evidence against Sir Thomas More, and who took a personal part in the torture of Anne Askew, among its most notable members having been Penelope Rich, who was the "Stella" of Sir Philip Sydney, and Charlotte, countess of Warwick, who married Addison. The house of Greville itself was founded by a merchant of London of the name of William Greville, who loaned money to Richard II.

Lady Robert Montagu, whose death is announced from London, was a grand aunt of the present duke of Manchester, having been the widow of Lord Robert Montagu, a younger brother of the seventh duke. She was Lord Robert's second wife, and was of humble origin, having, indeed, been a domestic servant up to the time when Lord Robert led her to the altar. She was employed as a housemaid at the house next to that of Lord Robert, and, watching her out of the windows of his study while she was scrubbing the house door steps of a morning, he fell in love with her, and by wedding her transformed her into a sister-in-law of the then duchess of Manchester, and present and actual widowed duchess of Devonshire. He had several children by her, who have experienced some difficulty in making both ends meet. For, although his first wife was an heiress, he only retained a life interest in her property, which went at his death to the son she had borne him—namely, Robert Montagu.

The latter's wife, a Miss Annie McMicking, also a great heiress, and owner of Miltonese, one of the finest places in Scotland, was convicted in 1892 of having brought about the death of her 3 year old daughter, Mary, by shocking cruelty, and was sentenced to a couple of years' imprisonment for homicide. Robert Montagu, who thus enjoys through his mother and through his wife an income of over $100,000 a year, and the possession of large estates in Scotland and Ireland, is third in the direct line of succession to the dukedom of Manchester, the first being the present duke's little boy and the second the late duke's only brother, Lord Charles Montague, a confirmed bachelor, who has not the slightest idea of marrying, and who inherited a handsome bequest from his stepfather, the late duke of Devonshire. He makes his home with his mother.

The late Lord Robert Montagu was a most unpopular man, who died estranged from most of the members of his family, and with relatively few to regret him. For he was as inconstant in his friendships as he was in his political and religious beliefs, having changed backward and forward between the church of England and the church of Rome so many times that it is difficult to recall now in which of the two he died.

In reply to a reader I would state that the famous statue of Launcelot Blackburne, archbishop of York, which used to figure on the apex of the York Minster's great south gable, immediately above the magnificent marigold window, is now hidden away in the Norman crypt of the cathedral, where it is shown only on request. It was removed by the chapter in comparatively recent times, being replaced by a stone cross. The statue represented the primate in the act of playing a fiddle, which used to cause the city children in York to insist that the archbishop played a jig on his ancient instrument when the clock struck 12. This is the archbishop who won the primacy by uniting George I. with the wicked duchess of Munster after all other prelates had refused to wed him to this infamous woman.

In his youth he had been an itinerant fiddler, and is known to have put in several years of buccaneering in the Spanish main under the command of a celebrated pirate chieftain known as Redmond of the Red Hand, whose ship was the Black Broom, from which the future archbishop on entering the church took the name of Blackburne, his original patronymic having been Muggins.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

[No communications unaccompanied by the name and address of the writer—which will not be published if not desired—will appear. Communications for this department must not exceed 200 words.—Ed. Tribune.]

HOPES PRIMARY IS IGNORED.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I heartily agree with Evan Z. Reed in his opinion of the result of the primaries in relation to the office of senator, not only for the reasons assigned by Mr. Reed in his letter to THE TRIBUNE, but for the other reason that the result of that primary election is in no wise the voluntary and unbiased will of the Republican voters of the state.

It is a well known fact that Mr. Hopkins had the organized support of all the place holders and place hunters. They used official position and official promise to advance his interest and put him to the front. He has shown in his official capacity no unusual ability or qualifications for the position of senator, neither has he shown those qualities of manly character that would entitle him to preferment. The fact is, the people at heart don't want him, and if they could have a chance to express their honest opinion would without doubt say so.

This primary law, that has for the first time been tried, has been found wanting and unsatisfactory, and the Illinois legislature would be fully justified in ignoring it altogether in the election of the United States senator. GEORGE W. STONE.

DANGEROUS HANDRAILS ON PORCHES.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Why don't building commissioners pay more attention to decayed handrails on porches?

These handrails are fastened to the posts by toed nails, the contiguous portions collect moisture, which causes decay, therefore apt to give way under the slightest strain.

Recently in my neighborhood, one of these handrails gave away, causing a sad accident.

MODERN VS. ANCIENT SUFFRAGIST.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—It appears there is a conspiracy among modern woman suffragists to overcome the deep seated prejudice existing in the minds of the people that women suffragists are plain faced, unattractive, unbecomingly dressed women, homely and severe.

The desire of the modern suffragists to overcome these false impressions is leading them to the other extreme if not to the point of folly, since they now select speakers because of their physical attractiveness, and ability to display ravishing costumes, picturesque hats, trailing gowns and imported furbelows.

The idea of these modern suffragists must be to impress upon the minds of people in general and men in particular that the desire to vote is not going to make women one whit less stylish, pretty, sweet or cunning. The logical, plain faced, plainly dressed woman suffragist is no longer sought as an attraction for a suffrage meeting.

There is one thing, however, which is hopelessly changeable, one obstruction which stands stanch and true to the line on its own merits. It exasperates the modern unthinking women suffragists; conspire as they may they have not as yet been able to eradicate it. If they could only wipe out those two nerve shocking words "Woman Suffrage," the battle would be won. Just those two words stand now in their way.

The modern woman has tried to tame and soften these two words; she has said, "Political Equality," "Social Science," "Civics," "Equal Rights," "Municipal Housekeeping," and what not?

The word suffragette was welcomed to our country as an aid in making the word suffragist a little more respectable, and thus by giving the word suffragist "a running mate," there has been a new interest created, and who knows but what since substantial powerful man has organized in Chicago to march under "Woman Suffrage" banner, this country may yet be whipped into a healthy respect for "Woman Suffrage."

MINONA S. FITTS-JONES.

"THIS IS MY BIRTHDAY"

—Shakspeare.

Judson M. W. Jones, in the stationery and printing business in Chicago for half a century, is 88 years old today. He is by a wide margin the oldest of the 300 or more Chicagoans whose names have appeared in THE TRIBUNE'S daily birthday lists published since the first of the present year. Mr. Jones was born in Rensselaer county, N. Y., five years before there was any sort of railroad in operation in the United States and three years before Marquis de Lafayette made his famous visit to this country in 1824. He came to Chicago fifty-two years ago and was one of those who fell with the big fire of '71 and rose again. His home is at 480 Dearborn avenue, but he is spending the winter in the south.

Dr. James Nevins Hyde, who bandaged arms in the United States navy forty-four years ago, is 69 years old today.

Prof. Joseph P. Iddings, geologist and archeologist of the University of Chicago and prolific writer on these and kindred topics, is 52.

Henry D. Laughlin of the Great Northern hotel, capitalist and manufacturer and once a judge in St. Louis, is 61.

Ernest W. Heath, 4847 Kimbark avenue, whose father, Monroe Heath, was mayor of Chicago in 1876, is 51.

Stuart G. Shepard, attorney and formerly member of the Illinois naval reserves, is 35. He lives at 369 East Chicago avenue.

Henry T. Brown, 1905 Barry avenue, whose father was once a member of the provincial parliament of Nova Scotia, is 43. Employés of Chase & Sanborn will sound the alarm.

John F. Eberhart, 3515 West Sixty-fourth street, educator, who organized the Cook County Normal school and is a life member of the National Teachers' association, is 80. The late Dr. H. W. Thomas was one of his pupils many years ago.

Sam Finney of the board of trade, living in Kenilworth, is 45.

Samuel Parker, who knew Lincoln, wrote an apostrophe to him, and is said to look like him, is 78, and he came to Illinois from Ohio seventy years ago. He has been twenty-three years in the office of the election commissioners of Chicago, and "voted for them all from Fremont to Taft."

Unique Grafting Operation Performed Upon Two South Carolina Girls in Baltimore, Md.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—A unique skin grafting operation was performed upon two girls, Eleanore and Mamie Berger, of Charleston, S. C., at the Union Protestant infirmary by Dr. J. M. T. Finney today.

The sole of one foot of the elder girl, Mamie, aged 15, was attached to a place on the leg of her little sister, Eleanore, aged 4, and supports were placed to keep the girls in position until the skin had grafted on the little girl's leg.

This now has taken place, and the two girls have been cut apart. In former attempts to remedy the condition of the little girl's leg, which was caused by a car accident, there were grafted 144 square inches of skin, which the elder sister sacrificed.

HERO BOARD GIVES 26 AWARDS: CHICAGO SECTION MISSES OUT.

Carnegie Commission Hands Down Money and Medals for All Parts of Country Except This District.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—The Carnegie hero commission today handed down twenty-six awards of money and medals for heroes and heroines all over the country with the exception of the Chicago district where the agents of the fund appear not to have been working for months.

Perhaps the most unique awards made by the commission were those in conection with two Indians who appear to have done some good life saving work in the west. The Indians were Peter Dean and "Indian George." A year ago they were deck hands on a steamer on the Colorado river when a woman went overboard with her child. The Indians jumped in after her. Dean was drowned and "Indian George" nearly drowned, but the woman and child were saved. The young wife of Dean was given a medal and $25 per month for life. "Indian George" gets a medal and $1,000.

Sarah H. Killikelly of Pittsburg, who is 70 years of age, received a silver medal and $75 per month for the rest of her life for saving the life of a neighbor's servant girl. Last September Miss Killikelly was calling on a neighbor when the clothing of the servant took fire. Miss Killikelly grasped the servant and threw her down on the floor, wrapped a rug over her, and holding her down called to her to keep her mouth closed so as not to inhale the flames. The aged woman inhaled some of the flames herself and for some time was laid up, but she now has fully recovered.

Abner L. Kuykendall of Beaumont, Tex., was given a bronze medal for a peculiar feat of life saving. He risked his life to save that of a tramp at Beaumont on Dec. 21, 1907. He threw the tramp from the rails and rolled over the hill with him. The tramp fled and has never been seen since.

John Bosko Jr., aged 12, of Marblehead, O., was awarded a bronze medal and $2,000. Bosko on March 16, 1907, saved Michael Pidilla, aged 7, from being carried out into Lake Erie on a cake of ice on which the boy had been playing.

A silver medal and $50 a month for life with $5 a month additional for each dependent child under 16 was awarded to Catherine Schwendinger, widow of John Schwendinger of Dubuque, Ia., who was drowned Sept. 6, 1908, in an attempt to save Louis J. Trout, 20 years old, who could not swim.

The cash awards made by the commission since its organization in May, 1905, including those made today, amount to $163,452.26, and the pension allowances $16,440 monthly. All the officers of the commission were reëlected.

BIG ISSUE OF LINCOLN STAMPS.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—To commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, Postmaster General Meyer today announced that 100,000,000 new 2 cent postage stamps will be issued on or before Feb. 12.

The design comprises the portrait of Lincoln in an ellipse, with a spray of laurel and the inscription "U. S. postage" at the top and "1809—Feb. 12—1909," at the bottom.

The color design will be red, as with the present 2 cent stamp. The profile was taken from a copy in the Corcoran art gallery, Washington, of Saint Gaudens' statue of Lincoln in Lincoln park, Chicago.

The patronesses of the event are Mrs. E. H. Haines, Mrs. John Worthy, Mrs. E. L. Murfey, Mrs. O. C. Simonds, Mrs. Frances P. Simmons, Mrs. E. A. Clark, and Miss Grace Dixon. Mrs. George B. Carpenter is president of the club and Mrs. W. F. Grower chairman of the fountain committee, who is to profit by the proceeds and the playing. Tickets are being sold for the privilege of playing.

ALL QUIET IN HARVESTER SUIT.

Three Conflicting Orders Filed, but the Threatened Verbal Clash Does Not Develop.

The threatened verbal clash between Maxwell Edgar, former and maybe present secretary-treasurer-general counsel of the Illinois Tax Reform league, and his fellow league members, Henry M. Ashton, Frank W. Jones, and Herbert Miller did not disturb the peace of Judge Windes' court yesterday. A controversy was threatened over the court order to be entered in the suit of Edgar for a writ of mandamus to compel the Cook county board of review to assess taxes of $7,000,000 against certain holders of the majority of stock of the International Harvester company. But everything went off with dispatch.

First came Mr. Ashton with his order. Then Attorney Robert S. Iles, counsel for Edgar, appeared with an order, and finally Maj. Edgar B. Tolman, counsel for the defendants in the suit, presented a third order.

Judge Windes asked the parties in the triangular suit to file memorandums of objections to the orders of the others, and concluded he would enter an order as soon as these objections can be considered.

NOW NERO IS WHITEWASHED

Sig. Ferrero Says Tyrant Actually Aided Christianity.

HELPED ST. PAUL WORK.

Really Did Not Fiddle as Rome Burned; Was Just Crazy.

Nero was not such a bad sort as he has been represented for the last nineteen centuries or so. The Roman emperor, who has been decried for his horrible crimes of murder, arson, matricide, and brutality, was really the victim of circumstances, and far from stopping the course of Christianity, he furthered it. Incidentally the story that he burnt Rome is too absurd to consider.

This was the view of the "infamous" pagan ruler presented yesterday by Guglielmo Ferrero, the Italian psychological historian, in a lecture on Nero at Mandel hall at the University of Chicago.

Sig. Ferrero accomplished the partial rehabilitation of Nero and discredited many of the spiteful tales told about him by invidious persons, such as Tacitus and his brother historians of old.

Did Not Fiddle at Fire.

Sig. Ferrero admitted that Nero poisoned Britannicus, his rival for the throne; connived at the murder of his mother, persecuted the Christians, and plunged Rome into a delirium of luxury and crime, and even made a fool of himself by singing in public.

He denied emphatically that "he fiddled while Rome burned," and credited him with being responsible along with St. Paul for the spread of Christianity.

Nero was the victim of plotting historians and enemies like the rest of the Cæsar family. He was but 17 years old when he began to rule and soon became almost insane and finally totally so.

Fire a Mystery.

Of the burning of Rome he said:

"The cause of the burning of Rome is obscure. I do not by any means exclude the hypothesis that the fire may have been accidental. Nero did not start it. He was no fool. He was already unpopular with the people, and did not dare risk their wrath by such a deed. The story that the Christians caused the conflagration is also just as unbelievable.

"Nero shed the first Christian blood, but it is not possible to classify him with the enemies of Christianity. He was really, because of his love for art, a powerful collaborator with St. Paul in the spread of the new religion.

"Nero and St. Paul, extreme antitheses in their time, as the centuries roll by, really turn out to be co-workers."

Disregards Plea of Corporation Lawyers for Delay—Government Counsel Is Ready.

The convenience of courts as well as that of attorneys is to be considered in the setting of cases for trial, according to the mildly sarcastic opinion expressed by Judge Albert B. Anderson of Indianapolis, sitting in the United States District court yesterday.

Judge Anderson followed out this opinion by setting the hearing of the second trial of the Standard Oil case, in which Judge Landis assessed the record fine of $29,000,000, for Feb. 23, despite vigorous pleas of Attorneys John S. Miller and Moritz Rosenthal for delay.

The Standard Oil representatives based their pleas on the fact that they are scheduled to defend their company in an equity suit started at St. Louis against the Standard Oil company by the government.

"The trouble with you gentlemen seems to be that you have too much business," remarked Judge Anderson, smilingly.

"It is not a matter of convenience to us so much as a matter of importance to the government," urged Attorney Miller for a delay.

RUSSIAN REFUGEE SAVES THE MONEY GIVEN HIM.

He Spends None Upon Food, Although Reported as Complaining of the Jail Menu.

The county jail daily menu does not agree with the digestion of Christian Rudovitz, Russian "political refugee," charged with murder and arson. This is the cause of the activity in the Political Refugee Defense league, which is taking measures to provide $3.50 a week for his food.

The sum yesterday had not been turned over, but according to Jailor Will J. Davies, it is doubtful whether the prisoner would spend it that way. Miss Jane Addams and others have interested themselves in him, and have sent him money. The $12.50 or thereabout of Miss Addams, as well as other sundry sums, are being saved to provide defense to help keep him out of the hands of the Russian government.

Still, the prisoner intimates that it is difficult to live on county jail bread alone, and that is the chief article provided. Then, too, the interpreter recited his statement:

"The meat is what I cannot eat. It makes me feel heavy and sick."

Effectiveness Greatly Improved by Recent Inventions, Says Commander Witherspoon.

Lieut. Commander E. T. Witherspoon, U. S. N., told 300 members of the Chicago Electric club, at a luncheon yesterday at the electrical show, that in a quarter of a century the value and effectiveness of the navy had been advanced a hundred years by the adoption of modern inventions for the equipment of war vessels. He estimated that the electrical equipment of the latest first class battleship costs $600,000. This morning a delegation of Louisville, Ky., business men will arrive in Chicago to attend the show.

SPEAKS FOR FEDERAL CONTROL.

Dr. Maltbie of New York Public Service Commission Addresses Association of Commerce.

"The officials of large corporations as well as the public will be benefited by a proper system of governmental supervision of public service corporations. Strike legislation as as well as lobbying will cease." These opinions were given by Dr. Milo R. Maltbie of the public service commission of New York, in a talk to the members of the ways and means committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce at their noonday meeting yesterday.

Mrs. Ethel Arnold, a sister of Mrs. Humphry Ward, the novelist, may enter the Chicago suffrage campaign. The local suffrage committee is trying to induce her to speak at one of the "parlor meetings," which the committee is planning. With Mrs. Clarence Mackay and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Mrs. Arnold spoke recently at a reception given in New York by Mrs. Mackay.

Chicago Firm Has Claim Against State Assets of New York Corporation.

James B. Clow & Sons filed a bill in the Superior court yesterday asking the appointment of a receiver for the Illinois assets of the Metropolitan Surety company of New York. The complainant avers there is due it $1,000 for a contractor's bond given it by the defendant.

When the grand march of the ninth annual charity ball of the Friendly Aid society last evening started its stately progress around the dancing hall of the Congress hotel some $3,500 clinked in the cash boxes of the organization as the visible returns of the women's work for the ball's success.

"Three thousand of this will be profit," said Mrs. Fred B. Woodland, chairman of the ball committee. Nine of the most worthy charities of the city will benefit by the evening of entertainment.

In order that the benefit might be large the entertainment was reduced in elaborateness until it bordered on the plain. No money was spent on decorations. Not a flower graced the room except such as the individual women wore. The refreshment was lemon frappé and nothing more. The hall and the music were almost the only objects of expense.

"For all other entertainment," said Mrs. Woodland, "we thought that the guests ought to be able to depend upon themselves. With a good hall, fine music, beautiful women, and brave men, we thought other accessories unnecessary. And we have managed to keep the expense down as never before."

By 9 o'clock the guests had begun to arrive, and by 10 the big ballroom was comfortably filled. Other guests straggled in throughout the evening. The giving of the old fashioned grand march—called at 9:30 o'clock—was the return to a custom which had become a memory. Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey H. Ball were the leaders, Mrs. Ball being the president of the organization.

Preceding the march the guests had been received by Mrs. Fred B. Woodland, chairman, and Mrs. C. C. Chickering, assistant chairman of the ball committee. Mrs. Woodland wore a gown of white liberty satin.

The evening had opened with a group of dinners, among the entertainers being Scott Thurber, who had a party at the Annex, including Mr. and Mrs. Fred Woodland, Dr. Charles Elliott, Mrs. Porter Fraker, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Sweet.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Thompson had entertained at their Grand boulevard home also, their guests including Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. R. Litzinger, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Sherman, and Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Jacobs. Mrs. Thompson wore an empire gown of white lace. Mr. and Mrs. George Woodland also entertained at dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Stevens had one of the interesting box parties of the evening, their guests including Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Burrows, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Knight, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Harmon, and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Smith. Later they were Mr. and Mrs. Stevens' guests at supper at the Annex. Mr. and Mrs. La Verne W. Noyes had a box party, which included Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Louer, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Raleigh, Mr. and Mrs. Evan Evans, Dr. Thomas and Mr. Macomber of Des Moines, Ia.

LINCOLN CENTENARY

Lincoln and Books

"Denny," said Lincoln, "the things I want to know are in books. My best friend's the man who'll get me one."

At the end of a furrow, while the horses were resting, Lincoln would sit on a stump, take a book out of his pocket and read. He'd read at night when all the rest were asleep, and well into the morning, and would walk miles to get a book.

Interior of Lincoln's Log Cabin, where he got his education by reading. He did not go to school more than a year in his whole life.

He read some books five or six times over, and wasn't satisfied until he thoroughly understood—"North, East, South and West"—everything he read.

There are hundreds of young Americans doing this today, more or less well. Keep your eye on them.

The Lincoln Centenary Edition of the Chicago Tribune, Sunday, February 7th, is full of good things to know—for business men and other men, women, boys and girls.

TEXAS TRAINING GROUNDS FOR SOX

CLIMATE IS JUST RIGHT.

Presence of Other Major League Teams Will Afford Chance for Early Games.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Charles Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, emulating the example of several major league magnates, has decided to buy permanent training quarters for his club and soon will effect the purchase of grounds in Texas, where his players will do their conditioning every spring.

The grounds, which probably will be near here, will be used by the Sox in the spring of 1910. Next spring the Chicago club will journey to the coast and will follow practically the same route as the one traversed last season. This will be the last California trip for Comiskey's club. The Texas purchase will be made and the grounds ready for use before another year has passed.

Ted Sullivan, formerly a scout for the Chicago magnate, will arrive here in a few days to look over the country and decide where the best training quarters can be obtained. During his stay here Sullivan will stage his new play, "In Ole Virginnie," but his real reason for visiting this part of the country will be to act as "ground scout" for Comiskey.

Climate Is Ideal.

The climate and the training facilities here made an impression on the owner of the White Sox the last time he visited Texas. He is satisfied that the state offers ideal weather and location for the conditioning of ball teams. Furthermore, he knows that Texas' population will turn out in force to see the White Sox exhibition games whenever they are staged in this state.

The St. Louis teams, the Cardinals and Browns, the New York Giants, and the Washington club now are doing their training here, and the managers of these four teams are convinced there is no better spot in the south or west for getting the players into shape.

It is not know here what part of Texas Comiskey will select. He intends to buy outright the grounds and it is presumed they will be near one of the springs.

Practice Games in Plenty.

Practice games in plenty can be secured for the Sox, once they are established here, for the American and National league teams, which now are training in Texas, and the Texas league teams, which start their training early, will be willing and anxious to book games with the only club which has succeeded in winning a world's championship series from the Cubs.

CUT IN MAROON SQUAD TODAY.

Stagg Will Eliminate Aspirants for the Baseball Nine, Favoring Candidates Who Display Interest in Work.

Director Stagg will perform the first weeding out process on his Maroon baseball team today, and, according to the Midway coach, at least ten of the candidates for the team are in danger of being eliminated from the squad unless they improve their work. Although the squad at present numbers but thirty, less than one-sixth of the number which reported to Director Huff at Illinois, Stagg believes it will be better to concentrate his efforts on a few men.

Three considerations will govern the conditions of the elimination. The men will be chosen to hold their places on the squad because of a fair prospect of being eligible in the spring, on the basis of their work in fielding and batting, and on the interest they display in their work.

This is the first time Stagg ever has thought it necessary to cut down the number of aspirants for the ball team, inasmuch as in previous years the material for a full team sometimes has been wanting. Increased interest has been displayed at the Midway this winter in baseball, and, as a consequence, some of the "would-bes" who reported are hopelessly uninformed in the rudiments of the game.

Stagg has a novel way of keeping track of the work of the different players. During practice he carries a card for every man. For a good catch or batting exhibition, the lucky candidate receives a credit mark, while for a misplay of any kind one credit point is removed.

LOOMS UP AS "WORLD BEATER."

Pitcher Hagerman, Secured by the Cubs, Reported to Be Playing Great Ball in Cuba.

President Murphy of the Cubs appears to have picked up a world beater in the person of Z. Z. Hagerman, the young pitcher whom he secured from the Des Moines club at the close of last season.

The Cub chief yesterday received a missive from Havana, Cuba, where the youth is now playing ball, announcing that the Cubans would be willing to keep him there all the year around. Already Dick Cooley, manager of the Des Moines club, has asked President Murphy to loan him his services during the coming season. The Cub president, however, has been impressed so favorably by tales of the recruit's prowess that he has determined to take him on the trip south with the champions, and allow Manager Chance to give him a thorough trial.

George Hull, scout for the South Bend Central league club, was a visitor in our city yesterday. He was in search of superfluous major league possessions for positions on the Indiana village's ball team. He made President Murphy an offer for Mordecai Brown, but bid $25,000 under the price at which that young man is held. Chick Fraser will leave today for his Idaho ranch.

BLOCKS MOVE ON TURF BILL

California Assembly Votes Against Amendment.

MOTION IS LOST BY 52 TO 23.

Battle on Walker-Otis Measure Now Transferred to the Senate.

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—By a vote of 52 to 23 the assembly this afternoon defeated a movement to amend the Otis-Walker anti-racetrack bill by adding to it the poolroom features of the Martinelli poolroom bill already introduced in both houses.

Assemblyman Butler, who offered the amendment, stated his belief that under this bill it would be impossible to make successful prosecution as pools frequently are sold on races in foreign countries and other states, making it a difficult matter to produce witnesses of the actual running of the races. The vote taken was the third test vote on the subject. With the question practically settled in the assembly in favor of the Walker-Otis or "Hughes" law, the scene of operations changed today to the senate, where Chairman Weed announced he had called a meeting of the committee on public morals for Tuesday to consider antiracetrack matters.

Senator Weed stated he wished to give both sides a chance to present their arguments. President Thomas A. Williams of the New California Jockey club and a corps of attorneys will represent the track interests.

Allie Moore of Charlevoix, Mich., set a new record for the half mile at Riverview rink last night making the distance in 1:14 1-5, beating the mark held by Fred Tyrell, the Illinois champion, by four-fifths of a second. He was competing in a time trial against Tyrell, who finished in 1:16 2-5. Moore was paced by Henry Becker and Joe Munch. In the mile trial Tyrell after covering four and one-half laps in 1:15, fainted. Moore made the mile in 2:32 2-5.

AN EPITAPH.

A fellow died the other day,
A fellow that you knew,
A fellow you admired a lot—
Admired what he could do.
And this is what they murmured
As they lowered him to his shelf,
"He did a lot for other men,
But nothing for himself.
Amen."

It is given to few persons in the ordinary walks of life to have and to hold for a moment, with no policeman guarding, a certified check for $100,000. Such an instrument was spread before the enraptured gaze of all who might butt in and see in the loop district yesterday. It was signed by Charles A. Comiskey, who carelessly carried it in the pocket of his overcoat. It symbolized the purchase of a new baseball park, which is a mere transaction in these piping times of baseball prosperity.

This constitutes a new record in sporting realty deals in these parts. The next closest to it was the purchase of the site of the Harlem racetrack by John Condon for $70,000. We understand that Mr. Condon still has it.

Possibly we have not been looking out sharply and may have overlooked it, but we are still waiting for Ty Cobb and Hans Wagner to kick in with their usual midwinter ultimatum. Last year about this time they lent themselves kindly to this line of going.

GAMES IN BOWLING LEAGUES.

Ruehls Average 973 1-3 in the Southwest Tourney and Score Three Straight—Becker Averages 221.

An average of 973 1-3 by the Ruehls in the Southwest league was the best series among the local bowling leagues last night, the Brewers being almost the only club in town to roll fast enough to keep warm. The Southwests were their opponents and were whitewashed for their pains in showing up. Becker led the slaughter with a 221 average.

In the Bryn Mawr league the Colonnas and Columbus had a heated argument with the "Five Swedes" winning the odd game. The Reliables won a triple victory over the La Bodas in the other series. The Diesels started their second round in the Glenwood league by winning two games from the Sympathys.

JOHNSON AND LANGFORD SURE TO MEET IN LONDON MAY 24.

National Sporting Club Clinches Bout for Heavyweight Title, Winner to Receive $4,000.

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—A heavyweight championship battle between Jack Johnson and Sam Langford, scheduled for twenty rounds at the National Sporting club in London on May 24, has been clinched. The men will fight for the surprisingly small purse of $6,000, of which $4,000 will go to the winner and $2,000 to the loser.

But there is an excellent reason why Johnson and Langford have accepted. It appears the National Sporting club helped to finance Johnson's trip to Australia to corner Tommy Burns and that in return for this favor, Sam Fitzpatrick promised that, win or lose, Johnson would return to England to fight at the famous boxing club.

Fitzpatrick will make good and already has cabled the new champion to be on hand to meet Langford. The latter is disappointed at the smallness of the purse, but as he cannot get a match with anybody in this country he decided to tackle Johnson on British soil. The club has guaranteed $750 expense money for each man.

WILL COME EAST NEXT MONTH.

Jeffries to Show in California Two Weeks More, Then May Appear in Chicago.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Jim Jeffries decided today to accept theatrical engagements that will take him for two weeks through California, after which he will be sent east the latter part of February, opening either in New York or Chicago.

"From guarantees that have been offered," said his manager tonight, "Jeffries will be able to make $10,000 during these two weeks in California. When the western tour is ended we will shoot him east at once and will open either in Chicago or New York. One of the biggest houses in Chicago has made Jeffries an offer of one-third of the entire receipts for one week at that house.

It is probable Sam Berger and Joe Kennedy will be taken on the eastern trip as sparring partners. It is estimated Jeffries will spend at least twenty weeks on the stage.

BIG PURSE FOR JIM JEFFRIES.

John L. Sullivan, Representing Rich "Sports," Offers $75,000 for Bout for Heavyweight Title.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—An offer of $75,000 for a match between Jeffries and Johnson has been made by John L. Sullivan, according to a statement made by the former heavyweight champion today, who is playing at a local theater here. He stated that he represented a number of men who are willing to put up the money for a contest between these two men.

"In the meantime," said Sullivan, "I am trying to find a good man to take Jeffries' place in the event that he will not reënter the ring, and I will find somebody."

He added that the place for the fight has not been decided, but that San Francisco is under consideration.

HAYES CHALLENGES WINNER

Will Race Pietri or Corey Here on 5th of February.

BOTH RUNNERS IN CONDITION

Italian and Frenchman End Hard Practice for Tomorrow Night.

Corey and Dorando Pietri will run with an added incentive in Dexter Park pavilion tomorrow night, for the winner will meet Johnny Hayes in a match race on the pavilion track the night of Feb. 5.

The chance of meeting Hayes is of greater importance to Corey than to Dorando, but the Italian would like to have another crack at the American runner for the purpose of proving his superiority. Dorando, always has felt his defeat in the London Marathon keenly. In spite of the fact that there was a large field, Hayes was the only man in sight when Dorando collapsed near the tape. Even Longboat stopped in fifteen miles.

For this reason the London Marathon was regarded pratically as a two man race and Pietri had his first taste of revenge when he trimmed Hayes by half a lap in the twenty-six mile run in New York. Two out of three would make him the acknowledged master.

Should Hayes win, the complications would tighten among the men who have known defeat, Longboat being the formidable man in the field and the likely rival of the New Yorker. Hayes has done nothing since he let Dorando pass him, but is in active training in anticipation of the chance to get back into his old prominence. His challenge to the winner came by wire to Jimmy Callahan yesterday.

ENGLISH SOCCER TEAM COMING.

Arrangements Are Made for Tour of Pilgrim Team in America Next Fall—Will Play Here.

Manager Tom Cahill of St. Louis, who has just returned from England, where he went to arrange for a tour of the Pilgrim football team, was in the city last night. His mission was entirely successful, and the English soccerites who visited this country in the fall of 1905 will again tour here.

Cahill brought back with him signed contracts calling for a six weeks' visit. The visitors will arrive about the middle of October, opening in Philadelphia immediately after the close of the baseball season. Games will be played at Newark, N. J., New York, Fall River, Mass., Cleveland, St. Louis, Chicago, and other points.

Capt. Fred Milnes, who led the last team, again will be in charge and will bring over fifteen players, Vivian Woodward, the noted international center forward, again being included in the side. Mr. Milnes intends to bring over a strong team and to place the cup given by Sir Ernest Cochrane in competition. An effort also will be made to have the American team making the best showing against the visitors take a trip through England the following year.

The Chicago end of the match will be in charge of the Hyde Park club. It is expected the visit of the Englishmen will give a big boost to soccer on this side of the water. Their previous visit aroused much enthusiasm, and, despite the team was $5,000 behind when it left Canada, the deficit on the whole trip amounted to only $1,600, and at that the tour was not managed economically.

The Davitt team of the Chicago League of Association Football has changed its name to Celtic and has been reorganized. "Teddy" Booth is the new secretary.

Calumet High, champion of the southern section of the high school basketball league, proved superior to the Lake aggregation in the final contest yesterday afternoon at the Central Y. M. C. A. gymnasium and was returned victor by 20 to 13 over its rival from the south central group.

Calumet went into the lead right at the start of the contest and although goals from the field were scarce on both sides, little Ball at right forward for Calumet scored two and these, with the free throws counted by the same player, kept Calumet in front. The score at half time was 11 to 8 in favor of the southern champions.

Calumet Keeps Up Clip.

Calumet continued its good work in the last twenty minutes and with its combination going better than that attempted by the rival five, managed to retain the lead for the first part of the going. Then toward the end of the contest Cherry and Griffith tossed in long shots, that of the latter being an overhead attempt. These tosses placed the team well in the lead. In the meantime Ball was missing fewer free throws than Eckland, who was off his usual form, and when time was called Calumet had a comfortable margin. Lineup:

Calumet [20].		Lake [13].
Ball	Right forward	Eckland
Cherry	Left forward	Williams
Rich	Center	Shepard
Drew	Left guard	Zueth
Griffith	Right guard	Rosenberg

Englewood, 14; La Grange, 11.

Englewood won its second straight game in the class B finals in the preliminary contest by winning from La Grange, 14 to 11. It was easy for the victors during the first part of the game and they established a lead of six points during the initial twenty minutes.

In the last half, however, La Grange came back strong and worked hard to cut down its opponents' lead. The forwards, however, were off in their shooting, and this, with the fact that Englewood played a strong defensive game, prevented the westerners from overtaking their opponents, and the contest finished with Englewood three points to the good. Lineup:

Labaugh	Right forward	Titsworth
Baker	Left forward	Tilton, Haskins
Guthridge	Center	Kimball
Myers	Left guard	Upton, Farley
Carney	Right guard	Newell

Baskets—Labaugh [2], Myers, Kimball [2]. Free throws—Guthridge [7], Titsworth [6], Labaugh, Kimball. Referee—Foster. Umpire—De Kruif. Time of halves—20 minutes.

Through the second period the Lewis team again showed supremacy, but Armour displayed better scoring ability. Dempsey, who got a hard smash on the nose, played a star game, throwing seven baskets. Lineup:

Lewis [38].		Armour [18].
Dempsey	Right forward	Vynne, Urson
Brooks	Left forward	Eiell
Bannister	Center	Johnson, Cheney

Evanston High school swimmers won the second annual interscholastic swimming meet given by the Illinois Athletic club in the club tank last night with a total of 25 points. The affair was by far the most successful of any held in the past and the youngsters did creditable work.

Perry McGillivray of Crane High, who swims on the I. A. C. team, easily was the star of the evening. He won the 40 yard swim in grand style, lowering the high school record one second. He also won the 40 yard breast stroke and swam his preliminary heat of the 100 in 1:05, clipping five seconds off the record. He forfeited his right to swim in the final of this race, preferring to save himself for the relay race.

Stanwood of Evanston was the star performer of the winning team. He won the plunge for distance with a mark of 54 feet and took the forty yard back stroke in a close finish with E. W. McGillivray in the fast time of :30.

Crane, Lewis, or Evanston stood a chance to win the meet when the relay race was called. Four swimmers competed for each school, each boy swimming forty yards. At the crack of the pistol Hench of Lewis institute forged to the front and had a slight lead of two yards over E. W. McGillivray of Crane, with Woods of Evanston a scant yard behind. On the second relay Booth of Lewis increased the lead, and when Perry McGillivray of Crane hit the water he was five yards behind Falcon of Evanston and ten behind Rose of Lewis.

McGillivray cut down the lead considerably, but not enough to allow his teammate, Mallem, to catch Harper of Evanston or McNulty of Lewis.

Lewis won the event and incidentally reduced the record to 1:35 2-5. Summaries:

Plunge for distance—Won by Stanwood, Evanston; Lasher, Evanston, second; Koenig, third. Distance, 54 feet.

The fine form displayed by McLaughlin, which enabled him to win the afternoon game, again was evident in the night contest. When he made a high run of 63, using combination kiss, masse, forced follow, and balkline nurse shots that would have made Willie Hoppe sit up and take notice.

Afternoon score:

SLOW TRADING IN STOCK LIST

Volume and Course of Prices Reflect Disappointment.

THREE FACTORS IN EVIDENCE

Indications That Ease in Money Market Will Continue.

[NEW YORK TIMES FINANCIAL LEADER.]

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—When Wall street came down to business today it expected before the close of the day that definite news would be forthcoming on three things in which it has been deeply interested for several weeks.

A decision from the public service commission on the Erie's application to issue $30,000,000 bonds, much mooted changes in the New York Central directorate, and action by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit directors on dividends were the three matters upon which official light was expected, but the hopes formed were disappointed, and the course of prices as well as the volume of business on the stock exchange were the natural reflection of this disappointment.

Erie Strong at First.

In place of news on the Erie's application there was a definite report that a decision had been reached favorable to the railroad, and under the influence of this report Erie shares were strong at first, preferred rising sharply.

Before the New York Central meeting was held the stock of that road, too, moved forward, but upon the conclusion of the conference without announcement of any kind shares fell back, and at the end of the day were substantially under quotations of the previous night.

Little attention was paid to news relating to other matters than those upon which speculative sentiment centers at the moment. The opinion of the attorney general of Massachusetts that the New Haven's charter was subject to forfeiture, the introduction into the legislature of this state of several bills of a distinctly harassing nature, and the usual weekly résumés of the iron and steel trade situation presenting additional evidence of dullness in these lines now, and of small expectations for the future, evoked no interest.

Ease of Money to Continue.

In our own money markets the remarkable ease which has followed receipts of money from the interior, but the modest demands of business, bids fair to continue in such a fashion that the withdrawals of government deposits and the accumulation of additional reserves by trust companies will be provided for without the least unsettlement. From the treasury banks already have gained on balance since Friday last over $4,000,000, this in spite of the fact that they have been in many cases anticipating repayments of treasury moneys which must be made on January 23.

In London today, according to the cables, there was less anxiety regarding further advance in the Bank of England's rate today. The feeling seems to be that the unexpected success of the offering of Russian bonds in the London market has so far reassured French bankers as to make any contest for gold between the Bank of France and the Bank of England out of the question.

Money on call easy, 1¾@2 per cent; ruling rate, 1¾; closing, bid 1¾; offered at 2. Time loans dull and firm; sixty days, 2¼@2½; ninety days, 2¾@3 per cent; six months, 3@3¼ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 3½ to 4 per cent. Sterling exchange easy, with actual business in bankers' bills at 4.8485@4.8495 for sixty day bills and at 4.8740 for demand. Commercial bills, 4.84⅛@4.84¾. Bar silver, 42. Mexican dollars, 44. Government bonds firmer; railroad bonds irregular.

Western Pacific Bonds.

The first mortgage 5 per cent gold bonds of the Western Pacific railway company are now quoted at 94½, and not 93½, as stated in THE TRIBUNE two days ago. At this price they yield about 5.45 per cent, which, E. H. Rollins & Co. remark, "is in excess of any other bond of a similar class."

Bond Sale Notes.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. announced that all of the $6,250,000 first mortgage bonds of the Chicago and Northwestern had been sold and that the $10,000,000 general mortgage 3½ per cent bonds would probably be offered to the public at 94.

Of the $1,800,000 Hotel La Salle first mortgage 6 per cent bonds all have been disposed of with the exception of $380,000. The first $600,000 were contracted for when the bonds were first offered. The $820,000 bonds following the previous sale have been disposed of by the Western Trust and Savings bank.

IN THE FOREIGN STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Money was more plentiful on the market today and the demand was good. Discounts were easier on the reduction in the price of gold and firmer Paris checks. Trading on the stock exchange was inclined to improve. Although business did not materially expand, values in various directions were better. Copper shares, Guatemala bonds, and home rails were well supported, but gilt edged securities drooped on rumors of a forthcoming Canadian government loan of $30,000,000. American securities lacked a decided tendency and there was only moderate business in the morning, principally in the low priced issues around parity. Later New York supported Missouri Pacific and Norfolk and Western, and this hardened the rest of the list and the market finished firm but lifeless.

RESTORE AID TO CLERGY

ELKS' CONVENTION PLANS.

Officials of Roads Receive Long Request Regarding Transportation.

Ordained ministers who have left their pastorates for some other field of religious work and other persons engaged in charitable work who have recently been cut off by the western railroads from the privileges of free or reduced transportation will have these privileges restored to them.

This comes as the result of a new ruling just issued by the interstate commerce commission, which defines and considerably broadens the regulations under which such privileges may legally be accorded under the provisions of the Hepburn law.

Incidentally the commission takes occasion to criticise the clergy bureau of the Transcontinental Passenger association for a circular letter recently issued. This represents that as a result of rulings of the commission special transportation facilities must be withdrawn from many persons to whom they had hitherto been accorded.

List Includes Many.

The list included ordained clergymen acting as editors of officially recognized church papers, as college presidents or professors, as financial agents for church, religious, or charitable institutions, brothers of religious orders, sisters of charity, devoting their time to religious work, and others.

The commission has received a large number of protests against the construction placed upon the provisions of the Hepburn law by the railroads, and takes occasion in its ruling to state that the position taken by the transcontinental clergy bureau is far in advance of anything required by law or the rulings of the commission.

"Reasonably interpreted," the commission says, "the ruling to which reference is made by the transcontinental clergy bureau cannot possibly necessitate the drastic action which it has taken. A clergyman does not lose his ministerial standing by reason of the fact that he leaves his pastorate for some other field of religious activity.

"A minister who becomes editor of a church paper, or who engages in work which may fairly be regarded as religious in character, and who does not abandon his ministerial work, may legally be accorded special transportation privileges."

Elks Are Particular.

Some of the passenger officials of the western railroads were considerably angered, while at the same time being amused, at some unusual requests made in a letter to the Transcontinental Passenger association from M. H. Flint, postmaster of Los Angeles.

Mr. Flint, who is chairman of the executive committee of the Elks' grand lodge reunion, which meets at Los Angeles on July 11, asks that for this occasion "no line shall enter into competition for the business by promising fast schedules and that all transcontinental lines agree on a schedule that will be sufficiently slow to practically guarantee the arrival of trains on time."

"This request," he says, "is because such a large number of special trains will cross the continent that there will not be sufficient passenger engines to make the regular schedules, and the great difficulty has been in the past that fast schedules were promised and the trains arrived at their destination approximately twenty-four hours or more late, which caused great dissatisfaction among the visitors."

Mr. Flint also requests that all diners be placed on the rear of trains. This is in view of the fact that he fears that the large traffic will cause some old dining cars to be used, and "if in the center of the train and a wreck should occur such as that at Honda, Cal., it might result in great loss of life."

New Railway Paper.

The first issue of the Railway Record, a new weekly paper published in Chicago, made its appearance yesterday. The publishers' announcement says: "It will be devoted to the dissemination of information concerning the railroads. It will not aspire to be a technical and engineering journal."

WHEAT MART WORKS HIGHER

BETTER TONE IN CORN TRADE

Bears Make No Headway in Depressing Values; Oats Strong.

Wheat values were again boosted materially yesterday, with buying by shorts the prime influence. Closing quotations were at the high point for the session, with the sentiment of the local crowd more bullish than for some time. Final quotations were ½c to ⅝@¾c higher. The volume of outside trade was not large, but the market gave many indications of tightness, especially in the May, and the buying of about 1,000,000 bu by a commission house early not only rallied the market sharply, but made the floating supply in the pit light throughout the remainder of the session.

More Converts to Bull Side.

There were more converts to the bull side on the theory that conditions were beginning to approximate the situation predicted by the bull leaders several months ago, both in respect to the receipts at primary points and in regard to the cash demand. Both the cash demand for wheat, and the inquiry for flour were small yesterday, but millers are apparently willing to buy on all breaks, while flour jobbers have only moderate stocks which they will be obliged to replenish sooner or later regardless of the price.

Country Supplies Are Light.

All reports from the northwest and southwest indicate that country supplies are light, and primary arrivals are less than half as much as a year ago. Fancy prices are being paid for choice wheat in all markets, with cash values for contract grade generally over the May. On the other hand, clearances are light, but this does not seem to worry the bulls to any extent. Eastern shorts have shown a disposition to cover freely the last few days.

Foreign news was mixed. La Plata offerings were reported firm, with some complaints of damage to the growing crop in Russia. Cables with the exception of Liverpool generally showed a strong tone. Primary receipts for the day were 287,000 bu, against 614,000 bu a year ago. Clearances were small at 238,000 bu. Receipts at Chicago were 3 cars with only 2 cars expected today. Local cash sales, 20,000 bu, with 16,000 bu reported for export at the seaboard.

Corn Prices on Up Grade.

Corn again displayed more strength than was expected and closed ¼@⅜c higher than the previous finish. Closing figures were at about the high point for the day, with offerings at the end mainly against the ups. The firm tone in wheat and Liverpool cables, which were unchanged to ½d higher, were moderate helps to the bull, but heavy buying by one or two houses took the surplus off the market, leaving the shorts in a precarious position. Country acceptances were light, and the excellent demand from the south is keeping southwestern markets at higher levels for cash stuff than is the case here. Receipts were 370 cars, with 282 cars expected today. At western points arrivals were 855,000 bu, against 1,283,000 bu a year ago. Clearances were 64,000 bu. Cash demand fair, with sales of 50,000 bu at ¼@½c advance. Export sales were reported at 88,000 bu, but the advance shut off the foreign demand.

Oats Sympathize with Corn.

Closing figures for oats showed an advance of ½c, which represented more the strong tone in other grains than any particular influence directly bearing on this cereal. Receipts were moderate at 105 cars, with 102 cars expected today. There was considerable buying of oats against sales of corn. The sample market was unchanged to ½c higher. Primary receipts were 485,000 bu, against 608,000 bu a year ago. Shipping sales were 70,000 bu. Commission houses sold oats on the advance, and there was moderate buying by cash houses.

Fair Demand for Rye.

Rye was in fair request and the market was firmer. May closed at 78c bid and 78½c asked. Cash No. 2 sold at 77c. No. 3 was nominally 70@75c and No. 4 was nominally 65@70c. Receipts were 3 cars.

Barley was quiet and steady. Malting grades were quoted at 60½@67c, mixing at 60@61½c, and screenings at 40@61½c. Receipts were 102 cars.

Flaxseed was 2½c lower. No. 1 northwestern closed at $1.57, No. 1 from the northwest at $1.55¼, No. 1 southwestern at $1.47, and rejected at $1.25@1.35. Receipts here were 3 cars.

Timothy seed was dull. March closed at $3.95 bid and $4.05 asked. Cash lots were quoted at $2.50@3.75.

Cloverseed was unchanged. March was nominally $9.40 and country lots were $7.50@9.25.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Excessive arrivals resulted in a sharp decline in prices of all live stock, the severest loss being in native steer values, which receded largely 25@40c from Monday's level. A few loads of good fat steers were disposed of early at prices which were not more than 10@15c lower than on the first day of the week, but these were sold to outsiders, and when the local killers came into the trade they secured their quota of stock at a decline of at least 25c. Butcher stock trade had a more active tone, and a fair number of good to choice cows and heifers sold at unchanged prices. Plain light offerings were discriminated against, however, and sold at a decline of 10@15c.

Hogs sold at a decline of 10c from Tuesday's best time, with instances of 15c loss on the lightweight mixed hogs. Trade had a fairly active tone at the reduced prices, and the market closed in good condition, with most of the desirable offerings well sold. Live mutton trade was sluggish, and prices declined 10@25c, bulk of lambs being disposed of at a recession of 10@15c from Tuesday's level.

CATTLE.

Expectations had been for about 25,000 cattle, but early indications were for 31,000, and later this number was raised to 33,000 head. A few shipping orders were filled on first rounds at prices only 10@15c lower than on Monday, one lot of prime steers being disposed of at $6.90, the top of the market, and compared to a top of $7.00 Monday. Local packers showed no anxiety to begin operations, and little was done on local account during first trading hours. When the killers did come in the trade they insisted on concessions of 25@40c from the Monday level, and, as supplies were greatly in excess of trade needs and shipping orders were insufficient, sellers had to accept these reduced bids. The general quality of the arrivals was only fair, and high priced sales were not numerous, the bulk of the good killing steers selling at from $5.75@6.50.

Total receipts included only a moderate supply of butcher stock, and there were enough shipping orders calling for good to choice cows and heifers to give the trade in this department a fairly active tone. Local killers had the trade for the plainer grades much to themselves, however, and they refused to operate until a drop of 10@15c was made in values. Bulls made weak to a shade lower prices, while calves were slow sale at the recent decline. Canners and cutters met with a narrow inquiry at a depreciation of 10c in prices. Quotations:

Fair to good steers	5.50@6.25
Common to fair steers	4.00@5.75
Canners and cutters	1.50@3.00

Fair to fancy veals	7.75@9.50

Cattle at six western markets, 54,500, against 42,400 a week ago, 51,700 a year ago, and 56,700 two years ago. Total for 1909 to date, 407,000, against 580,000 the same period in 1908.

HOGS.

Unevenness was a prominent characteristic of the porcine trade. Receipts were estimated at 52,000, and, although the trade was slow in getting started, all the hogs sold early to shippers and speculators showed a decline of 10c from Tuesday's best level. When packers opened operations they insisted on concessions of 10@15c, but were unsuccessful in securing many loads that much lower. About midsession a report from the downtown provision market led to increased activity on the part of the killers, and for a time prices were not more than 5@10c off from the preceding day's level. Late arrivals had a depressing influence on closing transactions, however, and prices took another weak turn at the finish. The quality of the offerings was unusually good, and all packers made up generous droves at the reduced prices. The average price for the day was lowered to $6.22, against $6.30 Tuesday.

Shippers and a small packer paid up to $6.55 for prime heavy hogs, and the bulk of the choice strongweight butcher grades cleared at from $6.35 to $6.50, with prime light butchers at from $6.10 to $6.25. Packers bought mixed hogs at from $6.00 to $6.25 and heavy packing grades at from $6.30 to $6.45. Light mixed hogs were slow sale at from $5.90 to $6.05, and many loads were carried over without bids. Quotations:

Bulk of sales	$6.15@6.40
Selected butchers	6.35@6.55
Fair to good butchers	6.10@6.35
Choice to light	6.15@6.30

Average price of hogs at Chicago, $6.22, against $6.30 Tuesday, $6.10 a week ago, $4.28 a year ago, and $5.60 two years ago.

Eleven markets received 151,400 hogs, against 123,700 a week ago, 210,500 a year ago, and 110,300 two years ago. Total for 1909 to date, 1,875,000, against 2,961,000 the same period in 1908.

Hog purchases for the day follow: Armour & Co., 13,100; Swift & Co., 8,600; Schwarzschild & Sulzberger, 4,500; Anglo-American, 2,600; Hammond, 2,500; Boyd-Lunham, 1,300; Boore & Co., 900; Roberts & Oake, 1,200; Morris & Co., 3,200; Western Packing company, 2,200; butchers, 1,200; shippers, 10,000; total, 50,500; left over, 6,000.

SHEEP.

Low values at all eastern and western markets served to shut off the shipping demand for live muttons, and gave local packers, who had sufficient supplies on hand to meet most pressing requirements, a chance to exert enough bear pressure to force prices of all offerings 10@15c lower than on Tuesday, with many instances of 25c loss. The killers maintained that they could secure supplies at outside points at a much lower cost than on the local market, and even after values had been lowered they operated with reluctance, and it took sellers all day to effect a clearance of 15,000 fresh arrivals.

A few prime lambs sold at $7.65, while the bulk of the good to choice offerings cleared at from $7.00 to $7.50. One lot of extra prime yearlings reached $7.10, but $7.00 was the legitimate top for this class of stock, and most sales of desirable offerings were made at from $6.25 to $6.50. Prime fat wethers sold at from $5.25 to $5.50, with a fair class at from $4.50 to $4.75, while ewes made $4.00@4.75, with prime offerings and yearlings at from $4.90 to $5.25. Bucks sold at from $3.50 to $4.00. Quotations:

Receipts for Jan. 21 were estimated at 7,500 cattle, 34,000 hogs, and 15,000 sheep, against actual arrivals of 8,073 cattle, 35,067 hogs, and 10,458 sheep for Thursday, Jan. 23, 1908.

STOCKYARDS GOSSIP.

All the packers wanted heavy fat hogs and when reports of a strong downtown provision market were received, the killers made a concerted effort to clean up the supply of strongweight offerings at the decline in values. They displayed too much precipitancy, however, and the salesmen forced them to pay up to within 5c of Tuesday's best prices for several loads. A little after 1 o'clock packers made another rush to fill orders and the market had another short period of strength, but this firmness was dissipated by continuous arrivals and the extreme late market was weak at the full decline in values.

Light mixed hogs and pigs were in excessive supply and extremely slow sale, many loads of the latter being disposed of at prices which showed a full 25c decline from the preceding day's level. Several loads of these light hogs and pigs were carried over without bids.

Native steer trade was in a subverted condition. Total receipts of cattle were several thousands larger than had been expected, and as they consisted largely of the plain and medium grades of steers for which there was little demand, it was impossible for the salesmen to effect a satisfactory clearance. Many loads of all kinds of cattle were carried over for Thursday's trade.

The Farmers and Drovers' Journal's British cablegram quoted American beeves on the Liverpool market at 12½c per lb, or unchanged at last Monday's level. Sales of sheep and lambs were made at 12@14c per lb, against 12½@14½c Monday, and 13¼@17½c a year ago.

Armour & Co. had 750 hogs from St. Paul, and a double deck load of pigs from Louisville. Hog buyers for Armour led all competitors in the local trade, their purchases being estimated at 12,100 hogs. Swift & Co. made up a drove of 8,000 hogs, shippers were credited with purchases of 10,000, and about 6,000 were carried over unsold.

Eastern and western markets are out of line with the local sheep and lamb market, and while eastern dealers are securing their stock at Buffalo, the local packers have been enabled to secure stock at Omaha at more satisfactory prices than here.

Packers and city butchers paid up to $7.65 for prime lambs and a feeder took a string of half fat offerings at $7.10. "Bill" Mooney bought a string of western yearlings at $6.70, and a country buyer paid $4.95, a steady price, for a lot of feeding wethers.

Hogs carried over unsold from Tuesday's market were officially counted at 3,500.

ON THE BOARD OF TRADE.

Buying of pork by Logan-Bryan and Lamson, the two houses taking about 6,000 brls, was the feature in the provisions trade and served to stimulate the whole list. Grain traders were the best buyers of lard and ribs, several local bulls reinstating lines sold out on Tuesday. Closing prices were 17½@35c higher for pork, 5@7½c up on lard, and 2½@7½c higher for ribs. Trade was only moderately active. Selling was headed by Roberts and stockyards interests. Initial quotations were lower, influenced by the big run of hogs here and in the west, but this factor had only a momentary influence. Receipts here were 54,000, against 37,000 expected, with 38,000 expected today. Western points received 188,900, compared to 182,500 a year ago. Liverpool lard was ⅜d higher, with hams 6d up. Export demand was reported fairly active.

Chicago Horse Market.

Equine trade was established on a steadier basis, the decrease of more than 300 head in arrivals for the week thus far, as compared to actual receipts a week ago, having had a beneficial influence on the general market. Lighter offerings also had a stimulating effect on the demand and buyers showed less indifference in filling orders. Prices did not show any material change, but the clearance of supplies was more satisfactory and the market was in a good healthy condition at the close. Drafters ranged at from $175.00@215.00; drivers, $150.00@350.00; farm mares and chunks, $130.00@160.00; southerners, $60.00@110.00. Receipts for the week thus far are 1,365, against 1,679 a week ago and 1,774 a year ago.

IN THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

STRAW.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Steady, with fair demand.

Groceries.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Steadiness prevailed in the market for staple groceries, but although larger quantities of canned goods, dried fruits, and cereals were being shipped out, and the general volume of business being transacted was much in excess of the aggregate for this time last year, prices did not respond and all changes noted in values were of minor importance. Dealers who were anxious to convert holdings into ready cash had little difficulty in accomplishing this, as there were many buyers ready to absorb all stock offered at reduced prices. This kept the market free of burdensome accumulations, and the situation was a healthy one, in spite of the fact that all price advances had a tendency to shut off orders.

Sugar and Coffee.

SUGAR.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—All offerings of refined sugars met with a ready demand at unchanged values. Following were the ruling prices in wholesale circles, quotations being on 100 lb lots: Standard granulated, beet and cane, $4.75@4.85; cut loaf, H. & E., $5.80; standard powdered, $5.20; extra C, $4.60; canary, $4.20; chemically pure milk sugar, 16c per lb in brl lots.

COFFEE.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Firmness prevailed in the market for spot roasted coffees, and prices showed a well defined upward tendency. Offerings of desirable blends were moderate, the demand from local and outside retailers was stronger, and the firmness reported in eastern markets was readily reflected in values here.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—COFFEE—Spot steady; No. 7 Rio, 7⅛c; Santos No. 4, 8⅝@8¾c. Mild steady; Cordova, 9½@12½c. Futures opened steady, at unchanged prices to a decline of 5 points, in sympathy with lower European markets, and, after holding steady during the early session, increased the loss under realizing and selling by trade interests. Although the spot situation seemed to continue firm, the close was steady, at a net decline of 5@15 points. Sales were reported of 36,250 bags, including February at 5.90c, March at 5.90@6.00c; May, 5.95@6.05c; June, 5.80c; July, 5.80c; September, 5.65@5.70c; October and December, 5.60c.

Dry Goods.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Wholesale dry goods circles were scenes of continued activity, and firmness pervaded all branches of the trade. Jobbers were in receipt of numerous orders calling for wash goods, ginghams, laces, embroideries, and other fabrics needed for the making of summer dresses, and there was a broad inquiry for muslin underwear, linens, and notions. Cotton goods were in good request, and many retailers were taking on additional lines of staple prints in order to protect themselves against the announced advance in values which is soon to go into effect.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—A large business is being done in the dry goods market in cotton goods, silks, and some of the jobbing house goods for immediate or early delivery. Advances in some of the domestic cotton goods lines are looked for and slight advances have already been secured on low lines of bleached cottons. Quite an active demand is noted from the manufacturing trades for yard wide black taffetas. Openings of fall ginghams and napped cottons are being arranged for within a few days.

First prices were the lowest of the day, for an extensive buying movement started immediately after the first call based on returns from the National Ginners' association, showing only 12,628,000 bales ginned to Jan. 16. This was about 100,000 bales below the general expectation, and prices advanced over $1 a bale, standing at the highest 17@18 points above yesterday's last prices. The close was firm, with prices showing net advances of 13@14 points. Futures closed firm.

REVIEW OF THE METAL TRADES.

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—The Iron Age tomorrow will say:

"In nearly every direction the iron and steel markets are quiet and no business of any magnitude has been placed. While some of the great leaders of the industry frankly avow their belief that no market buying movement need be expected during the first half of the year, there are other interests, notably in the central west, which are confident that business will be much brisker in sixty to ninety days.

"Some of the smaller and medium sized plants are fairly busy, but it is claimed that they are getting more than their share by cutting prices. In amount these concessions are not serious, but they are irritating just the same. Railroad buying is still below expectations and until it develops into normal volume the heavy lines must be content to run along as they have done for some time."

Tariff Agitation Affects Trade.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 20.—The Iron Trade Review tomorrow will say:

"The expectation of tariff revision and uncertainty as to the attitude of many state legislatures concerning the railroads and other corporations are having a depressing effect on the iron market. The expression of fear of tariff reduction may sometimes be a pretext rather than a real reason, but the effect is nevertheless felt. The demand for lower prices on finished products is frequently based on the anticipation of lower tariff rates.

"Activity in pig iron has been confined almost entirely to cast iron pipe interests. A sale of 20,000 tons of southern iron has been made to the leading pipe interests, and sales pending or closed in the Buffalo district amount to 10,000 tons. Sales of 20,000 tons of basic have been made at Pittsburg.

"A contract which will ultimately involve the substitution of many thousand street car steel wheels for cast iron wheels, has been made by the Chicago City Railway company with the Carnegie Steel company. The New York Central has ordered 2,000 steel hopper freight cars, of which 1,000 will be built by the Standard Steel Car company and 1,000 by the American Car and Foundry company."

HITS PARCELS POST SYSTEM.

Lumbermen's Convention Says Establishment Would Be Contrary to Public Policy.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 20.—The National Lumbermen's convention opened today with over 800 in attendance. Resolutions were presented disapproving the establishment of the parcels post system, as it would be contrary to public policy for the government to enter into the business of transporting merchandise. Nelson S. Darling of the Oklahoma Sash and Door company made an address on retail dealers and mail order houses, declaring that the dealer who is selfish enough to patronize firms that sell to mail order houses is not entitled to recognition of the association.

Fresh Outbreak of Cattle Disease.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20.—A fresh outbreak of the foot and mouth disease in cattle in East Lampeter township, which adjoins Lancaster, Pa., has just been reported to the department of agriculture. The infection is confined to one herd of four cattle.

CHARTER FRAMERS TO MEET

Milton J. Foreman Issues Call for Gathering on Jan. 29.

MANY CHANGES SUGGESTED.

Recommendations of Sub-Committees Put Into Pamphlet Form.

Chairman Milton J. Foreman has called a meeting of the charter convention for Friday, Jan. 29, in the council chamber at 10 a. m. At that time work on the framing of a new charter, to be presented at Springfield during the present session of the legislature, will be taken up in earnest.

For the convenience of the delegates Mr. Foreman has had collated the recommendations of the subcommittee, which met from day to day the latter part of last year. These recommendations were all reported in the newspapers at the time, but it was thought that putting them into pamphlet form would aid the convention.

Important Changes Suggested.

The important changes suggested by the committee are:

Election law—No person may promise employment as a reward for political action; a report of all election expenses shall be made within fifteen days after election.

Civil service—The head of a department may suspend an employé with or without pay, but the civil service commission must, on his request, investigate concerning whether the removal was justified or not. Reductions in grade must be made in like manner.

Sunday closing—The council may determine whether or not saloons be kept open on Sunday, regardless of any state law on the subject.

Police powers—When a property owner refuses to abate a nuisance the city may do it, even to the extent of making structural changes in a building. Police ordinances may be passed affecting all of the city or only part of it.

Provision for Licenses.

Revenue—The council may impose a license on all business conducted wholly or in part in the city limits and on all franchises of corporations doing business in part or in whole inside the city.

Improvements—When a street is repaved not more than 90 per cent of the cost shall be charged to property owners; if it is first paved after the passage of the charter, not more than 50 per cent.

Public utilities—In the case of pipes, wires, and similar underground work property consents shall not be required for their renewal either before or after the grant has expired in case the new ones do not require more space than the old.

Parks—The commissioners may vacate streets and alleys on all land acquired for park purposes.

Education—The board of education shall consist of fifteen instead of twenty-one members. Present members may complete their terms, but future appointments shall be in sets of three, not seven.

SAYS HE BECAME A THIEF TO SAVE GIRL'S REPUTATION.

William De Berge, Who Absconded with $500 Belonging to Prairie State Bank, Gets Year in Bridewell.

William De Berge, who was arrested for absconding with $500 belonging to the Prairie State bank, testified in Judge McSurely's court yesterday that he turned thief to save the reputation of his sweetheart. The young man pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny and was sentenced to one year in the bridewell.

He said his sweetheart's mother suggested to him that he steal in order to be married. De Berge and the girl first went to New York and while there he decided not to marry her.

"Then I went to Wyoming, where I worked a few weeks on a ranch," said the young man. "I soon became disgusted with the hardships of a cowboy's life and rode into Cheyenne and surrendered myself."

De Berge's parents live at 658 Orchard street.

JURORS CHANGE THEIR MINDS.

First Signed a "Not Guilty" Verdict, and Then They "Thought It Over."

A perplexing legal question was presented to Judge Rose yesterday when five members of a jury that had agreed on a verdict in a suit repudiated their finding when polled by the court.

The twelve jurors had agreed Tuesday night that the defendants, saloonkeepers and property owners in Harvey, were not guilty, and signed their names to such a finding. When polled they said they had "thought it over."

The suit was one brought under the dramshop act to recover $15,000 damages on the ground that the defendants had made a drunkard of the plaintiff's husband. The judge has not yet decided what action to take.

Woman Asks That a Receiver Be Appointed for Estate Left by Mother.

Northwestern Road Gets Station Permit for $2,859.

Activity in the Construction of Apartment Houses Is Expected.

What is said to be the largest fee ever paid to the city building department was paid yesterday by the Northwestern road for its new west side passenger station. The fee was $2,859, and the building will exceed in cubic space and ever erected in the city, exceeding by thousands of feet, it is said, the great new warehouse of Montgomery Ward & Co. on the north side.

The building will front 320 feet on Madison street, with a depth of 1,322 feet, will vary from one to four stories high, and the cost is placed at $4,000,000. It is estimated 9,760,000 brick will be used, 18,400 yards of concrete, 175,000 feet of tile, and 37,000 yards of plastering.

Activity in flat construction and the acquirement of ground for this purpose constitute one of the most prominent features of the real estate market at present.

Collins & Morris, the builders, who were reported in yesterday's TRIBUNE as having purchased 200x180 feet at the northwest corner of South Park avenue and Fifty-third street, with the purpose of improving it with a forty-two flat building to cost $150,000, have just made two other purchases, which they also will improve with apartment buildings.

Buy from McCormick Estate.

They have purchased from the McCormick estate 104x180 feet at the southwest corner of South Park avenue and Fifty-third street, and will improve it with a high grade twenty-four flat building, which is expected to cost about $75,000. This is across Fifty-third street, just south of their other purchase, and comprised a part of the tract which was to form the site of the infectious disease hospital. No consideration is given, but the price is understood to have been about $150 a front foot.

They also have purchased from the Clark estate the property at the northeast corner of Fifty-third street and Hibbard avenue, 71x160 feet, improved with two frame residences. These will be torn down and a high grade flat building erected, the cost of which is estimated at $80,000. It will be divided into apartments of four to eight rooms which will rent at from $40 to $80 a month.

Emma Reynolds Moody Fitt, daughter of the late Dwight L. Moody, evangelist, has sold to the Moody Bible Institute the property at 250 La Salle avenue, 20x111 feet, with flat improvements, for $10,000. It will form a part of the site for the new administration building and two dormitories to be erected by the institute and which are expected to cost $300,000.

Buys Property in Lake Forest.

The Chicago and Northwestern road has purchased from G. L. Thatcher, E. M. Griffin, and others a tract of land at Lake Forest for which the road paid $17,562. The property was acquired in connection with the road's track elevation work at that point, and will also form the site for the new station, the remainder to be parked.

E. F. Keebler & Co. have leased for David Mayer and H. E. Dick to Thomas G. O'Connor the store and basement at 274 State street, near Van Buren street, for a term of ten years, at an aggregate rental of $100,000.

Willis & Frankenstein have leased for the estate of W. J. Quan to Hochstadter & Levy, manufacturers of bottlers' supplies, a three story and basement building, 75x109 feet, to be erected at 268-274 Illinois street, for a term rental of $50,000. The rental was based upon a ground valuation of $26,000 and $40,000 for the buildings.

The speakers at the annual banquet of the real estate board to be held at the Congress hotel the night of Jan. 28, will be Col. Bennett, H. Young of Louisville, Ky., former Gov. Joseph W. Folk of Missouri, and Dean George E. Vincent of the University of Chicago.

SALARY LOANS.

I APPRECIATE ACCOUNTS OF HONORABLE people [men employed or in business, women with allowances or incomes], who want to borrow money confidentially with or without security. Will gladly advance reasonable sums to honest people who have the ability to pay with reasonable promptness. The methods of some dealers never change, and high rates for money are demanded by the professional lender. My average rate, all expenses included, is never more than 1, 2, or 3 per cent monthly, depending upon amount loaned and risk assumed. No insurance or other device to swell interest charges; those who have been paying high rates are especially urged to consult with me. My location and my being connected with a large mercantile house assures a privacy not possible to those who deal with brokers doing business in downtown office buildings, where money lenders congregate. Ask for WILLCOXE, care of Englewood Company, 538-540 East Sixty-third-st., corner Greenwood-av. Telephone Hyde Park 4222.

CLELAND DEFIANT; STICKS TO PAROLE.

Judge Says Colleagues "Acted Like Lot of Kids," Then Lays Down Rules.

HIS PICTURE REMAINS.

"They acted like a lot of kids, and unless the power of Chief Justice Olson to make transfers is checked, it will eventually result in one chief justice and a lot of dubs occupying the Municipal court bench."

This was one of Judge McKenzie Cleland's expressions yesterday in hurling defiance at his fellow jurists, who denounced his parole plan.

"I have not laid down on my parole plan," said the judge feelingly, and therewith he produced a set of rules which, he says, will govern every police court over which he presides. The "notice," which is to be posted in the Shakspeare avenue court today, reads:

First—I will not send to jail for a trivial mistake a man having a family to support, who is willing to become a good citizen, provide for his family and obey the law.

Second—I will not impose a fine upon any man merely to increase the revenues of this court.

Third—I will not permit any person whatsoever to dictate what sentences shall be imposed in the court over which I preside.

Today these principles are the same, and tomorrow, if I am here, they will not be different.

Attorney Joseph Epstein gained prominence in the controversy during the day as the result of disclosures made by "the balance of the Municipal court." It has just become known that Judge Olson's reason for transferring Judge Cleland from the Maxwell street court was a charge "that prisoners employed Attorney Epstein to get them on the parole list and then reëmployed him to get them off."

It also developed that Epstein was the originator of the scheme to hang Judge Cleland's picture in the Maxwell street court and was the "committee" who recently stopped Judge Bruggemeyer from removing the Cleland picture and filling the space with one of Abraham Lincoln. This, it is stated, is what caused the row over the picture incident at the meeting of the judges on Tuesday.

At the meeting Judge Newcomer offered this resolution:

"Resolved, That the bailiff be ordered to remove the picture of Judge Cleland and present it to the judge."

Every judge present voted for it except the man concerned, who said:

"This is a frameup. I had offered to use my friendly offices to have the picture removed, but you declined the offer, and since you have passed the resolution go get the picture down the best way you know how. It doesn't belong to me and I didn't put it there."

But Cleland Does Not Agree.

Chief Bailiff Thomas M. Hunter refuses to remove the picture until he receives an order from the majority of the judges. It is understood they intended signing such an order yesterday, but finally decided that "Judge Cleland would remove it himself."

"I will not take it down," said Judge Cleland with emphasis during the day. "Justice Olson told a friend of mine he had the power to create a Municipal court at the end of the government pier. That'll be all right, for I always did like fish."

JURIST COMMITS NAMESAKE FOR CONFIDENCE GAME.

Judge Newcomer Tells B. F. Newcomer He Might Have Made Name for Himself Had He Followed Law.

Benjamin Franklin Newcomer, alias Harvey (Bud) Morton, was bound over to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Newcomer of the Municipal court on the charge of being a confidence man. Newcomer was arraigned under the name of Morton, accused of having induced Horace Sanders, a horse breeder of Iowa City, Ia., to sign a draft for $330, when he (Sanders) thought he was signing an order for a book on cattle raising.

When Newcomer gave his right name, Judge Newcomer straightened up.

"You may be a relative of mine, as my family lived in Ogle county," said Judge Newcomer, the prisoner having explained that his parents lived at Freeport, and that he had changed his name when he became a gambler.

"But as far as I am able to remember I never heard of any family of Newcomers other than my own in Ogle or Stevenson county," the judge continued. "I will have to hold you to the grand jury. You are a smart man, one that should have taken to law instead of gambling. If you had you might have made a great name for yourself."

JOHN A. COOKE CASE DEFERRED.

Postponed by the Parole Board Until Next Meeting—Stensland's Petition Not Presented.

The case of John A. Cooke has been passed over until the next meeting of the parole board, according to a telegram from Joliet. When the case was reached yesterday Cooke himself requested that it be passed for the present. The result was that those opposed to liberating him had no opportunity to present their arguments. Cooke's friends advised him to ask for a postponement on account of the opposition which had developed.

The Stensland case did not come before the board. Stensland's daughter had expected to bring the subject up quietly, but agitation of the matter headed off any possibility of that. As far as the board knows officially nothing has been done by Stensland and his friends looking to his release on parole.

The action taken on minor cases will be reported to Gov. Deneen the last of this week.

Price of Gary Land Raised.

The Gary Land company decided yesterday to raise the price of its holdings in Gary, Ind., 33 1-3 per cent. The company owns 9,000 acres in and near Gary.

Herman Kruger Has Friend Woo Nomination for Him.

NOW HE IS REAL ANGRY.

Chosen Speaker Announced His Own Aspirations to Coy Voters.

Herman F. Kruger, the heavyweight alderman from the Fifteenth ward—he weighs over 375 pounds—thinks he is the victim of misplaced confidence.

He has considerable to say about false friends. He does not think he has been rightly treated.

William Legner arranged a meeting of leading Democrats of the ward at a convenient resort last evening for the purpose of booming Kruger for renomination. Over 200 of the faithful were present. Kruger was asked to pick out the speaker of the evening, and he hunted up his old friend "Dan" Henman, who runs a saloon and has some local reputation as an orator. Henman promised to do his best.

His speech was as eulogistic of the outgoing alderman as the latter could ask for. Until he heard it Kruger did not know how great a man he really is. Through with this, the speaker paused.

Then Came Shock.

"It must be remembered," he went on, "that under the new primary law any citizen has the right to try for nomination. I will take advantage of this meeting to announce that I am a candidate for the nomination for alderman myself."

"Hope there are no hard feelings, Herman," he added turning to the still dazed alderman.

Kruger will be remembered as the man who introduced the ordinance prohibiting football in Chicago, and in his speech backing it spoke of the boys who had been killed playing, and added: "They are not all well yet."

Aldermanic Contests.

George C. Sikes, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for alderman in the Thirty-fifth ward, won a partial victory at the meeting of the ward club. There was a proposition on to indorse one of the three candidates—James Clarke, Joseph Francis, and Mr. Sikes— and this the latter was able to defeat so as to leave the question open for the voters at the primary. An indorsement would have benefited one of the other two.

J. L. Hildahl, a clerk in the city hall, is out after the Democratic nomination in the Twenty-seventh ward. He ran as the party candidate two years ago but was beaten by Ald. Siewert.

William Ryan of the Thirty-fourth ward is announced as after the Democratic aldermanic nomination. He and J. R. Considine had previously been the only contestants for the nomination for city clerk and his making the choice for alderman leaves Considine as the only present aspirant for the clerk's job. The other candidates for the aldermanic nomination in the ward are Ald. Joseph Kohout and Jacob Sindelar, the latter once an alderman from the Tenth ward.

Stirs Up Candidates.

Ald. Albert Hahne of the Twenty-fourth ward announces he will not be a candidate for reëlection. This has stirred up two candidates for the Republican nomination, George Seggling, a merchant, and Otto Uhlrich, a lawyer.

Next Monday is the first day in which petitions for aldermanic nomination can be filed. Feb. 8 is the last. As the candidate who files his petition first goes to the head of the primary ballot it is expected that most of the aspirants will have their papers in the first day, although the lively scramble which marked filing day in the case of the county ticket last summer is hardly looked for.

The committee of the "First Ward All Party Primary club" called on the election commissioners in the morning and asked leave to present a list of names of men whom it considered fit persons to act as judges and clerks of election. The commissioners replied they wanted all the names they could get.

John J. Fox, a real estate dealer, has been indorsed for the Republican aldermanic nomination in the Thirty-first ward by the local improvement association.

Poles Seek Recognition.

Polish-American business and professional men of Chicago who are Republicans met last night at the Great Northern hotel and formed a committee of 200 for the purpose of interesting and encouraging the Polish speaking citizens in politics.

Plans were formulated to urge upon the Cook county officials the need of Polish speaking attendants and nurses at the county institutions and a judicious distribution of patronage among Polish speaking Americans in those wards where the Polish-American citizens predominate.

Awarded Bridge Contracts.

The George W. Jackson company, Inc., was awarded the contract for the superstructural work of two bridges to be erected over the north branch of the Evanston channel of the sanitary district canal.

BRYAN BUYS TEXAS LANDS.

Will Raise Citrus Fruits and Make Winter Home in Texas.

Brownsville, Tex., Dec. 2.—William J. Bryan has purchased eighty acres of land near Mission, Hidalgo County, Texas, along the Rio Grande, about sixty-five miles from Brownsville. He has given orders to have half of the acreage cleared at once and planted in orange, fig, olive, pecan and almond trees, grape fruit and other semi-tropical plants. It is Mr. Bryan's expectation to later on build a home on the land, and when completed he and Mrs. Bryan will spend a portion of their winters there.

William Jennings Bryan
GULF COAST COUNTRY

He has purchased 80 acres of irrigated land near Mission, Hidalgo County, Texas, on which he will at once plant orange, fig, olive, pecan, almond trees, etc., and if they "do as well as he expects" he will build a home and spend a portion of his winters there.

Mr. Bryan has long contemplated improving a place in the South, and it is not surprising that his selection should be made in the heart of the Gulf Coast Country, whose climate is almost ideal and whose soil is so wonderfully productive that returns of $10,000 from 20 acres of onions—such as that made by Mr. Geo. Hoffman of Kingsville, Texas—are of common occurrence.

Mr. Hoffman's experience was duplicated by many other growers in the Gulf Coast Country. That was two or three years ago. The change which has been wrought in the Gulf Coast Country in the short time since then is marvelous.

Prosperous towns and cities have sprung up—irrigation has been systematized and extended—methods of marketing have been improved. Now large areas of the Gulf Coast Country are dotted with small farms, the owners of which are making fortunes every year.

On a small tract of land in the Gulf Coast Country you should be able to make a good living and lay away a snug sum each year. Experience is not necessary. It is simply "making garden" on a larger scale.

Investigate this proposition while the land is within your reach. Next year it will cost more.

A trip of investigation will be inexpensive. Twice each month you can buy round-trip tickets via the Rock Island-Frisco-C. & E. I. Lines to any point in the Gulf Coast Country at the following very low fares:

Chicago	$30.00	Kansas City	$25.00	St. Paul	$32.50
